Blasts Goon Exemptions in Anti-Lynch Bill

FATAL BEATING OF GARAGE MAN STIRS PROTEST

Seek Prosecution of Labor Sluggers.

The Hvid Murder

A day by day report of what the police have done to catch the labor goons who slew Marinus Hvid will be found on page 7.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—The baseball bat slaying of a Chicago garage owner by labor goons figured largely in the house debate today over a bill to suppress lynchings in the United States.

Clare E. Hoffman.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.] attacked the anti-lynching measure because it specifically exempts murders committed in connection with any labor dispute. Hoffman's criticism gained so much support that sponsors of the measure said they would move to amend the bill to eliminate the labor killing exemption.

The Michigan representative drew attention to the fatal assault last Dec. 28 upon Marinus Hvid, a garage owner, who died Dec. 30 of a beating with bats in the hands of labor goons.

"That killing is as revolting to decent citizens as any lynching of a Negro that ever occurred in the south," Hoffman told the house. "Yet this bill specifically exempts such a crime from federal prosecution."

Labor Sluggers Exempt.

The anti-lynching bill defines a lynching as violence by a mob [composed of three or more persons] which results in the death or maiming of the victim or victims. Immediately following was a proviso that "lynching shall not be deemed to include violence occurring during the course of picketing or boycotting or any incident in connection with any labor dispute."

"Why this exemption?" asked Hoffman. "The title of the measure informs us that the bill is to be passed to assure to persons within the jurisdiction of every state due process of law and equal protection of the laws. If the government is to go into the business of prosecuting crimes of violence which the states seem to be unable to curb, why not extend the bill to include these labor murders which go unprosecuted?"

Author Seeks Elimination.

Representative Joseph A. Gavagan [D., N. Y.], author of the bill, announced that he would move to eliminate the proviso attacked by Hoffman, thus permitting killings such as that of the Chicago garage owner to come within the provisions of the legislation.

Hoffman went on to criticize another provision of the bill which provides that the person lynched must have been suspected of, charged with, or convicted of a crime before the act shall apply.

"Why should the law be limited to persons under suspicion, charge, or conviction of a crime?" he asked. "Let us not deny protection to the law-abiding who may be murdered in labor disputes without ever having been accused or suspected of any offense."

Futile, Says Wadsworth.

Representative James W. Wadsworth [R., N. Y.], termed the measure a futile gesture.

"It is useless for a centralized power to turn its weapons against a local community and attempt to compel its citizens to good behavior," he said. "This futile measure never can be enforced."

Representative Arthur W. Mitchell [D., Ill.], only Negro congressman, made a plea for the bill and then accused Republicans of trying to buy the Negro vote with support of the bill. Representative Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.], replied that he did not believe the Negro vote was for sale and said Republicans had supported the proposal for 20 years.

COURT UPSETS NLRB ON ORDER TO INLAND STEEL

Hearing Examiner Branded Unfair.

4 to 1 Against Unions

Johnson City, N. Y., Jan. 9 (AP).—Employés of the Endicott Johnson corporation voted 4 to 1 against union representation today in one of the largest elections ever conducted by the National Labor Relations board. Russell Miller, NLRB field representative, said 15,831 of approximately 17,000 shoe workers in factories in Binghamton, Johnson City, Endicott, and Owego, N. Y., balloted, and 12,693 of them were against representation by any union. The A. F. of L. Boot and Shoe Workers union polled 1,612 votes, and the C. I. O. affiliated United Shoe Workers of America 1,079. Several hundred ballots were challenged.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday held invalid an order of the National Labor Relations board requiring the Inland Steel company to deal with the Steel Workers' Organizing committee [a C. I. O. affiliate] as sole bargaining agent for all its production, maintenance, and transportation workers.

Charles Wood.

The three judges, Evan A. Evans, Will M. Sparks, and J. Earl Major, based their decision on a finding that the steel company did not have a fair hearing of its case. They remanded the whole matter to the board for a new hearing. The judges also ruled that the board had no authority for its command that any agreements made by the union and company would have to be written and signed.

Examiner Termed Biased.

Much of the 10,000 word opinion, written by Judge Major, dealt with alleged prejudice on the part of Charles A. Wood, trial examiner who conducted the hearing that preceded the issuance of the order. The opinion described his conduct as "unfair and biased." Certain phases of the hearing, it said, showed that Wood "laid aside all semblance of serving in a judicial capacity."

"The act," the opinion said, "authorizes the board to enter an order upon a complaint alleging unfair labor practices only after a 'hearing.' This must mean a trial by a tribunal free from bias and prejudice and imbued with the desire to accord to the parties equal consideration. There is perhaps no more important right to which litigants are entitled than that they be given such a trial.

Need for Fair Trials Cited.

"Its impairment, ipso facto, brings the court, and administrative bodies as well, into public disrepute and destroys the esteem and confidence which they have enjoyed so generally. Time and experience have demonstrated that the public, as well as litigants, will tolerate the honest mistakes of those who pass judgment, but not the biased acts of those who would deprive litigants of a fair and impartial trial."

[Counsel for congressional committee hints at subornation of perjury charge against NLRB attorney in Litchfield, Ill., case. Page 6.]

Among the prejudiced acts with which Wood was charged, in the company's petition to set aside the NLRB order, were hostile and coercive examination of the company witnesses, refusal to let the company have a shorthand reporter in the hearing room, and ejecting one who made the attempt to take notes, and permitting the alteration of the record to the company's harm. On all these points the judges agreed with the company.

Examination Held Unfair.

"We think it can be stated as a general proposition that the examiner devoted very little time to the

Federal Debt Rises Further; Over 42 Billion

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—The treasury disclosed today that the federal debt passed $42,000,000,000 on Jan. 6, coming within $3,000,000,000 of the statutory limit.

President Roosevelt advised congress last week that further debt increases would be necessary because of deficits next year, but said then that if congress voted $460,000,000 of additional taxes to pay for emergency national defense costs, the debt would not reach $45,000,000,000 in the next fiscal year. With the new taxes, he said, the estimated debt on June 30, 1941, would be $44,938,577,622.

Debt Rises in Half Year.

Since the current fiscal year began on July 1, the debt has increased $1,562,048,037, because of borrowing to finance most of the $2,115,711,637 deficit incurred in the same period. The rest of the deficit was paid out of cash on hand at the beginning of the year. Since July 1, expenditures have totaled $4,943,439,139 and receipts $2,827,727,501.

A year ago the debt was $39,502,-543,964 and the deficit for the corresponding portion of the previous fiscal year was $1,736,145,519.

The President also estimated that the final deficit this fiscal year would be $4,032,813,641, but if congress votes the new defense taxes the deficit next year would be pared to $1,716,231,570.

Links Debt with Farm Grants.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 9 (AP).—Unless the 45 billion dollar limitation on the national debt is lifted, a new source will have to be found for funds with which to make farm parity payments, Secretary Wallace said today.

The cabinet member, here to appear at a court hearing on stockyards commission rates, said the fiscal situation is a boost for the certificate plan of paying parity benefits. Under that plan, processors of farm products would purchase certificates from the government. The funds thus obtained would be pooled and distributed to producers on the basis of the number of units of commodities marketed.

In his recent budget message, President Roosevelt recommended appropriation of about 400 million dollars less for agriculture than was appropriated by the last session.

COMMONS WILL AIR SCOTCH PROTEST OVER ARMY'S BAN ON KILT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 9.—A battle of the kilt will be waged on the floor of the house of commons when parliament reassembles from its Christmas vacation on Jan. 16.

The war office ban on the picturesque Highland uniforms which set all Scotland seething will be challenged by J. Henderson Stewart, a Scottish Liberal member for East Fife.

The Scots charge that the English are trying to proscribe the kilt as they did in 1845, when a Highlander could be deported for wearing it. The English retort that they are trying to save raw materials.

CREW OF LINER COLUMBUS WILL BE SENT HOME

New York, Jan. 9 [Special].—Four hundred officers and crew members of the scuttled German liner Columbus, who are of military age, will be released Sunday from Ellis island and taken under guard by train and bus to west coast ports from which they will be permitted to sail, it was learned here tonight. They will use a Japanese ship to a Russian port and travel overland to Germany.

The German seamen have been detained since Dec. 20, when they were brought into New York aboard the United States cruiser Tuscaloosa, which rescued them at sea off Cape May, N. J., when they took to lifeboats and sent their ship to the bottom to avoid seizure by British warcraft.

The 175 members of the crew not of military age will have to stay in protective custody at Ellis island until accommodations for them to sail from New York on neutral ships have been completed.

Resigns Job on Council; It's Just Too Much Woe

West Fairview, Pa., Jan. 9 (AP).—Irwin Bretz, head of the borough council, resigned today saying: "I didn't want the job in the first place. Every night someone called and wanted a family argument settled or complained about ashes dumped in the street, or dogs fighting. I hadn't an enemy in the world before I took the job; now I must have at least 50."

Doctor Admits Stealing from Two Surgeons

Dr. Leon Boim, arrested yesterday in his office at 738 Sheridan road, was booked on a charge of grand larceny last night by Waukegan police. He signed a confession in the presence of fellow physicians that he had stolen $128 from the clothing of two doctors while they were operating in Waukegan hospitals.

Dr. Leon Boim.

Dr. Boim is 43 years old. He said he taught anatomy at a north side school of medicine from 1929 to 1932. Recently his practice had been poor, he said, and he went to Waukegan to consult a doctor friend about starting a practice there. Last Sept. 7, he admitted, he went into St. Therese hospital, donned a surgical gown, and watched Dr. Louis F. Kompare perform an operation. On the way out, he said, he went thru Dr. Kompare's pockets and took $55.

Goes to Another Hospital.

He returned to Waukegan Jan. 5, he continued, and visited Victory Memorial hospital. Dr. William L. Ewald was operating at the time and Dr. Boim went thru his clothing, taking $73.

Dr. Kompare had reported his loss as $60 and Dr. Ewald said $80 had been taken.

Dr. Boim introduced himself to other physicians he encountered in the operating and locker rooms of the two hospitals as "Dr. Bowers of Chicago." He showed a letter of recommendation while discussing his desire to relocate his practice at Waukegan. Later, when members of the Lake county medical profession discussed the thefts, the doctor friend he had been looking for suggested Dr. Boim as a suspect.

Tries to Deny Identity.

Detectives Bart Tyrrell and William MacDonald of Waukegan were sent to his Chicago office. They found Dr. Boim there, but at first he attempted to deny his identity, saying "the doctor was out."

Dr. Boim has practiced more than 17 years in Chicago. He resides at 3819 Wilcox street. He said that his mother, Anna, had required a series of operations and constant medical attention for the last two years.

German Planes Sink 3 Ships in North Sea Raid

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 10 [Wednesday].—The Dunbar Castle, 10,000 ton British liner, was ripped apart by a terrific mine explosion off the southeast coast of England yesterday.

The ship plunged to the bottom a few hours hours after German warplanes had bombed or machine gunned 14 British or neutral vessels, sinking at least three.

Two other ships, or six in all, were reported sunk in the last few days in the sharp burst of sea and air warfare. Loss of life in all disasters totaled at least 34.

All But Three Rescued.

The Dunbar Castle was outward bound for the Cape of Good Hope when it struck the mine. Aboard were 48 passengers, including nine children, and a crew of 150. All but three of the 198 persons were saved. The ship's captain and two seamen were killed. Rescue boats sped to the scene and the first group of survivors were landed at English ports five hours after the vessel went down.

Some passengers drifting in the mine-strewn waters in two life boats were picked up by a motor barge.

Doctors, nurses, ambulances, and first aid units rushed thru the blackout as boat loads of survivors reached shore.

Huddled in emergency stations with lifebelts slung about their shoulders, hatless women in fur coats and other survivors described their experiences.

Sinks Within 10 Minutes.

They said the explosion occurred about lunchtime. All the lights went out, the ship's galley blew up, and many members of the crew were injured.

The liner crumpled, broke in two and sank within 10 minutes after hitting the mine. The force of the explosion was so great that many passengers were lifted from their chairs and flung to the deck.

The survivors said the lifeboats had trouble getting away because of the suction of water rushing thru the broken hull. The ship cracked in half after the boats were away, they said.

Capt. H. A. Causton was on the bridge at the time of the explosion. He was found dead at the door of his cabin. His body and those of the two sailors were brought ashore.

Bombers Sink 3 Vessels.

The admiralty announced that one British ship and two Danish vessels had been sunk by German bombing planes just off the east coast to the north of where the Dunbar Castle was blown up. The ships were:

S. S. Gowrie, British, 689 tons.

S. S. Ivan Kondrup, Danish, 3,369 tons.

S. S. Feddy, Danish, 955 tons.

The Gowrie's crew was picked up by a Danish vessel. Ten of the Ivan Kondrup's crew of 21 were missing. Eleven survivors were rescued by a British ship. The fate of the Feddy's crew was not known.

British Tanker Sinks.

Reports also reached London of the mining and sinking of the 8,485 ton British tanker Liberty in the North sea. Twenty sailors were missing and believed lost. The 176 ton Dutch motor vessel Truida hit a mine and sank off the Netherlands coast. Its crew of four was saved.

Today's reports raised the known sea toll of all nations to 300 ships, having a tonnage of 1,065,178.

The German aerial attacks on ships occurred along the east coasts of Scotland and England. Five British fishing smacks were reported to have been machine gunned by low flying planes. The air ministry announced that two were damaged.

One officer was killed and 32 seamen were wounded when a German

HITLER MASSES SOLDIERS ALONG BALTIC SHORES

Eyes Neutrality of Scandinavia.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 9.—A steadily increasing number of German troops has appeared along the shores of the Baltic sea on a line stretching from Luebeck to Danzig, it was disclosed today. Luebeck is a German port about 150 miles southwest of the southern tip of Sweden. It is about 400 miles west of Danzig.

This military movement was regarded by diplomats as highly significant in view of the campaign being waged between the Germans and the English and Scandinavians about the neutrality of Sweden and Norway in the Russian-Finnish war. Germany repeatedly has sounded the warning that if British and French troops went to Finland's aid thru Norway and Sweden the neutrality of the Scandinavian countries would be considered violated.

Need Swedish Iron Ore.

Leading Nazis in private conversations have left no doubt in the minds of foreign correspondents that the Nazis are beginning to identify themselves with the soviet cause in the conflict in Finland. They did not do so immediately after the Russian invasion of Finland.

Sweden's iron ore is of the greatest importance to the Germans and they are not ready to permit the region where it is produced "to lose its neutrality."

As matters stand now the Germans do not intend to send troops to the aid of their ally, Russia—no open military alliance having been signed between Germany and Russia. However, the idea that Germany "may have to take action" to save the reputation of the soviets and "ensure the neutrality of the Swedish ore and mine regions" is gaining ground among the Nazis.

Assails England and Jews.

"England and the Jews must be annihilated," Robert Ley, chief of all German labor forces, told the 23 million workers and employers welded together in his organization.

"England intellectually, politically, and economically has become the prey of Jewry," he said.

While he assured the labor front that Germany is a country of "social justice and fair distribution of all goods," many workers are unable to work because of a lack of coal.

Soldiers Haul Coal.

The coal shortage provided extra work for soldiers in the Berlin garrison to whom residents of the capital refer jokingly as the "new unemployed." One can see men in uniforms of the air force carting coal into office buildings. All students have been summoned to help in unloading and distributing coal and foodstuffs. Their duties will begin in February. Civilians can be seen pushing or pulling improvised substitutes for wheelbarrows on which they lug coal home to their families.

Authorities asserted the coal shortage was merely a matter of transportation.

HITLER MUST CHOOSE

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 9 (AP).—Foreign observers tonight asserted that the defensive alliance reported to have been arranged by Hungary and Italy in a week-end conference at Venice probably would compel Germany to make an unwilling choice between continued friendship with these two powers and her accord with soviet Russia.

While reports indicated that the alliance provided for Italy to come to the aid of Hungary in the event of an invasion by either Germany or Russia, informed sources said it was directed mainly against Russia.

Report Horthy Approves.

Foreign Minister Count Stephan Csaky hurried directly from the station today to Premier Count Paul Teleki and his ministers to report on his negotiations with Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Afterward Teleki and Csaky went to the palace for an audience with Hungary's regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy. Informed sources said both Horthy and the cabinet welcomed the reported alliance.

Observers closely watched Berlin, where Adolf Hitler was said to be consulting his advisers on how to reconcile Russian friendship and German ties with Hungary and Italy.

Should Hitler decide to sign a def-nite military alliance with Russia, competent circles in Budapest said he probably could not avoid an open break with Hungary and Italy.

[A Belgrade dispatch said quantities of Italian military planes recently have begun to arrive in Hungary, presumably as a result of the Italian guarantee of Hungary's frontiers. The Italian pilots who delivered the planes remained in Hungary, indicating there was more than a simple commercial deal.]

Offer Help to Rumania.

Authoritative sources said the Italian and Hungarian foreign ministers had agreed to offer to help Rumania against a possible Russian invasion in return for a settlement of Hungary's demands on Rumania's Transylvania—which was Hungarian before the world war. Ciano was said to have urged Hungary not to seek a settlement of this issue by force. These sources said King Carol of Rumania would be pressed for a definite reply to this offer.

Late today informed sources said Csaky had given up his plan to return to Italy tomorrow to report on his government's attitude toward the alliance. This was taken as evidence that both governments fully approved the proposed accord.

Italy May Change Envoys.

ROME, Jan. 9 (AP).—Diplomatic circles heard today that new ministers to Bulgaria and Jugo-Slavia would be appointed to further Premier Mussolini's policy of warding off the danger of war in the Balkans by aiding amicable settlement of territorial disputes.

Reports were that Count Massimo Magistrati, counselor of the Berlin embassy for the past three years, would be named minister to Bulgaria, and that Francesco Mamelo, minister to Portugal, might be appointed envoy to Jugo-Slavia.

The Italian ambassador to Moscow, Augusto Rosso, returned to Rome today and was expected to remain indefinitely in view of reports that the Russian ambassador to Rome, Nicolai Gorelchin, now in Moscow, would not return.

Little Entente to Confer.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 9.—The Balkan entente—Jugo-Slavia, Rumania, Greece and Turkey—has been convoked to meet at Belgrade on Feb. 2, 3 and 4. Rumanian official circles declare that Premier George Tatarescu does not intend to go abroad for the time being. This declaration was made in connection with the rumors that the Rumanian foreign minister would go to Italy now to see Foreign Minister Count Ciano.

'SECRET WEAPON' OF REDS COMES TO GRIEF IN FINLAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROVANIEMI, Finnish Lapland, Jan. 9.—Among the spoils captured by the Finns after their victories at Lake Kianta and Suomussalmi was a specimen of the Reds' new "secret weapon," an armored, propeller driven, "ice tank" designed for winter operations on Finland's frozen lakes.

The device, known as an "aeroslan," has a torpedo shaped body set on broad and long steel runners. Useing an airplane motor and propeller and steered by means of an airplane rudder, it developed a maximum speed of 62 miles per hour. It was piloted by one man, a second attended a machine gun and a third a light cannon. The Russians developed the aeroslans on the Siberian snow fields where they were used to run down prisoners fleeing from concentration camps and mines.

The Russians had hoped the device would create the same fright among the enemy as did the British tanks when they first appeared on the western front in 1917. But the Finns quickly discovered how to deal with the aeroslans. The vehicles had great speed when driving forward, but had to slow down almost to a stop to make turns. The Finnish machine gunners held their fire until just the right time.

AID TO FINLAND BEING STUDIED BY ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—President Roosevelt disclosed today that he was considering means of extending assistance to Finland in her war against Russia. Reporters mentioned proposals in congress for lending $60,000,000 to Finland and making available the army's new Garand rifle. Mr. Roosevelt was asked whether he had anything to say about them. He responded that he could not do so yet, but that he probably would have something to say next week. He said he was talking it over with the state department.

Russia Drowns Out Finnish Propaganda Broadcasts

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 9.—The Russian government today started broadcasting on the same wavelength as the Finnish high power station at Lahti, thus making it impossible for Russians to listen in on Finnish propaganda broadcasts. Three Leningrad listeners have been penalized for listening to Finnish broadcasts. One was sentenced to 25 years in prison, the others to 10 years. The first one started the listening and thus was considered a traitor.

DUBLIN, Ireland, Jan. 9 (AP).—Police made raids on both sides of the Ireland-Northern Ireland [Eire - Ulster] border today and seized 120,000 rounds of ammunition reported stolen by the outlawed Irish Republican army.

New raids in Meath and Kildare counties, south of the border, brought the total of the recovered ammunition within 100,000 rounds of the 1,000,000 stolen Dec. 23 from the arsenal in Phoenix park in Dublin.

Strike Ties Up Ulster Paper.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Jan. 9 (AP)—A stay-in strike of 17 pressmen which prevented the appearance today of the Irish News, leading Nationalist newspaper of Northern Ireland, ended when the men removed their barricades 14 hours after the strike began.

The paper will resume publication tomorrow. Whether the workers' demands for higher wages were granted was not disclosed.

Locked Selves in Pressroom.

Newspaper officials said the men locked themselves in the pressroom overnight.

"We are staying here until we get a living wage," the strikers shouted thru a locked door this morning.

NAZIS CAPTURE FIRST BRITISH ARMY OFFICER

BERLIN, Jan. 9 (AP).—The German official news agency, DNB, today reported the capture of the first British officer on the western front. The officer, a wounded artilleryman who died in a hospital, was captured Sunday by German advance guards, DNB said.

The DNB report stated that an enemy scouting troop was repulsed in sharp fighting in a heavy fog and the British officer was found after the French had retreated. Since German scouting had failed to disclose the presence of British troops in the front lines, DNB said, it was presumed the British officer was with the French scouts as an observer.

MOSCOW ADMITS RETREAT AFTER FIGHT WITH FINNS

Tells of Fierce Encounter Near Suomussalmi.

MOSCOW, Jan. 10, Wednesday (AP).—An official communique early today admitted the Red army had withdrawn "several kilometers east of Suomussalmi" as a result of severe fighting in that sector on the Finnish eastern front. [A kilometer is .62 of a mile.]

The text of the Russian communique said:

"On Jan. 9, in the Ukhta sector, fighting between infantry units took place, as a result of which soviet troops withdrew several kilometers east of Suomussalmi.

"In the Repola and Petrozavodsk sectors, there were activities of scouting detachments. [These sectors are north of Lake Ladoga.]

"On the Karelian isthmus there was infrequent artillery fire.

"Aviation activities were restricted by unfavorable weather."

Reds Worn Out, Finns Say.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 9 (AP).—Finland today reported a lull on all fronts and official spokesmen interpreted this as indicating that soviet Russia's invading armies, smashed by the defenders, now are exhausted, at least for the moment.

A high Finnish official said that the Russians apparently were gathering strength for a new assault, but expressed the belief that no important Red army offensive could be expected for some time.

This observation was made in connection with today's Finnish army communique, the shortest yet issued by the Finns, which said simply:

"LAND: Except for patrol and artillery activity on both sides, Jan. 8 passed quietly everywhere.

"SEA: No operations.

"AIR: On the air front nothing worth mentioning."

Result of Major Defeat.

The Finnish spokesman indicated that the military standstill was the result of the sweeping defeat which the Finns reported yesterday they had inflicted upon the Russian 44th division.

"We can't have a victory like yesterday's every day," he said, "but today's communique is very significant."

Remnants of the 44th, which the Finns said they destroyed in a big battle southeast of Suomussalmi on the central eastern front, killing thousands, today were reported unofficially to be roaming aimlessly thru the cold, wild region, many facing imminent death by freezing or starving.

The victorious Finns were said to be using ski troops to round up Russians of both the 44th and the similarly defeated 163d division, which the Finns reported routing late last month near Lake Kianta, a few miles north of Suomussalmi.

Estimate 6,000 Killed.

Altogether between 10,000 and 15,000 Red soldiers were said unofficially to be retreating over perilous terrain toward the Russian border in the Suomussalmi sector as a result of last week's action. It was said that about 6,000 Russians were killed. The Finnish army reported officially that it had taken 1,000 prisoners in the engagement with the 44th alone.

President Kyosti Kallio, receiving the foreign press at the presidential palace, said he hoped "to draw attention to the inhuman treatment by the soviet union of our civilian population behind the front." The Russians, he said, in the first month of the war bombed about 100 localities; dropping nearly 4,000 bombs, killing 234 civilians, seriously injuring 269 and slightly injuring 210.

Finland's national income is "sinking rapidly," in the words of Prime Minister Risto Ryti, and she must have foreign credits to finance her defense against soviet Russia. Ryti's statement picturing the wartime crippling of Finnish export trade was issued last night.

"Our exports are sufficient to pay only a part of the expenditure for arms and munitions," he said. He added that Finland would meet any new obligations "as faithfully as we have done up to now."

Tells of Outside Aid.

GENEVA, Jan. 9 (AP).—Rudolf Holsti, Finland's league of nations representative, tonight said Finland's plea to the league "for practical help—not words" in her war with Russia was being realized.

"Aid comes now in planes, guns and ammunition to fight the aggressor and medical supplies to heal the wounded. The world only will know how much help we are receiving when our war is ended," he said.

Informed sources disclosed that representatives of the various states helping the Finns had agreed on a "chain system" of speeding help. Whenever possible, help promised the Finns in medical supplies, food and munitions is sent from supplies in Sweden and Norway. The Swedish and Norwegian stocks then are built up by shipments from the country originally offering the aid. The chain system cuts to days the delivery of goods which might normally take weeks.

Brazil, not a league member, was the latest nation to inform league officials she would help Finland.

Helsingfors Hotel Burns.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Jan. 9 (AP).—Reports from Helsingfors today said the Bristol hotel there burned before dawn. Finnish authorities are investigating the possibility of incendiarism.

Ship Capsizes at Panama Pier; Baby, Seaman Drown

PANAMA CITY, Panama, Jan. 9 (AP).—Two persons drowned today when the 335 ton diesel ship Chiriqui capsized at a pier in Pedegral, province of Chiriqui. Leif, baby son of Carl Axel Janson, manager of the line, and a native seaman were drowned. Mrs. Janson and Mrs. Blanche Lupfer, wife of the chief clerk of the executive department of the Panama Canal, and a 2½ year old daughter of the Jansons were saved. Cause of the accident has not been determined.

PARIS, Jan. 9 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Andrew G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian expeditionary force, and his staff arrived in France today. The first division of the Canadians is undergoing training in England.

Six Ships Sunk

Crosses mark approximate locations where ships were reported sunk by mines or by air attacks. These include a British liner, two British steamers, two Danish ships, and a Dutch motor vessel.

plane bombed and machine gunned the Trinity House, a light ship tender, off the coast of Norfolk.

The Trinity House was crowded with 40 men returning from lightship duty after their Christmas leaves.

Wounded survivors who were brought ashore in lifeboats told how the raider swooped down, registering several direct hits with bombs and then sprayed the vessel with machine gun bullets as the men raced for lifeboats. The attack lasted 30 minutes. The German plane then sped away with six British fighting planes in pursuit.

Two German bombers attacked a small steamer off the same coast and dropped more than 40 bombs. The vessel fired at the plane with its stern guns and zigzagged to escape being hit. Crowds on shore watched the battle.

Two other vessels were attacked off Scotland. Two German planes attacked a steamer. Bomb explosions were heard on shore. German flyers also bombed a lightship off the Scottish coast, but no damage was reported.

Two German raiders flying at a great height circled towns in the Firth of Tay area. Another bomber was reported to have crossed the coast at the Firth of Forth, British naval base in Scotland. British fighters soared up in pursuit. No bombs were dropped.

The British admiralty refuted a German statement that the attacked vessels were under convoy. It charged that the German aerial raiders were launching attacks on "small unescorted merchant vessels."

The German version of the raids as broadcast was that several "armed patrol vessels and merchant ships sailing in convoys were attacked and destroyed."

British fighters went up to combat the raiders, the air ministry announced, but "owing to bad visibility no contact was made."

Hunt U-Boats Off Canaries.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Jan. 9 (AP).—A search by British warships for a German submarine supply base near the Canary islands was reported here tonight after the arrival of the second British ship to elude submarine attacks in that area.

Passengers on the Blue Star liner Avila Star, which sailed southward tonight, were quoted by the newspaper A Noite as saying three submarines attacked her altho she was convoyed by British and French cruisers. One submarine was reported sunk in the ensuing fight while the Avila Star escaped.

A gun battle between the Highland Patriot and a German submarine on Dec. 29 off the Canaries was related yesterday when that Royal Mail liner arrived here. The Highland Patriot was not hit and the submarine fled.

ENGLAND RENEWS DRIVE TO INDUCE U. S. TO JOIN WAR

Press Sees Roosevelt as Empires' Champion.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 9. — British public opinion appears to be getting the conviction that it is only a matter of time before the Roosevelt administration induces the American people to abandon their neutrality and enter the war on the side of Great Britain and France.

In the press and public utterances the point is stressed that its neutrality will not secure America from the menace of Adolf Hitler and that this war is a moral challenge to American ideals and freedom.

What seems to be a renewed propaganda onslaught to get the United States to join in open hostilities is under way. The war, which has not yet exploded except on the sea and in the air, is heralded not as an ordinary war but as something of a crusade in which America cannot afford to stay out.

Give Credit to Roosevelt.

Articles in today's press indicate that the political circles here believe that good progress has been made in influencing public opinion in America to abandon its neutrality. Credit is given to President Roosevelt for this tendency which is alleged to be taking place.

The papers assert that the tenor of Mr. Roosevelt's last message to congress, as compared with what he said last September, shows that America is moving slowly, but steadily, toward participation in the war under Mr. Roosevelt's guidance.

The Daily Telegraph declares: "President Roosevelt promised America's fullest coöperation in reorganization of international trade. The promise is most welcome, but it still leaves a gaping void. Nevertheless, any one who compares the President's last message to congress with that of 10 weeks ago cannot fail to note a striking difference in tone. It is the difference between 'we are determined never to enter this war' and 'we will not enter this war unless——.'

"American public opinion often moves in what seems to us a mysterious way, but it moves and is moving and with the American President for its guide and interpreter one may be reasonably confident of its general direction."

Beaverbrook Behind Drive.

The growing belief by some persons in England that the United States will under Mr. Roosevelt abandon its neutrality is linked with the campaign started last Saturday by Lord Beaverbrook, the press lord. He sought to show that the British in 1917 thought the money then advanced to them by congress for prosecuting the war was an outright gift and not a loan, together with the idea that collection of war debts by the American government was a cruel and mean afterthought.

The Daily Telegraph for the past two days has been developing the theme of American abandonment of neutrality, pointing out the parallel of the present moment with that of 1916 when Woodrow Wilson was elected President on a "He kept us out of war" program and shortly afterward moved in the direction of war.

The Telegraph tells the Americans that if the empire countries lose this war it will be bad commercially for America and the circle of customers for American business will be greatly restricted.

Call It "Freedom War."

It expresses the belief that England and France now are fighting the battle of freedom in behalf of America as well as of Europe and declares: "If the United States had accepted a more reasonable rôle than that of an onlooker at the European conferences of 1919 until 1930 the results might have been different."

Declaring that no nation is so responsive as the American to an appeal to its sentiment, the Daily Telegraph stresses the special crusade nature of this war.

"Nations, like individuals, will not throw themselves into a crusade by some overpowering emotion, whether of faith or fear," it says. "Hence the sacred cause of the allies needs a powerful and continuous presentation to the conscience of those who at present do not see the danger near or are lukewarm in their support of privileges won and transmitted to them by their forefathers."

In seeking to get America in on this "sacred cause" of Great Britain and France and a crusade "not to make the world safe for democracy but safe for decent governments and decent nations to live," the Daily Telegraph quotes Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, as saying that this tragic mess in Europe is the direct and overwhelming fault and responsiblity of America for not having years ago taken a hand in European affairs.

Makes Appeal

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Mrs. Edith Dahl in Washington yesterday to make appeal for husband, flyer held prisoner in Spain.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—Mrs. Edith Dahl, actress wife of an American aviator who fought for the Loyalists in Spain's civil war, won a promise of help from the state department today in her efforts to free him from a Spanish prison hospital.

R. Walton Moore, counselor of the department, assured her that the department would send another communication to Madrid seeking the release of her husband, Harold Dahl of Champaign, Ill.

Dahl has been in custody since he "bailed out" of his fighting plane July 12, 1937.

Moore told her that a member of the American embassy staff saw Dahl several weeks ago, she said.

PREMIER WARNS ENGLAND A HARD WAR LIES AHEAD

Bars Easy Peace; Assails Red Attack on Finns.

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain today warned the British people that they are approaching what he called a phase of the war much grimmer than anything yet seen, but he envisaged a reward for their sacrifices in a peacetime federation of European or world nations built upon British-French collaboration.

The prime minister spoke at a lord mayor's luncheon at Mansion house. It was the first of a series of speeches by which the government seeks to bring home to the people what they are up against in their conflict with what Chamberlain called the powers of wickedness.

Chamberlain did not mention the removal from the cabinet last week of Leslie Hore-Belisha, secretary of war.

Premier Flays Germany.

The prime minister gave no quarter to Germany and left no avenue for an easy peace.

He warned the German people that they must realize that the responsibility for prolongation of this war and all the suffering it may bring in the coming year is theirs, as well as that of what he called the tyrant who stands over them. He said that the idea that Britain wants to annihilate the German people was a fantastic and malicious invention.

He said he profoundly agreed with President Roosevelt's message to Pope Pius XII., in which Mr. Roosevelt said that the forces of evil could be overcome only by friendly association by the seekers of light and peace everywhere. But, he added:

"If the forces of right are to prevail, we must not hesitate to risk our blood and our treasure to so great an end."

Touches on European Union.

The prime minister touched on the idea of a United States of Europe, a political dream since the time of Napoleon and already hinted at by Edouard Daladier, premier of France. Speaking of the present military, political, economic, and financial coöperation between France and Great Britain, he said it might even develop into something wider and deeper because, he declared, there is nothing which would do more to facilitate the task of peaceful reconstruction which has got to be taken some time; there is nothing which would contribute more toward the permanence of its results than the extension of Anglo-French collaboration in finance and economics to other nations in Europe and, indeed, perhaps of the whole world.

He suggested that Britain and France were finding their alliance so valuable that when the war is over neither of them will want to give it up.

By contrast, Chamberlain called the alliance between Germany and soviet Russia an unholy pact.

Promises Aid to Finns.

"And now," he said, "it is the turn of Finland to be attacked by the power [soviet Russia] with whom Germany made an unholy pact and for whom she sets the example of aggression. Finland is fighting against the forces of unscrupulous violence just as we are ourselves. She is fighting for the same thing—for liberty and for justice. That valiant people can rest assured that our response to that resolution [for aid to Finland] which was passed so recently at a meeting of the league of nations in Geneva will be no mere formality."

Much of Chamberlain's 55 minute speech, which was broadcast to the United States and many other parts of the world, was devoted to a report on the progress of the war and warnings of the struggle to come.

Land and air events so far he described as merely preliminary to the real conflict. He found the sea the only place where he could say war was in full operation, and he termed Britain's progress there not unsatisfactory.

By capture, sinking and scuttling, he said the German fleet, which at the beginning of the war was less than a quarter of Britain's, had lost 228,000 tons. Most of it, he went on, was bottled up in the Baltic or in foreign ports.

Minimizes British Losses.

Submarine, mine, and raider attacks on Britain's fleet, he declared, had produced only meager results. The net British loss he put at 122,000 tons. He arrived at this figure by subtracting from Britain's losses by enemy action or by ordinary marine casualties England's gains from captures from Germany, by new ships or by transfers from foreign flags.

This 122,000 tons, he said, was less than one per cent of the British merchant fleet.

"And every day, now," he continued, "there are passing to and fro upon the several oceans of the world no less than 11,000,000 tons of British shipping."

Chamberlain placed against the loss of the battleship Royal Oak and the aircraft carrier Courageous the defeat and later self-destruction of the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee which, he said, not only cleared the south Atlantic of that raider but inflicted irreparable damage upon German naval prestige thruout the world.

Cites German Difficulties.

German leaders themselves, he charged, are confessing by implication their increasing economic difficulties caused by inexorable pressure of sea power.

Chamberlain said extensive measures such as evacuation of cities and air raid defenses had occasioned much hardship, inconvenience, loss of money and loss of life, but he warned the public that the danger of air raids is not over and said these measures must continue.

Reviewing the war legislation since the start of the war, he said between 2,500,000 and 2,750,000 men have been registered for war duty under the compulsory service act, in addition to civilian defense services.

Fears Air Raids.

"Those are vast preparations," he continued, "and they have occasioned a good deal of hardship, inconvenience, loss of money, and loss of life in street accidents. And then four months have gone by and the air raids have not come. Some people think it is disappointing. And it is perhaps not surprising that others should ask whether, after all, these precautions were necessary, and whether we have not gone a great deal too far in the direction of safety.

"I wish I could take that view, but all I am going to say now about it is this: I do not consider that the risk of air raids is over, or even that it is diminished, and as long as that is so I am certain that we should make a capital mistake if we were to reverse the policy that we have hitherto followed.

"We mustn't think because this war has not taken the form hitherto that it did in 1914, that we can carry on our lives as if we were still at peace. We have got to do without a lot of things that we shall miss very much, and I am going to try to show you what.

Speaks of Unemployment.

"Altho we are not yet actually fighting on land, we are making preparations to enable us to do so with the greatest effect whenever the right moment comes, and for that purpose we are devoting more and more of our man power to the production of armaments. That must mean that there is less and less of our man power available to produce civilian goods. And you may say to me, 'But haven't we got a great army of unemployed? And why can't they be used to produce these goods?'

"My answer to that is, first of all, that the figures of unemployment are, to some extent at any rate, misleading. They include quite a large number of people, perhaps half a million, of those who are merely passing from one job to another.

"And as to the rest, the situation is only temporary, because the great bulk of those who can be usefully so employed will gradually be absorbed as we go on extending the number of firms who are engaged upon armament work, while in the engineering industry alone, including aircraft or air engine factories, we shall want hundreds of thousands more.

"This demand for labor, for the purposes of armaments, is going to make it impossible for them at the same time to be producing civilian goods in the quantities which we have enjoyed hitherto. Even supposing we had ample supplies of labor, we should still have to curtail our imports of goods which are not necessary for the prosecution of the war."

Says Rich Are Hard Hit.

Chamberain said the British system of tax collecting had gone a long way to prevent unreasonable profits being made out of armaments, and he contended that price control measures had reduced the income of the wealthier classes.

At the same time, he said, the small wage earners must make sacrifices. He declared it would be a mistake to tie up wages to the cost of living. The premier said this would only give an impetus to the vicious spiral of alternately rising prices and wages. He urged the people to put their money into war savings certificates instead of spending it.

Chamberlain forecast that rationing, which began yesterday with certain articles of food, will be extended to other commodities if the necessity for that becomes apparent.

UPROAR OVER RED DEPUTIES HALTS FRENCH CHAMBER

Socialists Try to Toss Communists Out.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 9.—A violent dispute between four Socialist and seven communist deputies today necessitated a temporary adjournment of the chamber of deputies after the opening of the first ordinary session of parliament since the war began.

Georges Levy-Alphandery.

The chamber was well attended except by the communists, whose party has been outlawed by France for "connivances abroad." Because many of the communist deputies have been arrested and many have escaped abroad to avoid punishment for alleged defeatist activities, there were many empty seats among those reserved for the normal communist representation.

Protest as Reds Take Seats.

Among those present were eight communist deputies who had been mobilized but are now on leave from the army. After the chamber had opened its session four of these communists, with what others considered studied arrogance, walked in and took their seats. A protest started among the rightists, gathered volume as it was taken up by the center, and then crescendoed thru the Socialist left.

Four Socialists, who appeared to expect physical support from the rest of the chamber, attempted to throw the communists out. Georges Levy-Alphandery, who was presiding as the dean of the deputies, then suspended the session until parliamentary order was restored. It was explained that he had no authority to evict deputies, no matter how obstreperous they might become, but expected the chamber to act at its next meeting on Thursday.

Bill Bars All Reds.

The government prepared a bill barring all deputies who have not officially broken relations with the communist party and will present this measure to the chamber on that day.

Levy-Alphandery in his opening address praised the army, which was well represented in the chamber, and every deputy except the communists stood up and applauded. Three of the communists even booed and were officially suspended from the sessions for 15 days.

BRITAIN BALKS NAZI RADIO RUSE TO GET SECRETS

LONDON, Jan. 9. — An official spokesman today said the British admiralty does not intend to let German radio announcers provoke it into disclosing naval secrets. Recently German announcers asked, "Where is the Exeter? Did the Admiral Graf Spee sink her?" The interpretation here is that the Germans were trying to discover whether the Exeter is being repaired at Capetown, the Falkland Islands, or Great Britain. The spokesman warned the British not to believe what they hear from German stations just because the admiralty does not issue a denial.

WARNS OF FALSE MOTIVES IN WAR RELIEF APPEALS

Woman Leader Says Some Are Propaganda.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 9.—A warning to the American public to inquire into the motives behind the numerous "help this and help that" war organizations before shelling out contributions was issued today by Catherine Curtis, well known woman leader and chairman of the Women's National Committee to Keep the United States Out of War.

Miss Curtis declared especial caution should be exercised with those groups using child appeal and "tugging at the mother's heart strings" to obtain American dollars and sympathy. Thru such quasipropaganda organizations, she declared, Americans are subtly drawn closer to participation in the European conflict.

A newly formed group which precipitated Miss Curtis' remarks is the Foster Parents' Plan for War Children, Inc., a movement inspired and promoted by the British. This organization is soliciting funds here for refugee children in France.

Special Pleaders Busy.

"So many of these organizations are springing up with their appeal to the emotions," said Miss Curtis. "We should find out who is behind them. Are they American or European? Are they run by left wingers and propagandists? How are the funds expended?"

According to Miss Curtis the programs of women's clubs are being filled these days with special pleaders for the nations at war.

"It would be better for the women if they started to focus their attention on our own domestic affairs," she said. "They should be examining the bills before congress which tend more and more to take away our personal liberties and confiscate our property."

Miss Curtis, whose committee against war participation is nonpartisan, achieved prominence with her fight against President Roosevelt's court packing plan thru formation of the Women's National Committee for Hands off the Supreme Court. She also defied the Black senate committee investigating lobbies several years ago by refusing to turn over her records.

Sponsored by Duchess.

The Foster Parents' Plan for War Children was sponsored originally by the duchess of Atholl, former member of the British parliament, and is an outgrowth of a similar scheme on behalf of Spanish children. Other British sponsors include the earl of Listowel and Viscount Cecil of Chelwood.

Eric G. Muggeridge, a Briton, is executive secretary of the organization. He has been in this country recently seeking funds for trucks, food, and clothing. Several colonies of children have been established near Biarritz, France, where directors, teachers, and nurses look over Spanish boys and girls. It is planned to set up similar colonies for French children.

Considerable Progress Made.

Apparently the plan has made considerable progress in this country. Among those who have "adopted" children are Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Herbert Hoover, Helen Hayes, Tallulah Bankhead, and Orson Wells.

Foster Parents' plan, however, is not the only movement of this kind. James R. Angell, former president of Yale university and now head of the English Speaking union, principal outlet for British propaganda in this country, came forward recently with a proposal that English evacuated children be taken into American homes.

International Save the Children Fund of America, a sister organization of the British Save the Children Fund, distributes money thru representatives in England and is allied with the League of Nations.

Kindergarten Unit, Inc., organized during the last war, provides food, clothing and supplies for its community house at Lievin, Pas-de-Calais, France, for French children. Lafayette Preventorium, Inc., seeks funds for undernourished French children.

Accuses Husband

MRS. FLORRAINE KELSEY.

Mrs. Florraine Kelsey, 30 years old, yesterday obtained from Judge Joseph B. Drucker of the Felony court a warrant charging her ex-husband, James C. Kelsey, with conspiracy to obstruct justice.

The warrant will be forwarded to Great Meadows, N. J., where Kelsey, publisher of a financial statistical service, is at liberty on bond pending extradition hearings. He is charged with kidnaping his daughter, Rosanna, 4. Mrs. Kelsey said he kept the child longer than he was permitted under a divorce decree.

The conspiracy charge is based on an admission by Charles English, 25, of 2818 Lexington street. Capt. Daniel Gilbert of the state's attorney's police said English admitted being paid $1,000 by Kelsey to place Mrs. Kelsey in a compromising position so Kelsey would have ground for divorce.

MONEY IN MAILS CAUSES HITCH IN U. S. SEA PROTEST

Admit British Right to Seize Cash.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—Altho the administration has protested against British interference with American mails, it will not let its objections be used to promote the passage of checks, money orders, and securities to Germany in American postal sacks, thus aiding the Nazis in financing the war.

The note sent to Britain on the subject of the mails said nothing about checks nor orders for money. The protest simply refused to admit the right of British authorities to interfere with American mails on the high seas or to censor mail on ships which involuntarily enter British ports. It is reported that the state department does not feel free to object to British search of American mails which contain drafts for money destined for Germany.

Contraband to Both Sides.

One reason is that such paper is absolute contraband by both British and German definitions. Another reason is that the United States conceded this right to Britain during the world war. The question then arises: How are the British to seize the checks and drafts for Germany unless they open the mail?

The controversy between the two countries over mail seems likely to center on censorship of American private mails addressed to Germany or neutral countries and taken off ships which have involuntarily entered British ports.

Millions Sent to Germany.

In former years the flow of immigrants' remittances from the United States to Germany was heavy; now it is much less. An estimate for 1938 was between 7½ and 10 million dollars.

The United States insists that Britain refrain from blocking at least those highly technical German exports necessary for the continuance of certain American businesses, but does not insist that checks, money orders, and the like in payment for these purchases be permitted to go thru to Germany.

BANDITS ROB TAVERN OF $1,700.

Two bandits took $1,700 last night in a raid on Felix Bacci's tavern at 400 South Western avenue. Bacci had obtained the funds to cash pay roll checks from a factory in the neighborhood.

AMERICAN TRADE ISSUE PERILS LIFE OF TOKIO CABINET

Rice Shortage and Price Rise Also a Worry.

TOKIO, Jan. 9 (AP).—Resignation of the cabinet of Premier Gen. Nobuyuki Abe as soon as organization is completed of a new Japanese dominated central government in China was predicted in political circles today.

The cabinet's failure to achieve any considerable improvement in relations with the United States of America was regarded as likely to prove the primary cause for the predicted fall. Others were the inability to end the conflict in China and a domestic rice shortage which caused steep price increases.

Japan has evidenced anxiety over the trade treaty with the United States, which expires on Jan. 26.

Formation of the new China régime, to administer Japanese occupied territories and be headed by Wang Ching-wei, was approved by the cabinet yesterday. Wang is a former premier of China, who has been at odds with the Chungking government.

It was understood here that his régime was to be launched at once, without immediate powers, but a Japanese military spokesman in Peking said this could not be accomplished in January.

New Raids on Railway.

HONGKONG, Jan. 9 (AP).—New Japanese air raids on the Haiphong-Kunming [Yunnan] railroad, China's "lifeline" into French Indo-China, were reported today by the Japanese army.

For the second successive day the Mengtsz sector, near the border, was the objective. The Japanese command said railway bridges and tracks were "damaged greatly."

A bridge 45 miles north of the French border was reported unfit for use for at least a month, and the line was reported damaged in several other places.

This was an important route for Chinese supplies and its crippling, coming a few weeks after the fall of Nanning cutting the highway route thru Kwangsi province, constitutes a severe blow for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Chinese Claim Victories.

The Chinese reported "smashing victories" in northern Kwangtung province and said Japanese columns suffered extremely heavy losses while being driven back 20 miles toward Canton. They also said thousands of Japanese reinforcements with tank units were landing at Canton.

Meanwhile, extensive Japanese aerial operations were indicated in a Japanese dispatch which said planes flew across the Ordos plateau in Inner Mongolia and bombed Wuyuan, which was described as a Chinese base.

British police, forewarned of a raid by Chinese bandits on British-leased lands near Hongkong, killed three and wounded several of the marauders in a one hour gun battle today.

Meanwhile, some of the 700 Chinese soldiers interned in Hongkong since the fall of Canton in October, 1938, rioted in the new concentration camp. Armed with boards from their beds, they fought until overpowered by British police.

Riot in Amoy Settlement.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 9 (AP).—The Domei [Japanese] News agency reported from Amoy today that two Chinese officials of the Japanese-dominated local government had been shot and wounded, one seriously, in Kulangsu, Amoy's international settlement. The Domei said the Japanese navy, which controls that South China port, was taking a serious view of the shooting.

NETHERLANDS TO FIGHT FOR ITS NEUTRALITY IF NEED BE, SAYS envoy

Any violation of the Netherlands' neutrality, no matter from what side it comes, will be met with the force of arms, Dr. Alexander Loudon, the Netherlands' minister to the United States, declared here yesterday.

Dr. Loudon spoke at a luncheon of the Knickerbocker Society of Chicago in the Hotel La Salle. He will address the Chicago Association of Commerce at noon today, departing later for Detroit.

Dr. Loudon classed as "unfounded" the report that difficulties in Europe might automatically end Dutch administration in the Netherlands East Indies. Their defense, he said, is autonomous and does not draw materially on the mother country for munitions or reserves.

"Holland always will be ready to fight," he concluded, "for the three pillars of democracy—freedom of speech, freedom of thought, freedom of religion."

Nazis Jail Girl for Love Affair with War Prisoner

WEIMAR, Germany, Jan. 9.—Anna Hoffman, 19 years old, today was sentenced by a special court to seven years in the penitentiary and five years' loss of civil rights for having had intimate relations with a Polish war prisoner. The state's attorney had demanded five years in the penitentiary but the court decided to add two years in view of proof that the girl had maintained the relationship for some time tho aware that it was forbidden.

BRITISH CABINET BARS ARMY RULE OVER AIR FORCE

Marshal Named to Direct Flyers in France.

LONDON, Jan. 9 (AP).—An official communique tonight disclosed that a majority of the war cabinet, apparently overriding Leslie Hore-Belisha, then war minister, had decided early in December to place Royal Air force units in France under the command of a single air force officer.

Hore-Belisha, whose ouster as war minister has stirred up a storm, is reported unofficially to have favored army control for the R. A. F. units.

Air Force Chief Named.

The communique disclosed that Air Marshal Arthur S. Barratt had been appointed air officer commander in chief in France. He was made responsible, in consultation with British army commanders in chief on the spot and with French air commanders, for insuring the most effective support both of the British and French armies by the R. A. F. He will be responsible to the air ministry in London.

The communique said the arrangement meant that there was no change in the present relationship between army and R. A. F., which in Britain are separate armed services.

Probe Letter Assailing Jews.

While the storm over the removal of Hore-Belisha continued to brew, war office officials examined an unsigned letter, headed "A call to all loyal Englishmen," which made a violent attack on Hore-Belisha and the Jewish race.

It charged that the army, navy, and royal air force are under control of Jews and aliens.

It was written on war office notepaper, presumably stolen. It had been circulated widely through the mails and was said to have reached army officers.

Hore-Belisha Sees King.

Hore-Belisha surrendered his seal of office in a final audience with King George VI. of Great Britain at Buckingham palace this afternoon.

It was learned that advertisments in support of Hore-Belisha were submitted to a number of newspapers last night but were rejected because the advertising agency offering them refused to divulge the name of the sponsor.

"We must have Hore-Belisha," was the heading of a half page advertisment in Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard.

Unsigned and giving rise to rumors that Beaverbrook himself might have inserted it, the advertisment said:

"If all our statesmen had the power to override convention and tradition in order to win the war, we might be able to view the loss of Leslie Hore-Belisha with equanimity.

Itemizes His Work.

"But as it is, we have Chamberlain; we have Churchill, and we had Hore-Belisha."

Hore-Belisha's services to the army and his work in transporting it to France were itemized, with the comment:

"You can't make omelettes without breaking eggs. You cannot reform and reinvigorate the entire tradition of an army without treading on some people's corns."

In thick black type was the statement:

"We can't lose Hore-Belisha. He must come back to the war cabinet."

Military sources insisted that Hore-Belisha's ouster came from a recent secret session of parliament and not from a quarrel with the army old guard.

Sources close to the government indicated that appointment of Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, as head of a new ministry of defense may be expected.

There were no casualties and no damage. The island is just north of the German island base of Sylt.

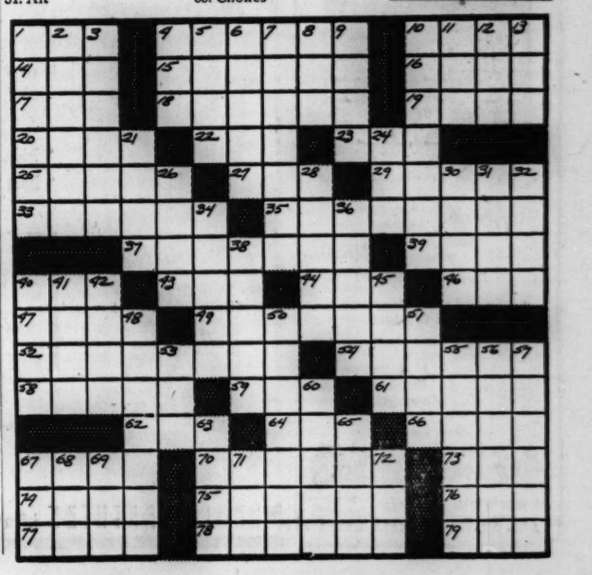
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



VANDENBERG HITS PLANS TO POLICE NEUTRALITY BELT

Fights 65 Millions Asked to Outfit Patrol Fleet.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—President Roosevelt's request for an appropriation of $65,000,000 in the deficiency defense bill to pay part of the cost of patroling the so-called neutrality belt proclaimed in the declaration of Panama was denounced today by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.].

Senator Walsh.

Senator Vandenberg issued a statement in which he said the undertaking to police the seas as far as 1,000 miles from the shores of the American nations is contrary to every theory of international law and creates artificial hazards to the peace and neutrality of this country.

Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], chairman of the naval affairs committee, disclosed that $65,392,000 of a $271,999,523 deficiency defense appropriation requested by Mr. Roosevelt is intended to defray the cost of fitting out vessels for neutrality patrol.

Summarizes Annual Costs.

Senator Walsh inserted in the congressional record a summary of actual and requested naval appropriations for the fiscal years 1940 and 1941. The regular appropriations for 1940 totaled $720,78[illegible],461 and the pending $271,999,523 deficiency bill contains a total of $146,049,256 for the navy, of which $65,392,000 is for the recommissioning of old destroyers on neutrality patrol duty.

For the 1941 fiscal year the President has requested regular naval appropriations of $904,540,037, emergency naval appropriations of $123,932,540, and navy public works appropriations of $50,000,000—a total of $1,078,472,577.

Senator Vandenberg and many others in congress have announced their intention of fighting the entire armaments program proposed by Mr. Roosevelt in excess of last year's record breaking appropriations of about 1¾ billion dollars. To finance the proposed increases in armament expenditures, the President has requested new taxes of 460 million dollars.

Lauds Ideal; Assails Methods.

Citing the $65,000,000 item for neutrality patrol expenses as an example of the President's so-called emergency program, Senator Vandenberg declared:

"If the world had agreed to recognize our right to dictate the control of the ocean all the way from 300 to 1,000 miles at sea, it would of course be a marvelous addition to our insulation. But to assume this jurisdiction without mutual consent and to attempt to enforce its recognition runs contrary to every theory of international law, and instead of creating a safety belt it easily can create a provocation belt.

"To assert the ideal as a desirable objective is perfectly sound and I applaud it. But to assert it as a matter of right and to patrol and police it is calculated to create substantial artificial hazards.

Urges Careful Consideration.

"Therefore, an item of 65 million dollars in the new naval budget for fitting out vessels for neutrality patrol challenges serious scrutiny to determine the extent to which the United States is being committed in defense of this vast Pan-American speculation."

The neutrality zone proclamation, sponsored by the Roosevelt administration, was intended to keep naval hostilities out of the waters of the western hemisphere. The European belligerents, however, have refused to recognize the so-called neutrality belt and warships of both Great Britain and Germany have violated it.

Guam Base Row Revived.

While the house appropriations committee prepared to report the $272,000,000 deficiency bill, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, told the house naval affairs committee that the naval budget for the next fiscal year includes $4,000,000 for improvements on the island of Guam in the far Pacific.

This revelation brought an outburst of questioning from committee members, who recalled that congress last year rejected the administration's request for $5,000,000 with which to begin the fortification of Guam as a naval base. The project was rejected on the ground that it would be an affront to Japan.

Admiral Stark said the request for $4,000,000 had been included in the budget for the 14th naval district, with headquarters at Hawaii. This procedure was adopted, he explained, because the navy does not need congressional authorization for work in that district.

No Attempt at Concealment.

"We want you gentlemen to know exactly why we did it that way," Admiral Stark declared. "There was absolutely no intention of trying to cover it up."

The work proposed, he said, is chiefly dredging for construction of breakwaters. He said the present Guam plans are much more limited than the $80,000,000 naval base program recommended by the special Hepburn naval board.

Admiral Stark told the committee that the navy is not considering the construction of 60,000 or 80,000 ton battleships, as suggested by some members of congress. Present studies, he said, indicate that the navy will build ships of 50,000 or 52,000 tons, but no larger.

10 Battleships Projected.

The two battleships for which President Roosevelt last week requested starting funds, Admiral Stark testified, will be "practically" sister ships of the two 45,000 ton vessels for which initial funds were appropriated last year.

With six 35,000 ton vessels now under construction, the four larger ones will make a total of 10 new battleships.

Admiral Stark said the four superbattleships will have a speed of 33 knots and will be equal or superior to anything now contemplated by other countries. While rejecting the idea of 60,000 ton ships, the navy is experimenting with 18 inch guns—two inches larger than the largest now in use—he said.

CHURCHMEN HEAR PRESIDENT TELL HIS PEACE VIEWS

Taylor's Assignment to Vatican Discussed.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—President Roosevelt today told his press conference that his efforts to effect peace in Europe have crystalized into certain definite ideals which he believes must be the prerequisites of any just and lasting peace.

Mr. Roosevelt added, however, he is not prepared to reduce his peace objectives into any factual listing, which might be characterized by such a term as "fourteen points."

The "fourteen points" were offered by President Wilson as the basis of permanent peace during the world war, when Mr. Roosevelt was Wilson's assistant secretary of the navy. The Wilsonian points were transmitted by foreign statesmen into the Versailles peace treaty and league of nations, which were repudiated by the American people.

Confers with Churchmen.

The President previewed his peace objectives with a group of churchmen representing bodies which have criticized the appointment of Myron Taylor, industrialist and lawyer, as Mr. Roosevelt's personal peace ambassador to Pope Pius XII.

The churchmen came away with the impression that Mr. Roosevelt had high hopes his efforts for peace would find some practical encouragement this spring.

Mr. Roosevelt said he has no definite move in view for the spring, but that he is working with all churches so that when and if a favorable occasion arises for a peace move, full religious and moral influence can be brought to bear.

The President told reporters that he had asked the churchmen to maintain secrecy as to his peace ideals and objectives because he does not wish at this time to reduce them to any series of formal proposals.

Relay Members' Criticism.

He acknowledged that the churchmen—representing the United Lutheran church, the Lutheran conference, the Seventh Day Adventists, the Southern Baptists, and the Northern Baptists—had relayed criticism of the Taylor appointment which had developed in their churches.

Churchmen had attacked the appointment as leading to the restoration of diplomatic relations with the Vatican, which were broken off by this country when the Papal states ceased to exist after the unification of Italy.

Because of this criticism it was disclosed that Taylor will not take up a residence at Rome or in the Vatican state, but will reside in Florence and go to the Vatican for conferences as the occasion dictates.

It was revealed that Taylor will come to the White House late in the week for a conference with Mr. Roosevelt. Then he expects to spend a week or two recuperating from an operation before he leaves for Italy.

Says President Is Hopeful.

Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, chairman of the committee on public relations of the Southern Baptist convention, acted as the spokesman for the group of religious leaders after their half hour conference with Mr. Roosevelt.

The churchmen said they discussed with the President the anxiety of their faiths that there should be no development which might jeopardize the complete divorcement of church and state, traditional under the American form of government.

"The President said he appreciated and approved in principle our position on this point," Weaver said. "He added that under no circumstances would any church receive better treatment or greater recognition than any other church."

At a theater here on Nov. 26 Millard is alleged to have said, "Men are joining the army because that is the only way they can be sure of eating regularly."

GEO. F. HARDING'S DAUGHTER SUES TO BREAK WILL

Claims Woman Secretary Dominated Father.

George F. Harding's daughter, Mrs. Mary Harding Thompson of Barrington township, brought suit in Circuit court yesterday to set aside his will. The multimillionaire Republican leader left her an income of $12,000 a year when he died last April 2.

Mrs. Thompson charged that the will did not express the wishes of Harding, but was the creation of Miss Jessie Katz, his confidential secretary for 20 years. Miss Katz's removal as executor of the estate is sought.

Charges False Statements.

The suit said the secretary had been unfriendly to Mrs. Thompson in recent years, and had made false statements to Harding regarding Mrs. Thompson's character and ability to conserve wealth. Mrs. Thompson asserted that her father thought she had no affection for him when the will was drawn last Jan. 20.

Mrs. Thompson charged further that her father had been under opiates at the time the will was drawn, as a result of illness, and did not understand what he was doing. The bill stated that he was under undue influence, domination, and control of Miss Katz.

The major part of the estate of Harding, who was Republican national committeeman from Illinois, is represented in the five million dollar art gallery housed in a miniature French castle adjoining the Harding home at 4853 Lake Park avenue.

Seeks Remainder of Estate.

Mrs. Thompson does not claim the collection, which was incorporated in 1930 to be used as a free public museum. But she seeks the remainder of the estate, which, her bill says, consists of more than a million dollars in real and personal property.

The will directs that this wealth be placed in trust. The daughter's income is to be paid first and the remainder is to be used for the maintenance of the museum.

Mrs. Thompson, the wife of John Walker Thompson, is Harding's only living child.

The bill disclosed that Harding gave his daughter securities worth more than $500,000 in 1928. Mrs. Thompson asserted that he collected and kept the income, which she estimated at $325,000 from the time of the gift until the time of his death.

ACTION ON PAPER MILK BOTTLE O. K. STILL UP IN AIR

Another Month of Delay Looms.

Almost four months ago, the city board of health voted to permit the sale of milk in paper containers, provided the cartons meet standards of sanitation. Since then the board's recommendation has encountered numerous delays. Yesterday one city official said it would be at least another month before the city council or the council's health committee considers the recommendation.

The most recent shelving of the recommendation occurred Nov. 22. Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes told the health committee then that a suit involving paper milk containers might be settled in a month. This suit was a Federal court action brought against the city by Fieldcrest Dairies, Inc., demanding permission to distribute milk in paper "bottles" here.

Settlement Still Pending.

Because of Hodes' statement the committee overruled its chairman, Ald. Joseph Ross [40th] and voted to delay consideration of the approval ordinance until the suit was settled. Ross wanted to hold immediate public hearings on the recommendation.

Settlement of the suit now awaits the filing before Federal Master-in-Chancery Jacob I. Grossman of the city's final brief. Walter Schaefer, assistant corporation counsel, who is representing the city in the suit, said yesterday he expects to file the brief by the middle of next week.

The Fieldcrest brief, a 200 page digest of its case against the city, was filed Dec. 19. The case before the master, which had consumed six months of hearings, was closed Oct. 26.

Four Years of Delays.

A four year story of delay lies behind the effort to legalize the use of paper milk containers in Chicago, altho they are being used in surrounding suburbs. Fieldcrest dairies filed the original petition with the board of health that long ago.

The dairy was informed that the board operated under the 1935 milk ordinance which conformed to the United States public health service model milk ordinance and that it specified "standard milk bottles." The word "bottles" was interpreted to mean glass bottles and not paper containers.

Early last year Fieldcrest dairies brought suit against the city in federal court to force the approval of paper containers. While the hearings before Grossman were in progress the board of health approved the containers after receiving information from Washington that the public health service had no objections to them.

NEW YORK ACTS TO SELL SINGLE GRADE OF MILK

New York, Jan. 9 [Special].—Only one grade of milk, instead of the grade A and grade B that have been dispensed in New York City for several years, will be sold after Sept. 1, under provisions of a resolution tentatively adopted today by the city board of health.

Definite action on changes in the sanitary code and milk regulations paving the way for the one grade standard long favored here, and similar to that already in effect in Chicago, will be delayed until the milk industry and consumers have had ample time to express their opinions, according to Dr. John L. Rice, commissioner of health.

The proposed new grade will be called grade A. City health regulations now require a minimum of 3 per cent butterfat and 11.5 per cent total solids in fluid milk.

HINT AT PERJURY CHARGE AGAINST LAWYER OF NLRB

Committee Pushes Inquiry on Illinois Case.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 [Special].—Edmund M. Toland, general counsel for the house committee investigating the National Labor Relations board, hinted by questions at the hearing today that he believes Jack Davis, a field examiner for the board, may have been guilty of subornation of perjury in a C. I. O. labor dispute in Illinois.

According to evidence brought out at the hearing, Davis had urged witnesses in an NLRB hearing to swear they had been locked out by the American Radiator company at its Litchfield, Ill., plant in July, 1937. It was also asserted he had told company employés he was working for the C. I. O.

This information was placed before the committee in connection with its counsel's efforts to ascertain whether young board attorneys were not given too much latitude in digesting cases and presenting their summaries to the board.

Summarized 2,500 Pages.

The witness being examined at the time was Mrs. Julius Schlezinger, 29 years old, an attorney in the labor board's review division. She summarized more than 2,500 pages of testimony in the NLRB hearing of the American Radiator case at Litchfield.

During examination of Mrs. Schlezinger Toland read a petition of the company which contended she had not presented all the evidence to the board and that she reviewed the case despite the fact she did not hear all the evidence.

The company's petition was filed in the federal Circuit Court of Appeals at East St. Louis, Ill. Altho the NLRB had found against the company, its order finally was withdrawn and the case was settled by filing a consent decree in the appeals court.

Questioned on Board's Decision.

Mrs. Schlezinger was questioned closely before the house committee as to why the labor board had decided the company locked out its employés because of union activity when the board's trial examiner had decided otherwise. The board itself, it was recalled, had reached a tentative decision in accord with his findings.

Attorney Toland asked the witness whether she had called the board's attention to testimony that Davis had informed company employés he was working for the C. I. O. and had asked the employés to testify that the plant locked them out. Mrs. Schlezinger said she had done so.

She then was asked whether she could recall what J. Warren Madden, chairman of the NLRB, had to say about the matter, particularly whether he had said the company attorney's criticism of Davis' conduct should go into the record.

Asks for Definition.

It was in connection with the charge that Davis had asked employés to testify they had been locked out that Toland pressed the witness to state whether she knew what subornation of perjury was. She said she did, and defined it as seeking and urging some one to swear falsely.

The witness said she did not remember what Madden said, but added that she thought he had asserted he was familiar with the situation.

A committee member commented that the type of testimony which Davis allegedly tried to get was the sort of testimony on which the board had based its finding that there had been a lockout.

She's Asked About It.

Asked about this point, Mrs. Schlezinger contended: "The board decided the merits of the case were not affected by anything Mr. Davis said." She contended the lockout conclusion of the board, which was contrary to the finding of the examiner and subsequently was withdrawn, was based on exhibits and the petition of the company.

After Mrs. Schlezinger had insisted during an exchange with Toland that the board did not rely on her judgment at all, she was questioned closely as to how she could summarize thousands of words of testimony for the board without stating findings.

"I simply state what the witnesses said without stating any conclusions or findings," she testified.

"Do you pass on the credibility of witnesses?"

Sometimes Passes on Witness.

"Only when it seems clear to me beyond question that one is telling the truth or not the truth," she answered.

The NLRB's interest in the C. I. O. involved in the American Radiator case—the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers—was indicated by a letter of Charles Fahy, general counsel of the board, which was produced at today's hearing.

The letter, to Miss Dorothea De Schweinitz, regional director of the board at St. Louis, told of Fahy's satisfaction with the outcome of the case. He expressed the belief that the Circuit court eventually would have invalidated the board's finding against the company if the consent decree had not been filed in the Appeals court.

In joining in the consent decree which finally settled the radiator company case, the labor board withdrew an order which had required the company to recognize the C. I. O. union. The decree required the company to bargain collectively with a majority of its workers and to reinstate one worker with back pay. In the meantime the company had reinstated all but four of its employés.

GARAGE SLAYING PROBE EXTENDED TO ALL TERROR

Educators Join Fight on Labor Violence.

The investigation into the goon murder of Marinus Hvid, a north side garage owner, broadened yesterday into a drive against all forms of labor terrorism in Chicago. Among the day's developments were:

1. Representatives of five leading educational institutions in the city enlisted in the campaign to curb labor racketeering and violence. They will meet tomorrow afternoon with a committee of other prominent citizens.

2. W. P. Enzweller, treasurer of the Affiliated Garages of Chicago, a garage owners' association which expelled Hvid last March, was questioned for two and a half hours before the grand jury. A tieup has been charged between this organization and the Auto Livery Chauffeurs, Taxicab Drivers and Garage Helpers' union, which called a strike at Hvid's garage at 3514 North Halsted street a few days after Hvid was expelled from the association.

3. Affiliated Garages offered a $1,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the goons who fatally beat Hvid on the night of Dec. 27.

4. Louis Mikolajczyk, a butcher shop worker, who was assaulted Saturday by two business agents of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters' union, will go before the grand jury today to testify against his assailants. He was to have appeared yesterday but a relapse in his condition caused the postponement.

Hecht Heads Drive.

The citizens' committee recruited to end the labor terror is headed by Frank Hecht, chairman of the all-Chicago council of the Chicago Association of Commerce. It will meet at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in the Red room of the La Salle hotel.

The educators expected to attend at Hecht's invitation, extended yesterday, are Dr. Franklyn Bliss Snyder, president of Northwestern university; Dr. Henry T. Heald, president of Armour Institue of Technology; the Very Rev. Michael O'Connell, president of De Paul university; Henry T. Chamberlain, dean of the school of commerce of Loyola university, and Fred A. Rogers and Clarence L. Clarke, deans of Lewis institute.

Dean Chamberlain will attend on behalf of the Rev. Samuel Knox Wilson, president of Loyola, who is out of the city. President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago also was invited, but his office said yesterday that he cannot attend because of a university board meeting tomorrow afternoon and it is not yet known whether he will send a representative.

"Long Overdue," Says Dr. Heald.

"This enterprise is one long over due," said Dr. Heald, voicing the sentiment also of his education colleagues. "It is proper that the Association of Commerce should take the lead in a drive to stamp out labor terrorism. The colleges and the universities in the city also have a strong interest in accomplishing that end."

The grand jury investigation into the Hvid murder is directed by William Crawford and John Long of State's Attorney Courtney's staff. It was reported that Enzweiler, the treasurer of the garage owners' association, was questioned yesterday concerning details of the organization's operation and management.

Enzweiler was said to have declared that he was treasurer in name only and that Emil Mermall, executive director of the association, completely controled the organization's income of $21,600 a year. On Monday it was disclosed that Mermall's salary was $5,200 a year and his expenses were approximately $9,000. The balance of the income went for rentals and salaries of three employés. He said he was unable to give a detailed account of his outlay for expenses.

Quiz Association Head Today.

B. B. Adams, president of the association, will appear before the grand jury today. Mermall and Capt. Patrick O'Connell of the Town Hall station, who is in charge of the police inquiry into the Hvid slaying, are expected to be witnesses later this week.

The 30 directors of Affiliated Garages met in closed session in the Hotel Sherman. Louis Torch, vice president of the association, presided, and State Senator A. L. Marovitz of the 19th district, counsel for the organization, was present.

The offer of the $1,000 reward in the Hvid case, as announced by Marovitz after the meeting, differs from those in most other cases in that it will be given for the arrest and conviction of the slayers. Such rewards usually are offered for information leading to arrest and conviction.

Marovitz said the directors deplored the killing of Hvid, but asserted their relations with the union were in no way responsible for it. They also denied a charge that the association financed the union in its strike against Hvid's garage.

Jail Term Exposed.

Mermall was given a unanimous vote of confidence by the directors. It was disclosed by the state's attorney's office on Monday that he served 10 days in jail in 1932 after pleading guilty with four others in a conspiracy to defraud the Checker Taxicab company thru a false accident claim.

Joseph Kopsky and Henry Hlavacek, the meat cutters' union agents named as the assailants of Mikolajczyk, the butcher shop worker, have been charged with assault with intent to kill. Hearing of the charges was continued to Jan. 18 in Felony court pending action of the grand jury.

Mikolajczyk, who is 51 years old, was removed to a hospital from his home at 3036 Cullerton avenue early yesterday. Physicians said that a spinal injury which he allegedly incurred in the beating was responsible for his relapse. He was able to return to his home later.

Here's the Record of Police Probe in Garage Murder

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Marinus Hvid, a garage owner who had defied a garage owners' association and a garage workers' union, was beaten into unconsciousness by labor goons 14 days ago. He died 11 days ago. What have police done to catch the killers?

The following is a record of police activity:

At 11:15 p. m. on Dec. 27 the Town Hall police station got a call that a man had been assaulted in front of 655 Buckingham place.

The patrol removed the injured man [Hvid] to the John B. Murphy hospital and then:

DECEMBER 28.

At 1 a. m. on Dec. 28 Capt. Patrick O'Connell was told of the attack. He ordered the arrest of Frank Dougherty, a picket then stationed in front of Hvid's garage at 3514 North Halsted street.

1 a. m. to 7 a. m.—Detectives Peter Harlib and Patrick Maher failed to get evidence of identity of attackers.

7 a. m.—O'Connell called at hospital and was told by Hvid's family of his trouble with the Affiliated Garages of Chicago and with the Auto Livery, Chauffeurs, Taxicab Drivers and Garage Helpers' union. O'Connell had been aware of the picketing.

9 a. m.—Detectives sent to arrest Charles Gilliam, a picket and former employé of Hvid's garage.

10 a. m.—O'Connell questioned Business Agent William Bibby and Secretary Edward Gale of the union after they came voluntarily to the station to inquire about arrest of pickets.

10 a. m.—Police received call from Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for State's Attorney Courtney, who promised coöperation and said Assistant State's Attorney William Crawford had been assigned to case.

10:30 a. m.—O'Connell received telephone call from Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan, who said raids were to be made on union headquarters and offices of garage association. O'Connell sent two detectives to aid in raids.

Noon—Books and records seized in raids. Emil Mermall, executive director of owners' association which had expelled Hvid and which was suspected of being in league with the union; William P. Enzweiler, association treasurer, and Edward Reilly, union president, were taken to state's attorney's office.

5 p. m.—The two were released. Gale and Bibby also were released after police questioning. Dougherty and Gilliam, the pickets, were held.

5 p. m. to midnight—Neighborhood of assault unsuccessfully canvassed for witnesses.

DECEMBER 29.

8 a. m. to midnight—Two more union pickets arrested. Gale and Bibby requestioned. Books of association and union examined in state's attorney's office.

DECEMBER 30.

2 a. m.—Hvid died. Two detectives had been at his bedside constantly.

8 a. m.—Detectives sent out to round up witnesses for inquest. Family interviewed. Questioning of union officials or garage owners' association heads left to state's attorney's staff.

10 a. m. to noon—Inquest. Milton Cohen, witness of slugging, who said he wasn't close enough to the killers to get a good look at them, and Gillian, the picket, and Hvid's widow testified.

Noon—Writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Joseph Graber in Criminal court, calling for the presence before him of the four union pickets then under arrest.

2 p. m.—Judge Graber indicated prisoners could not be held longer without a charge against them. A brother of State Senator A. L. Marovitz attended the hearing. [Records showed Senator Marovitz was attorney for the garage owners' group and one of his office associates represented the union.]

6 p. m.—Charges of assault with intent to kill placed against two pickets as technical means of holding them. Other two charged with disorderly conduct.

8:30 p. m.—Bail given for the four pickets and they were released.

DECEMBER 31.

Evidence obtained of close relationship of union and owners' association. Detectives questioned suspect named in anonymous tip. He had an alibi. Neighborhood re-canvassed for witnesses.

JANUARY 1.

Two other anonymous tips found worthless. Six detectives worked on case. Pickets kept under surveillance.

JANUARY 2.

Gale and Bibby questioned again. Their alibis are scrutinized.

JANUARY 3.

Conferred with family and attorneys of slain man. Given letters Hvid wrote to John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor. Failed to get Hvid's employé to sign assault complaint against Bibby. Unable to reach Fitzpatrick. The four pickets obtained continuance of court case.

JANUARY 4.

Talked to Fitzpatrick. Questioned some members of Mermall's organization.

JANUARY 5.

Continued investigations. Called in Gale and Bibby again for questioning about their arrest in 1935 for slugging florist who refused to join the florist drivers' union. Bibby admitted having been fined $50.

JANUARY 6.

Questioned garage owners not members of Mermall's group. Had six detectives seeking clews.

JANUARY 7.

Questioned members of union.

JANUARY 8.

Continued investigations. Told by Assistant State's Attorney Crawford that Mermall was indicted and pleaded guilty of conspiracy in 1932 and was sentenced to 10 days in jail.

JANUARY 9.

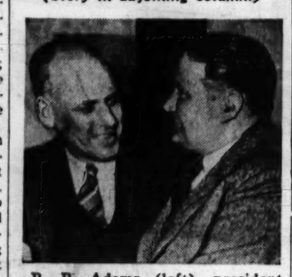
Exchanged information with Chief Sullivan and Lieut. Otto Erianson of the homicide squad. Capt. O'Connell on Dec. 28 notified Supervising Captain Joseph Goldberg, his immediate superior officer, of the slugging. He said he did not notify Commissioner Allman until after Hvid's death.

O'Connell said he kept Capt. Goldberg advised of what was being done. Goldberg was acting temporarily in charge of the north side district because of the illness of Supervising Captain Andrew Barry. Capt. Goldberg did not participate in the questioning of any of the persons involved.

Capt. O'Connell said he did not question Mermall at any time, because Mermall was taken to the state's attorney's office the first day and was under Prosecutor Crawford's orders thereafter. Mermall never was taken to the police station, he said.

At Slaying Inquiry

(Story in adjoining column.)



B. B. Adams (left), president, and W. P. Enzweiler, treasurer of the Affiliated Garages of Chicago, waiting to testify yesterday before grand jury at inquiry into slaying of Marinus Hvid.

NEW CLEW FOUND IN SLAYING OF PRESS UNIONIST

Police have information that may point to the killers of Paul Peters, union printing pressman, Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan said last night. Peters was shot to death Oct. 31 in front of his home at 3505 Oak Park avenue. The slayers fled in an automobile.

"If information supplied to the police is correct, we know the men who were in that car," Chief Sullivan said. "But if the information is wrong, we will be as much in the dark as we were five minutes after the murder."

Sergt. John Hanrahan is leading the investigation. The slaying of Peters is attributed to factional fight in the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants' union.

CHARGE SCHICAGO HANDBOOKS STILL GET RACING NEWS

Campbell Aid Blames Indianapolis Group.

An affidavit filed yesterday in Los Angeles, Cal., by Samuel Klaus, special assistant to United States Attorney William J. Campbell of Chicago, charged that handbooks in large cities still are receiving bootleg racing news service despite the cessation of Moses L. Annenberg's Nationwide News service.

Klaus asserted that a news service with nation-wide ramifications is being operated from Indianapolis, Ind., and that its personnel is largely composed of former employés of Annenberg. Klaus' affidavit was filed in opposition to a petition for an injunction by operators of a Los Angeles scratch sheet to prevent discontinuance of their telephone service.

Deny Knowledge of Service.

Val Nolan, United States attorney in Indianapolis, said last night that his office knew nothing of the service Klaus said had headquarters there and that his staff had made no investigation of the possibility of its existence. It has been reported here that Chicago bookies were getting their racing information piped in from Indiana cities outside the zone served by Illinois Bell Telephone company, which withdrew service to Annenberg.

Permission to examine suppressed subpenas was given by Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday to attorneys for five of the men indicted here with Annenberg on charges of income tax evasion. The documents required them to appear before the federal grand jury which later indicted them.

Immunity Is Claimed.

Their attorneys contend that immunity granted them by a special grand jury investigating to determine whether the Annenberg race services constituted a monopoly also extended to the proceedings before the grand jury investigating their income taxes. The defendants are Herbert S. Kamin, Arnold W. Kruse, L. Stanley Kahn, James M. Ragen, and Charles Bidwell.

The Illinois commerce commission in the meantime postponed until Jan. 24 a ruling on the request of State Senator Daniel A. Serritella that the Illinois Bell Telephone company be restrained from cutting off service to Serritella's racing news services, the Madison Publishing company and the Jockey Publications, Inc.

CONVICTED OF JOB FRAUD.

Joe Perry, 1643 South Hamlin avenue, was convicted yesterday of defrauding the Illinois division of unemployment compensation of $56 in a trial before Judge Charles Dougherty in the Municipal court. Sentence was deferred to Jan. 16.

JAMES A. REED, ONCE MISSOURI SENATOR, PROTESTS NLRB RULE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 (AP).—James A. Reed, former Democratic senator from Missouri, contested before the National Labor Relations board today a finding that the Donnelly Garment company of Kansas City, Mo., interfered with the rights of its employés and dominated the independent union of its workers.

The finding, made by James C. Batten, a trial examiner for the board, was sharply criticized by Reed. He claimed that the board agent disregarded testimony favorable to the company, and denied Donnelly employés a chance to show that their organization was not company dominated.

The complaint against the company, which is headed by Reed's wife, was filed by the International Ladies Garment Workers' union. Batten's findings were made on the basis of a board hearing. "There is no evidence," Reed declared, "of any domination of the organization [employés' union] by the company."

COURT REVERSES U. S. LABOR BOARD ON INLAND STEEL

Examiner Branded Unfair; Procedure Condemned.

examination of important witnesses for the board, while on the other hand his examination of witnesses for Inland was of great length, indulged in apparently for the purpose of impairing the credit or weight to be attached to their testimony," the opinion said.

Wood also was criticized for interjecting remarks describing company witnesses as "evasive" and "unsatisfactory." On this point the opinion read:

"It is argued by petitioner that the nature of the cross-examination and the characterization of witnesses by the trial examiner was such as to intimidate them and adduce improper evidence useful to the purpose of the board. We think it was calculated to have such effect."

The controversy over the court stenographer grew out of Wood's habit of instructing the shorthand reporter to leave some of the testimoney or argument unwritten. He would then summarize the "off the record" arguments or statements in his own words.

When he refused to permit the regular court reporter to record all statements in full and had a deputy United States marshal put out the company's reporter, the Inland counsel left the hearing. An appeal made to the NLRB resulted in a ruling that the official reporter should take all "off the record" conversations and supply a transcript to the Inland attorneys.

The court held that Wood's conduct in this matter was "unwarranted and inexcusable" and added there was merit in the company contention that this showed a hostile attitude on his part.

Tampering with Record Hit.

Discussing the company's charge that a union record dealing with a strike vote had been tampered with, the judges held that there was a reasonable inference this was done to injure the company's case. They said that Wood's purpose apparently was to refrain from doing anything to disparage witnesses who had given testimony of a dubious character that supported the labor board.

In passing on the labor board's order for a written contract with the union, the judges asserted that "it is fair to congress to conclude that if it intended to place upon the employer the duty of entering into a written agreement, it would have so provided."

The opinion summed the whole of the hearing before Wood as "convincingly disclosing "the danger of imposing upon a single agency the multiple duties of prosecutor, judge, jury, and executioner" and added: "The further assumption that the ruling of the trial examiner was in compliance with the board's rule does not improve the situation—it merely shows that the rule itself is unfair and discriminatory."

STATE JOINS BATTLE TO MAKE PERKINS PAY SOCIAL SECURITY TAXES

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 9 (AP).—Pennsylvania opened fire today on Fred Perkins, York, Pa., battery manufacturer, who has rebelled against paying social security taxes to the state and federal governments.

Less than 24 hours after Perkins bought back two trucks Uncle Sam sold at auction, he was sued by the state for nonpayment of $222.61 in unemployment compensation taxes. Said Perkins: "I have no money to pay the tax. Neither do I have any money to pay for services of a lawyer to combat the latest move of the government to run me out of business. I intend to act as my own lawyer."

The former Cornell University football player, who once went to jail for defying the NRA, said he borrowed on insurance to buy his trucks back yesterday and thus square a $117 claim for social security taxes and penalties.

LONDON, Jan. 10, Wednesday (AP).—The first British colonial troops, a transport unit from Cyprus, have arrived in France, it was announced officially today.

RAID BUNGALOW IN GARY; SEIZE 4 EX-CONVICTS

Police of Gary, Ind., last night were investigating the recent history of a secluded bungalow at 702 West 19th avenue in that city, believed to have been used as a hideout by a long line of fugitive criminals in recent months. In a raid Monday detectives jailed four ex-convicts, three of them wanted in other cities for robbery and the fourth the renter of the place.

The renter is John Sawochka, 35 years old, a laborer for the Gary street department. Detective Millard Matovina said Sawochka told him he was completing a book, "The Straight Road to Hell." He said he did most of his writing at the bungalow, getting material first hand from prison friends who visited him. He said he did not know any of his guests were wanted by the police.

The detectives could find no typewriter, nor even pen and paper in the place. There was a plentiful supply of liquor, however, and two sticks of explosive gelatin. Sawochka was charged with harboring criminals and possessing dangerous explosives. The other prisoners are Steve Wrzesinski, 25, and William J. Monacy, 31, identified in a South Bend stickup, and Nick Cerelli, 23, wanted in Muncie, Ind., as a bogus check passer.

U. S. BAR CHIEFS DEMAND LABOR TERROR ACTION

Order Condemnation in Civil Liberties Report.

The American Bar association's special committee on the bill of rights was instructed yesterday by the association's house of delegates to draw up a statement condemning all violations of civil liberties, including labor terrorism.

Jacob M. Lashly, Nominated for president.

The house refused to accept the special committee's prepared statement, which was submitted by Grenville Clark, New York City, chairman of the special committee. The delegates concluded a two day meeting in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

The prepared statement dealt mainly with acts of violence against communist meetings and said that these acts were not in accord with American traditions.

The prepared statement was objected to by several delegates on the grounds that it gave too much publicity to the communists and that it did not condemn labor violence.

Vote Fraud Action Urged.

Prof. James J. Robinson of Indiana university introduced a resolution asking congress to strengthen the federal law against vote frauds. This law now has many gaps in it, he asserted. Under it federal authorities cannot concern themselves with vote buying or selling, nor with votes cast above the number of legal votes.

John T. Barker of Kansas City, Mo., asserted that such legislation would be similar to federal vote laws which prevailed in the south for more than two decades after the civil war. He said it would mean a federal investigation in every state once every two years.

The resolution was ordered referred to the Section on Criminal law for further study.

Assail Realty Brokers.

Real estate brokers who perform legal functions in executing real estate purchase and sale contracts were assailed in a statement issued by the committee on unauthorized practice of the law. The chairman of the committee is Edwin W. Otterbourg of New York City.

Jacob M. Lashly of St. Louis, Mo., was nominated to be the next president of the A. B. A. The nomination is tantamount to election at the September meeting of the association in Philadelphia. He has practiced law in St. Louis since 1906, specializing as a trial lawyer.

TEST YOUR HORSE SENSE

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE, PH. D.

Below are questions for a woman to ask herself and then answer about her husband. Each question has a maximum score—indicated in parenthesis. However, any number of points less than the maximum may be noted:

DEMERITS.	MERITS.
1. Kisses wife just after her makeup has been applied. [6 points.]	1. Gives wife real kisses, not just dutiful "pecks" on the cheek. [6 points.]
2. Leaves his shoes in the living room. [6 points.]	2. Steady worker and good provider. [30 points.]
3. Fails to brush teeth regularly or keep his fingernails clean. [6 points.]	3. If wife is ill phones from work to inquire about her. Sympathetic. [6 points.]
4. Rolls in bed covers, pulling them off wife. [6 points.]	4. Willingly prepares own breakfast. [6 points.]
5. Defers too much to mother—a typical "mama's boy." [30 points.]	5. Often tells his wife he loves her. [30 points.]
6. Frequently tells risque stories in public or uses profanity. [6 points.]	6. Writes often and lovingly when away from home. [6 points.]
7. Complains of being too tired to go out at night with his wife. [6 points.]	7. Attends church or urges wife to do so. Sends children to Sunday school. [30 points.]
8. Is chronically suspicious and jealous. [30 points.]	8. Good humored in the morning. [6 points.]
9. Objects to wife's driving auto or criticizes the way she does it. [6 points.]	9 Gallant, at least in public. Holds wife's coat, opens doors for her, etc. [6 points.]
10. Frequently talks about the efficiency of his stenographer or of other men's wives. [6 points.]	10. Neat dresser, shoes shined, hair cut regularly, or suit kept pressed. [6 points.]
Total demerits.....	Total merits.....

Now subtract total demerits from total merits and interpret score as follows: 0 to 27, very poor [failure]; 28 to 43, poor; 44 to 61, average; 62 to 80, superior; 81 and up, very superior.

[Watch for another test tomorrow.]

COURT UPHOLDS WORKERS' RIGHT TO SPURN UNION

Overrules NLRB in Fight on Company Outfit.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 9 (AP).—Rights of workers to form a company union, join a national union, or remain unorganized are of equal value and entitled to protection by the National Labor Relations board, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals held today.

In a two to one opinion the court refused to grant an enforcement order for a National Labor Relations board ruling directing the Sterling Electric Motors company of Los Angeles to disestablish a company union and to cease collective bargaining with the employés' association.

Finds Higher Court in Error.

The Appellate court refused to follow a precedent in a similar case, holding that the Supreme Court of the United States erred in the Pennsylvania and Pacific Greyhound cases. These decisions, it said, were overruled in principle by later findings of the high court in another case.

The Circuit court held the Supreme court Greyhound decisions and the NLRB in the Sterling case ruling denied "the civil liberty of employés and their union to be given notice and hearing before frustration of the employés' claimed contract of self-organization by disestablishment of the union by the labor board."

Termed Abuse of Discretion.

"Even if the labor board has power to deny such a civil liberty of employés and their union," the court said, "it was an abuse of its discretion to deny it in this case."

The court noted "the helplessness of mechanics in a small plant" to protect their union "because they know nothing of procedure, have no right to introduce evidence or cross-examine and no right of counsel."

The case was brought before the labor board by the A. F. of L. International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, which in 1937 attempted to organize Sterling employés. The brotherhood charged the company discharged two men for union activity and discriminated against the union.

Charge Bridewell Prisoner in $125,000 Jewel Robbery

Judge Joseph Drucker of the Felony court yesterday issued a warrant for the arrest of Bernard Ryan, 40 years old, whose picture was identified as that of one of the three bandits who participated in a $125,000 jewel robbery in Cincinnati, O., Oct. 13. The warrant will be served next December when Ryan completes a one year sentence in the Bridewell for burglary.

FIRST TAXPAYER PENALTY DATE TO BE DELAYED

See Postponement of at Least Two Months.

The first penalty date for Cook county taxpayers this year will be postponed at least two months beyond March 1, the legal penalty date, county officials said yesterday. Their estimates indicate that the earliest possible due date is May 1, and any unexpected delays in the assessment and billing process might pusn the date ahead to May 15 or June 1.

Officials said the postponement beyond the legal due date is the result of two factors. First, the legal due date is unusually early for a normal year. The March 1 date is the result of legislation enacted after the 1928 reassessment, which put the county 15 months behind in tax collections. In making up the leg the state legislature pushed this year's penalty date up to March 1, altho in 1941 and subsequent years the legal date will be June 1.

Second, the 1939 quadrennial reassessment of real estate will not be completed until about Feb. 1, and the subsequent work of figuring the tax rate and the tax bills and mailing them out will take at least two months.

On the first penalty date taxpayers are required to pay their personal property taxes in full, but they may pay only half their real estate taxes without penalty. The second instalment of realty taxes this year will be due Sept. 1, the regular legal date.

QUADRENNIAL TAX VALUES RISE IN 10 COUNTRY TOWNS

The 1939 quadrennial assessment of real estate for 10 Cook county townships outside Chicago showed an increase of 4.8 per cent in assessed values over the 1935 values. This was disclosed in figures released yesterday by County Assessor John S. Clark. Clark had previously announced higher 1939 assessment values for 10 other townships.

The total assessed value for the 10 townships announced yesterday was $186,905,872, compared with $178,390,801 in 1935, the year of the previous quadrennial reassessment. The 1938 total was $177,997,810. Figures reported yesterday, compared with 1935 values:

	Assessed values— 1939.	1935.
Berwyn	$ 18,994,338	$ 18,597,001
Cicero	25,616,908	25,386,962
Leyden	10,024,252	9,299,057
Norwood Park	2,056,801	1,925,876
Oak Park	35,381,182	35,306,898
Proviso	30,878,480	29,886,793
River Forest	9,793,916	8,481,457
Riverside	6,382,048	5,677,317
Stickney	5,648,989	4,525,328
Totals	$186,905,872	$178,390,801

This brings the 1939 total for the 20 townships announced so far to $283,467,757, an increase of $16,446,227 over the 1935 assessed value.

DEMAND HOLC SHUT UP RESORT ON ITS PROPERTY

Injunction Is Sought in Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 9 [Special].—The Home Owners' Loan corporation was sued today in an attempt to compel it to stop the operation of what is said to be a house of ill fame on property it controls at 1307 N. 7th street.

The action was begun in Circuit court by District Attorney Herbert J. Steffes of Milwaukee county. Circuit Judge John C. Kleczka ordered the federal agency to show cause Friday afternoon why a permanent injunction should not be issued against the property.

The state's petition asked that the house be padlocked for a year, in addition to an injunction forbidding further operation. A co-defendant in the action was Florence Howard, alias Willie May House, colored occupant of the building.

Convicted Six Times.

Gene L. Green, assistant district attorney, said the occupants of the house have been convicted on morals charges six times since 1930. The last two convictions, he said, occurred since the date in 1937 when the HOLC foreclosed a loan on the property.

C. Ray McQuillan, state director of the HOLC, expressed surprise at the disclosure and said he had not been informed of the case previously.

If the place is now rented, McQuillan said, the tenant will be put out at once. However, there is not much the government can do about it if the operator is a borrower and the account is current, he said.

Foreclosure Promised.

"But if the account is at all delinquent, we will foreclose immediately," he declared.

McQuillan explained that it is the custom for all renting properties to be assigned to real estate agents. The agents, he said, are supposed to investigate the moral character as well as the financial responsibility of tenants. Inasmuch as all rented houses are for sale, rental leases are made only for one month at a time.

The real estate broker who handled the lease on the property said to be a house of ill fame, McQuillan said, was James L. Callan, former Democratic state senator.

LAWYERS' NEW REFERENCE PLAN BEGINS MONDAY

The Chicago Bar association's lawyer reference plan will be ready for operations next Monday, Walter T. Fisher, chairman of the association's committee on the economics of the legal profession, said yesterday. He said published reports that the plan would begin operations today were incorrect. The association will have members of its own staff available to direct any person seeking legal advice to a competent attorney. The attorneys who have volunteered to participate in the plan have agreed to accept $3 as the charge for the first half hour of consultation. Arrangements for further fees are to be made between the lawyers and their new clients.

New York, Jan. 9 [Special].—Stalking lions in Africa and hitting them with a sling shot is the sport indulged in by Hassoldt Davis, author and adventurer, he said upon his return to the United States from a picture making expedition.

Davis said members of the group covered their car with shrubbery and tossed out an antelope carcass to attract the lions so they could be photographed in Tanganyika, central Africa.

"The lions mobbed the car," Davis said. "We photographed nine lions within 10 feet of the camera. Trouble came when we wanted to quit and save the carcass for another trip. Blowing the horn and running the car at them wouldn't make them leave, but when I hit them with my sling shot, they ran."

Crow Hunters Copy Finns; Don White for Camouflage

Eaton, O., Jan. 9 (AP).—The Twin Valley Rod and Gun club has borrowed a leaf from Russo-Finnish war records. Jesse Meyers, secretary, said today that every night since a recent snowfall, members have donned white outer garments to aid them in "stalking" crows. The camouflage works, too. One night, 294 birds were winged and the week's bag totalled well over 1,000, Meyers said.

Father of Mary Garden Leaves Million to Family

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Robert D. Garden, father of Mary Garden, former opera singer, left an estate estimated at one million, a will filed for probate disclosed today. Garden died in Aberdeen, Scotland, last November, at the age of 88. He left the bulk of his estate to his widow, Mary J. Garden, of Aberdeen. The remainder was divided among four daughters, Mary Garden, of Paris; Helen Garden, of Huan des Pins, France; Mrs. Amy Bower and Agnes G. Walsh, both of Aberdeen. Garden, a former New York automobile dealer and widely known bicycling enthusiast and shot-putter, went abroad three years ago for his health and to visit his birthplace.

"IMPORTANT TO AUTOMOBILISTS"

By CALEB

WE announce the arrival from Paris of the new Automobile Gaiters and Touring Leggins in several different styles for men and women. Being English enamel leather, unlined or wool lined, they are so designed as to make them almost indispensable for high speed runs in cold weather.

WHEN we ran the above ad in the Chicago Post early in 1904, the "high speed runs" referred to were made at around fifteen miles per hour—in cars with cloth tops and usually no windshields. The driver sat on the right-hand side and auto lights burned kerosene.

But automobiles did not find us, even in that day, unprepared to outfit their devotees. We advertised, at the same time, "Men's Leather Automobile Garments. Complete outfits, consisting of long and short coats, vest, trousers, knickerbockers and caps, are now being displayed in the Second Floor North Room."

We also promoted "White Petticoats—A Display of Hundreds of Styles at Special January Prices."

Ostrich feathers, and masks and favors for cotillions were emphasized in the Journal and Inter-Ocean. The Tribune under a comprehensive heading helped us sell "Gowns, Chemises, Drawers, Skirts, and Corset Covers."

In the Record-Herald we announced "Embroidered Galloons and Motifs at Clearance Prices." A galloon, in case you don't know it, is a tapelike binding—usually of a very rich material.

If you have just a little impression—or recollection, if you are old enough—of times as they were thirty-five years ago, let us return to another ad of that day on "Men's and Women's Automobile Apparel." It read: "In our various sections we have assembled with extreme precision the ideas and styles which have found favor with devotees of the Automobile both in this country and abroad, forming on the whole a representation which, we believe, is without an equal in Chicago, in utility and in correctness, as well as in extent."

Most of the people directly responsible for our merchandising now were not buying for us in 1900, or 1904, or even 1910. But you who know us now, know we are still assembling with "precision" the ideas and styles that are worth while for devotees of all kinds of new activities and sports. We are still "forming representations" which are "without equal in utility, correctness, and extent." After all, having the very best assortments available is a cherished tradition we intend maintaining for you at all times.

TWO NEW SECRET SUBPENAS ISSUED IN BUILDING PROBE

Union Curbs on Industry Told by Contractors.

Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday issued two more secret subpenas ordering persons in the plywood industry to bring their records and appear before the grand jury. The jury began an inquiry last week into building restraints.

The attack upon alleged conspiracies which, it is charged, keep up building costs is being directed by Leo F. Tierney, who heads a special staff of 40 attorneys and technical experts. Parallel government staffs have been set up in nine other cities, resulting in several hundred indictments.

Subpenas requested by Tierney yesterday brought the total in the Chicago investigation to 212. Thus far 110 subpenas have been directed at the stone industry, 75 at the tile industry, and 27 at the plywood business. Tierney would not say what other phases of the building trades will be investigated in the scheduled five months of jury hearings.

Union Policies Told.

At the same time, several building contractors discussed in interviews union practices which they believe are partly to blame for the lag in the recovery of the building industry. Two of these men did not want their names used for fear of reprisals. This precaution was not requested, however, by two other members of the industry, who made recommendations which they said would aid the drive for freer conditions.

One contractor, with many years of experience in erecting large and small buildings, has a dozen homes under construction, all with 100 per cent union labor.

"If you want a six room home you'll need about 20 windows in it," he said. "Well, you can buy a nice prefabricated window for about $12. It has been weather-stripped, hung, glazed, and made ready for simple installation.

Describes Agents' Demands.

"'You know you can't install those windows,' the business agent tells you. 'Those frames weren't made here in Chicago; they were made outside the city with nonunion labor.'

"No amount of talking will move him. Finally you've got to pay the men what they would have received to do all the work on the windows, and you have your material installed. But it has cost you $20 a window, or $400 on the whole job, instead of $12, or a total of $240."

Charles H. Sand, secretary of the Carpenters' District Council of Chicago, which represents millwrights as well as carpenters, denied that there is a ban on any kind of material.

Interference Is Denied.

"Our men have their own attitude, tho," Sand said. "Naturally they prefer to work on union made material. But we don't interfere with the use of prefabricated material. No federal agents have visited our headquarters, and I don't expect to see any, because we have nothing to do with price fixing."

Another veteran contractor said he had avoided conflict with the unions by taking care never to improve on their methods. He said it would be useless—and expensive—to try to increase efficiency.

"One foolish and irksome rule is that a lather must not do more than 100 square yards of work in a day," the contractor said.

"Any ordinary competent lather can do 200 to 250 square yards in a day. So now they take their time, finish work at noon or 1 p. m. and go home. They collect $13.60 a day for that. If the contractor has to have the job done faster he must pay overtime rates. Union stewards, working as lathers, are on hand to see that the 100 yard limit is observed."

Defends Union Limit.

George Thomas Moore, recording secretary of the Illinois State Council of Lathers, said that the limitation on work is favored by the contractors.

"We say that 100 yards of lathing is considered a fair day's work," Moore said. "This is mainly to protect the home builder against shoddy, careless workmanship. Let me say that New York lathers, who get $2 an hour, have a lower limit on work done per day than Chicago lathers, who get $1.70 an hour.

"It's ridiculous for the contractor to say that competent lathers could do 200 to 250 yards a day. Our fellows get only one or two days of work in a week, and they can't keep up their speed and skill at that rate."

Recommendations for correcting present conditions were made by B. G. Anderson and L. G. Anderson, brothers, who operate the Anderson & Lind Manufacturing company, a millwork concern at 2127 Iowa street. They have had experience with the Sherman antitrust act, because their complaints led to conviction of carpenters' union officials. Fines of $60,000 imposed in the case were upheld by the United States Supreme court in 1927.

3 Recommendations Made.

Their concern is an open shop and is protected by a permanent injunction forbidding the union to interfere with the use of Anderson & Lind products. Based on 30 years of legal battling against trade restrictions, the brothers made these recommendations:

1—The government should seek permanent injunctions against unfair acts of offending firms and unions rather than indictments. Fines, no matter how large, usually are paid by union members and not by convicted leaders, and even prison terms are not a sure deterrent, they said.

2—The present investigation should be concentrated upon the rules and by-laws of unions and trade associations because these form the core of the situation.

3—The Federal Housing administration should require that proposed buildings be built without restriction upon materials and should refuse to approve architects' plans stating that materials shall bear the union label.

FHA Action Urged.

"The government could get the desired results in a hurry if the FHA insisted in its terms for guarantee of mortgages that there be no restrictions upon building materials," B. G. Anderson said. "This would break any combine which attempts to keep prefabricated or open shop materials from being used to reduce building costs."

William M. Wallace of Wheaton, president of the Contractors' Association of Du Page County, issued a plea to all interested persons to coöperate with the building industry investigators.

"The extent of this house cleaning program can be limited only by the amount of support and coöperation given the investigators by the building industry," Wallace said. "Members of the industry must realize the importance of this, for it is seriously handicapped by monopoly and discrimination in the use of labor, materials, and improved methods."

The Du Page contractors recently reported they had reduced building costs as much as 20 per cent by refusing to follow union rules limiting work and forbidding the use of prefabricated materials.

Artist Wins Fight

Plaster model of statue of Paul Revere and his famous horse which will be erected near spot where famous ride began.

Cyrus E. Dallin, 78 years old, whose statue of Paul Revere will be placed near Boston.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 9 [Special].—Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, chairman of trustees for the George Robert White fund, has notified Cyrus E. Dallin, 78 years old, widely known sculptor, that he has been awarded a $27,500 contract to erect his statue of Paul Revere and his horse near the spot where Revere began his famous ride. The statue will be cast in bronze.

For Dallin the award ended a 55 year fight. In 1884 Dallin was chosen to execute the statue and plans were made to finance it thru public subscription. The fund raising campaign collapsed, and annually for 55 years Dallin has appealed to each city administration to accept his statue.

SLEUTH TELLS EFFORT TO TRAP AN HEIR'S WIFE

Asks $5,235 for Work on Divorce Case.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Evidence that the first wife of Henry J. Topping Jr., an heir to millions, not only lived with another man but also allowed the servants to call him "Mr. Topping" was submitted today in federal court in the presence of Mrs. Topping No. 2, the former Gloria Baker.

Harold Mayhew.

This attempt to depict the first Mrs. Topping—the former Jayne Shadduck, actress and aviatrix, as an adulteress was made by counsel for Harold Mayhew, a private detective who was set upon her trail in search of evidence for a divorce and who now contends that the young millionaire owes him more than $5,000 as a promised bonus.

The second Mrs. Topping, heiress to a headache remedy fortune, sighed when an affidavit from the first Mrs. Topping's maid, Josephine Thompson, was read by the detective's attorney.

Called Flyer "Mr. Topping."

"I served breakfast, luncheon, and dinner to Mrs. [Jayne Shadduck] Topping and the man with her for a week," said the maid. "Mr. Cordova [an aviator put in the role of the other man by the maid and Topping] never corrected me when I called him Mr. Topping, nor did Mrs. Topping.

"I saw Mrs. Topping and Cordova in her bedroom together. On many occasions Mrs. Topping and Cordova acted in an intimate manner. They kissed and hugged and called each other dear, darling, honey and so forth."

All this, the Mayhew side contended, occurred in an apartment in Hempstead, N. Y. An affidavit from George Bell, the apartment house superintendent, asserted that on many occasions he had seen Cordova leave between 6 a. m. and 10 a. m.

Bonus Promise Told.

Mayhew's counsel said Topping had promised Mayhew $5,000 extra for bonafide evidence of adultery on the first Mrs. Topping's part, and that he had delivered such evidence.

Resisting that contention, Chester Bordeau, one of Topping's lawyers, told Federal Judge Clarence Galston that Topping would never have consented to a $75,000 settlement to the former wife if his counsel had had any notion that the affidavits were sufficient evidence. It was the wife, not the husband, who eventually got the divorce.

Topping and his mother, Mrs. Rhea Topping, of Greenwich, Conn., took the view that Mayhew had not earned a bonus and Judge Galston, reserving decision, indicated a similar feeling.

Saying that his ruling might be expected tomorrow, he remarked: "On the basis of proof of an expressed contract [in the matter of the bonus], the plaintiff apparently has failed to establish a case."

Grandson of Daniel G. Reid.

Topping, rotund and 26 years old, who inherits his millions from his maternal grandfather, Daniel G. Reid, the tinplate maker, testified that he hired Mayhew to investigate Jayne Shadduck Topping after he heard from friends that she was living in a Hempstead apartment with an aviator named Cordova.

"I gave him several photos of my wife and Cordova and told him to get evidence," he said. "I didn't ask how much the investigation would cost. Not a word was said about that.

"Mayhew told me that Bell said there was a lot of drinking and merriment and complaints from all the neighbors and everybody believed Cordova was Mr. Topping."

IN ASYLUM 25 YEARS, DURYEA ASKS TRIAL AS FATHER'S SLAYER

New York, Jan. 9 [Special].—After a quarter of a century in Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane, Chester Burnell Duryea sat on the witness stand in White Plains court today and maintained that he is now sane and ready to stand trial for the murder of his millionaire father in his sleep on May 5, 1914.

Chester Duryea.

Now 68, Duryea seeks his freedom from the asylum, even at the cost of standing trial for patricide. There is almost overwhelming evidence that he, using two guns, deliberately shot and killed his father, Gen. Hiram Duryea, a civil war officer, in the fine old Duryea home in the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn, following a quarrel. Yet today, as in 1914, he declared he knew nothing of killing his 80 year old father.

Duryea has an estate valued at $100,000.

JURY SELECTION BEGINS IN TRIAL OF POLICE KILLER

Selection of a jury to try Jerry Mangano, 22 years old, for the murder of Park Policeman Harry Francois, was begun yesterday before Judge John Sbarbaro in the Criminal court. Francois was shot to death during an attempted holdup on Nov. 20.

Assistant State's Attorneys Blair Varnes and Richard Devine sought to qualify jurors to inflict the death penalty. Defense Attorney James M. Burke said he would not question the facts. The defense, Burke said, would be that Mangano's background made him diseased, feeble minded, and irresponsible.

Judge Sbarbaro advised Burke he would not be permitted in closing arguments to cite any authority against capital punishment, since that is a state law. A defense motion for a continuance also was overruled. Murder charges against Mangano's codefendants, Italo Begani, 16, and Joseph Russano, 18, will be heard after the trial.

'L' SUPER-ROADS MEET APPROVAL OF U. S. BUREAU

Refute Reports of Favor for Depressed Type.

BY HAL FOUST.

The United States bureau of public roads yesterday dispelled notions, real or pretended, that Chicago's super-highways must be of depressed rather than elevated design to receive financial aid from the government. Local advocates of intrenched boulevards have been saying at public meetings that adoption of the upper level motorways would preclude federal money.

T. H. MacDonald.

Telegraph and telephone interviews with officials in Washington, D. C., refuted any idea that the government engineers will be arbitrary or dictatorial in recommendations influencing the federal purse strings. They are acquainted with the controversies in Chicago over locations and designs in a $205,000,000 superhighway system. They know the arguments for and those against elevated roads.

And they indicated that their influence will be exerted only in behalf of basic characteristics of indisputable merit, not including the question of whether the roadways should be depressed.

No Predetermined Policy.

"We have no predetermined policy with respect to depressed highways versus elevated highways for express routes in cities," said Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States bureau in response to a telegram from the Chicago Motor club. "We believe that final choice should be based on detailed engineering studies of all factors involved, including width of right of way proposed in each case.

"Under many conditions, depressed highways on wide rights of way are to be preferred because their design allows flexibility to meet unforeseen needs. It is not at all improbable that both depressed and elevated types of construction may be incorporated into different sections of an express route because of changing physical conditions encountered."

This statement was amplified over the telephone by Joseph Barnett, one of the world's leading authorities on superhighways. He is senior design engineer, Public Works administration, Federal Works agency.

Consultant in N. Y. Program.

He was a consultant for the government in the construction of superhighways in the New York metropolitan area. He also has been assigned to advise Chicago and Cook county in their planning of safety routes.

"Our main concern," said Barnett, "is that Chicago's superhighways shall fit into an interregional system of motor pavements and that the urban routes shall be articulated with each other and with the rural highways."

These requirements are met by both alternate plans prepared by the Cook county highway department for a $40,000,000 northwest route. Both the elevated highway paralleling an existing railway embankment and the depressed route paralleling Elston and Clybourn avenues provide for connections with the loop and with the outer drive. Both plans provide for connections with rural highways radiating from the northwest corner of Chicago.

Both Needs Omitted.

Neither of these requirements is met by the plan for a Congress street superhighway with a dead end in the west at the city limits and on the east at Canal street.

"Esthetics is not a factor in determining whether the roadway should be elevated or depressed," Barnett continued, "because one type can be made as presentable as the other. New York favored the depressed type because this is the type most appropriate for preferred locations abutting the many waterways that form natural travel barriers in the New York area.

"In Chicago, aside from Lake Michigan, the existing barriers are manmade and the embankments built by railroads. On such a location for a superhighway the elevated type seems to be more appropriate. This type at this location has an advantage in that it does not introduce a new barrier in the city's map. However, it presents a more difficult problem in ramp construction, and the locomotive smoke is undesirable.

Up to Local Engineers.

"A depressed roadway away from the railroad embankments presents an easier problem in building ramp connections with surface streets in the original construction and also in later years when changes become desirable.

"However, against this design and location can be cited its disruption of the local street pattern, its dead-ending of minor streets.

"These are factors for the local engineers to consider. The United States bureau of public roads is not going to be unreasonable in reviewing their decision."

Thomas Graham, 24 years old, of Long Lake, died yesterday in St. Therese hospital, Waukegan, of injuries suffered early yesterday when his automobile collided with a truck at routes 20 and 63, six miles west of Waukegan. The car overturned and struck a tree. Graham's companion, Sven Liljeknist, 26, also of Long Lake, was seriously injured. Ten tons of rice on the truck was spilled. The driver was Andrew Finch, 22, of Jonesboro, Ark.

Deputy Sheriff Victor Porazinski, 60, of 5678 New Hampshire avenue, died in the Belmont hospital of injuries incurred Sunday in an automobile collision at Elston and Lawrence avenues. William Krebs, 49, of 4024 North Mozart street, the other driver, was charged with drunken driving.

William Barker, 19 years old, 13112 Avenue O, was injured fatally when the bicycle he was riding was struck by a Southern Limited bus at Brainard avenue and 139th street in Burnham. The bus driver, John Devney, was directed to attend the inquest today.

3 BANDITS ROB CROWDED U. OF C. OFFICE OF $4,500

Three bandits got $4,500 yesterday in a holdup of the University of Chicago bursar's office in the Faculty Exchange at 5758 Ellis avenue. The office was crowded with 100 students paying tuition and room rent for the winter quarter. There were 15 men and women employés in the cash cages and at desks in the office.

Harry Benner.

The robbers halted inside the door. Harry Benner, 21 years old, of 2228 West 110th street, a student guard who was not armed, approached to ask if he could assist them. One of the bandits, his hand in his pocket as if carrying a gun, warned Benner to keep quiet and accompany them. The guard was kept under surveillance by two of the robbers in the center of the office, while the third pushed thru a swinging gate and went around behind the cash cages.

He scooped up the money from the first three cages, where Mrs. John MacCord, 8115 Maryland avenue; Miss Alice Cooper, 10731 Lafayette avenue, and Miss Ruth Halloran, 1111 Hyde Park boulevard, were on duty. Eugene Savaiano, a graduate student, said that one of the robbers threatened him with a gun as they were leaving.

WOMAN FAGIN'S GANG ACCUSED OF 100 BURGLARIES

Thefts by Pupils Take Her Off Relief.

Seven young burglars and a woman who got off relief by tutoring them in crime were accused yesterday of 100 burglaries which netted $5,000 in loot during the last six months.

The gang was broken up with the arrest Monday night of Leonard Zielinski, 21 years old, 2031 North Leavitt street, and Frank Malek, 17, 2018 Churchill street, who is on probation for a previous burglary. They were captured burglarizing a National Tea company store at 2658 Kimball avenue.

They named five accomplices and told Sergt. John Nolan of Shakespeare avenue station that they had been assigned stores to burglarize and had been coached in how to throw merchandise from trucks to their confederates by Mrs. Rose Slinwinski, 55 years old.

Police arrested her in a luxuriously furnished five room apartment at 1874 North Leavitt street, which was provided with deep carpets, expensive radios, and other articles police believed were stolen by the gang. Mrs. Slinwiski's husband, Frank, 59, who was ill, was not taken into custody. The couple admitted they were just off the relief rolls.

Some of the stolen merchandise which Mrs. Slinwinski had not disposed of in her capacity as fence was found in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Max Waters, 2015 North Leavitt street. Mrs. Waters said she did not know that it had been stolen. She was not arrested.

The other burglars are William McKomiskey, 17, of 2244 Dickens avenue, released three months ago after serving 18 months in St. Charles School for Boys for burglary; Malek's brother, Joseph, 19; Carl Burski, 19, of 2450 North avenue; Arthur Choslewinsky, 18, of 2046 Churchill street, and Harry Koda, 17, 2343 McLean avenue.

3 TELL OF FOILING THE PROFESSOR'S $4,500 SWINDLER

Three intended victims of a clever Mexican swindle ring which defrauded a university professor of $4,500 by what is known as the old Spanish prisoner game, were found in Chicago yesterday.

The identity of the professor, a Chicagoan, was kept secret. The inspectors said the fraud in which he lost his money has been a common one for 15 years. He received a letter from a Mexican "banker," a mysterious "Mr. L.," who said he was in prison for debt. The banker offered the professor a third of a fortune of $285,000, hidden away in false bottomed suitcases, if the professor would pay the expenses of settling the prisoner's case.

The professor obligingly traveled to Mexico. There, in a cheap hotel room, he met "L's" representative and handed over the money.

Joseph J. Bacigalupo, an undertaker at 3500 Harrison street. Earl D. Bruner, owner of a rug and carpet firm at 56 East Erie street, and Henry Brooks of 216 West Jackson boulevard, revealed that they received similar communications during recent months.

4,500 TURN OUT FOR GREEN'S 43D BIRTHDAY PARTY

Lyons Says Vote Frauds Beat Him in 1938.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Dwight H. Green and Richard J. Lyons, opposing candidates for the Republican nomination for governor in the April primaries, yesterday threw the campaign into higher gear.

Lyons openly accused the Chicago Democratic organization of robbing him of election as United States senator in 1938.

Headquarters for Green were formally opened in the La Salle hotel with a reception that lasted four hours and that packed the third floor of the hotel. It was Green's 43d birthday, and as part of the double celebration he cut a five story birthday cake. Green carnations were in every buttonhole, and headquarters echoed with the chant of "Happy Birthday to You."

The housewarming was larger than at the opening last year of Green's mayoralty campaign when 2,700 were present. Estimates last night were that 4,500 or more men and women filed by the receiving line and shook hands with the candidate and Mrs. Green.

County Chairmen Present.

Many of those present came from out of town, and among them were nineteen county chairmen. Green announced the appointment of John T. Dempsey, committeeman of the 33d ward as chairman of his Cook county organization. Platform campaigning is to start Saturday at St. Charles, to be followed shortly by speechmaking downstate and in Chicago. Before opening his headquarters Green had visited nearly every Illinois county.

Downstate county chairmen who attended and their counties were: August Bode, Alexander; Edwin Loop, Boone; George A. Ritchie, Brown; F. H. Gillen, Cass; Charles Keller, Champaign; Al Stockes, Christian; J. L. Bundy, Douglas; William P. Walker, Fayette; Noble Johnson, Ford; H. C. Mooneyham, Franklin; Herb Bloomquist, Knox; William H. Walker, Macon; Mrs. Elia K. Mosley, Massac; Gail Ransom, Morgan; Elmer Haynes, Piatt; G. W. Williams, Shelby; George Storey, Tazewell; A. F. Schupp, Will, and Paul C. Rosenquist, Winnebago.

Will Use Same Tactics.

"I intend to inject the same degree of intensity into this campaign as I did in the mayoral campaign," said Green. "I intend to shake hands and meet personally as many people in the state as is possible. Up to this time I have visited nearly every county, have spoken to more than 250,000 people, and have traveled more than 20,000 miles."

The pending vote fraud investigation has become part of the campaign.

Richard J. Lyons in a luncheon speech at Maywood said he had been robbed of election as United States senator in 1938 by vote frauds.

Lyons said he carried downstate Illinois and the country towns of Cook county by 160,000 votes.

"But when I reached Chicago," he said, "my troubles began. There, too, the people voted for Richard J. Lyons by a considerable margin, but after the corrupt Chicago Democratic election manipulators took charge of the ballots and the polls closed, they robbed me of my election certificate and also robbed the people of Illinois of a Republican senator in Washington.

Who Profits from Frauds?

"The very fact that no Republican has been elected to any administrative office in Cook county since 1932 proves that all vote frauds during this period have inured to the exclusive benefit of Democratic candidates.

"County Judge E. K. Jarecki recently said a strong Republican party would help clean up elections in Cook county. No truer words were ever spoken by a Democrat. How to stop the Democratic manipulators from counting out Republican candidates in the coming election is of paramount concern.

"A basic evil corrupts the election system in Cook county. It is the spending of fabulous sums in many precincts, especially in the 'deliverable' wards, by the ruthless Democratic machine.

"This vicious vote buying is chargeable not to the judges and clerks but to the higher-ups in the Democratic ranks who furnish the money. The collection of these funds is basis for the alliance between crime and politics. It exacts toll from gangsters and the underworld to finance primaries and elections. It grants privileges to racketeers and criminals. It helps reimburse henchmen of the machine thru more lucrative jobs and padded pay rolls."

Slugging Victim

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

MRS. FLORENCE HLAVATY.

Police squads yesterday searched the West North avenue district for a man who slugged two women early in the morning.

Mrs. Florence Hlavaty, 21 years old, 2507 Augusta boulevard, was assaulted at Iowa street and Campbell avenue, while on the way to work. A short while later Mrs. Marie Moudry, 76, 2617 Haddon avenue, drove off a man who struck her with a broom handle. In each case, police said, the description of the attacker tallied.

Capt. Harry O'Connell ordered his men to seek an ex-convict, now believed living in the neighborhood.

TAFT, ROOSEVELT RENEW BATTLE ON BUDGET SLASHING

Senator Charges Cuts Aren't Wanted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—President Roosevelt and Senator Robert A. Taft [R., Ohio] renewed their verbal skirmishing today over the problem of balancing the federal budget.

The President at his press conference brought on the new exchange by refusing to concede that the Ohio senator was entitled to a "handsome prize" for his plan to balance the budget as presented in a speech last Friday night before the Chicago Bar association.

Tonight Taft countered with a statement which concluded: "The truth is that he [the President] does not want to balance the budget."

Roosevelt Promises a Prize.

The whole thing dates back to Senator Taft's assertion in Portland, Me., that the budget could be balanced in two years without any breakdown of essential government functions. President Roosevelt said he would award Taft a handsome prize if he would tell how to accomplish this feat.

Senator Taft was invited to deliver his answer to the President's challenge in Chicago and accepted.

President Roosevelt today said he was convinced Taft's plan would not save the millions he argued it would. He said the saving would be only about $8,000,000.

Taft Makes an Answer.

Senator Taft, when apprised of Mr. Roosevelt's remarks, issued the following statement:

"The President has picked out some of the examples I gave of bureaus which might be eliminated but says that they only total $8,000,000—which, in New Deal style, he considers to be nothing.

"He says nothing of the 75,000 extra employés of the department of agriculture; of the extra $1,200,000,000 he has added to the federal pay roll."

CHARLES DEWEY WILL RUN AGAIN FOR HOUSE SEAT

Lavin Withdraws to Seek Nomination at Large.

Charles S. Dewey, former assistant secretary of the treasury, announced yesterday that he will again seek the Republican nomination for United States representative from the 9th congressional district.

Charles S. Dewey.

George S. Lavin, former prosecutor who had previously declared his intention of seeking the nomination, announced at the same time he was withdrawing in Dewey's favor and that he would run instead for congressman-at-large in the April 9 primary. Each pledged his full support to the other's campaign.

Both men joined in a plea for party unity, declaring that the main hope of preserving the American ideal of popular government lies in decisive Republican gains this year. They warned that because the opposition is so firmly intrenched, G. O. P. success depends on the vigor the party's adherents bring to the fight.

Leaves Field Clear.

Lavin's withdrawal leaves the 9th district field, at least temporarily, clear to Dewey as it was in the 1938 primary. It appeared likely, therefore, that the congressional fight next November will again be between Dewey and Congressman James McAndrews, Democrat.

Dewey's supporters point to his surprisingly strong showing against McAndrews two years ago as evidence that the 9th district is about to return to the Republican column, from which it deviated only once before McAndrews unseated Fred A. Britten in 1932.

In the 1938 election McAndrews polled only 44,064 votes as against 39,512 for Dewey, altho two years earlier the Democrats received nearly three-fifths of the total vote.

Appointed by Coolidge.

Dewey was a vice president of the Northern Trust company of Chicago until 1924 when he was appointed assistant secretary of the treasury by President Coolidge. He was in charge of banking, currency, and the federal farm loan system.

In the fall of 1927 he was named financial adviser to the then new Polish republic, in response to that government's request for aid in setting up a workable financial system. He served in that capacity three years.

Lavin has practiced law in Chicago since 1915. From 1927 to 1932 he was assistant state's attorney, and during that time conducted several important prosecutions and investigations.

From March, 1932, until last July he was assistant attorney general.

69 FLEE APARTMENT FIRE.

Twelve men and women were guided to safety by firemen early yesterday when smoke starting from a rubbish fire filled the fourth floor of an apartment building at 1357 Harrison street. Fifty residents of the other floors escaped safely without help. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

DENEEN BLAMES VOTE THEFTS ON WARD LEADERS

Faction Expects to Put Slate in Primary.

Blame for vote frauds was laid on the shoulders of ward committeemen, both Democratic and Republican, by Charles S. Deneen last night. The former United States senator and former governor presided at a rally of 600 of the Deneen group in the Morrison hotel. As slogan for the coming campaign, he suggested:

Charles S. Deneen.

"Clean out the vote thieves and their sponsors and those who profit by their crimes."

Deneen made it known that if campaign funds can be raised, his group expects to have a county slate in the field for the April primaries headed probably by George E. Q. Johnson, former United States district attorney, who would run for state's attorney. This is to be discussed at conferences this week. So is the question of whether a state slate should be picked by the Deneenites.

Confidence of Public Shaken.

The vote fraud cases were main theme of speakers. Deneen said ballot box corruption has shaken the confidence of the public in the integrity of primaries and elections.

"Conditions are so bad," said Deneen," that certain candidates for nomination and election cater to the vote thieves and to the classes which are in chronic rebellion against public order and public safety.

"The ballot box cannot be corrupted without the coöperation of crooked bipartisan Democratic and Republican judges and clerks. These crooked judges and clerks are appointed on the recommendations of the Democratic and Republican ward committeemen, who should be held responsible for the conduct of the poll officials.

Repeated Time After Time.

"And where these crimes are repeated time after time the public has the right to regard the committeemen who initiate the appointment of such officials as accessories before the fact.

"A prerequisite to any lasting improvement in the public service in Chicago is honest primaries, honest elections, honest judges and clerks, and honest ward committeemen."

HOMES UNTAXED, BUT GET BETTER GARBAGE SERVICE

Alderman Demands Equal Treatment for All.

Ald. Edwin F. Meyer [45th] declared yesterday, at a meeting of the city council's housing committee, that the Julia Lathrop houses at Clybourn and Diversey avenues get better garbage removal service than apartments on which taxes are paid.

The Julia Lathrop project was one of three carried out by the government in Chicago at a total cost of $13,847,000. The buildings, now operated by the Chicago Housing authority, paid a total service charge of $39,731 to the city in lieu of all taxes in 1938.

No Alleys for Houses.

"When they built the Julia Lathrop houses," said Meyer, "they didn't put in any alleys. This huge apartment project is on what is known as a can route and gets garbage removal every Friday. A lot of buildings whose owners put in their alleys get only intermittent service."

Ald. Arthur G. Lindell [9th], chairman of the housing committee, said the matter was properly one for the streets and alleys committee. When Meyer retorted that he had tried that without getting any action, he was told that perhaps the council finance committee's subcommittee on dumps and garbage might be helpful.

"I'll keep on trying to get justice for the taxpayers," said Meyer.

John J. Butler, ward superintendent in charge of the area in which the Julia Lathrop houses are situated, said the project removes ashes made by its heating plant. Its garbage—912 families occupy the units in the building—is passed thru an incinerator before it is collected by the city.

Get Service Every Friday.

"Can routes are served every Friday," Butler said. "Usually the Julia Lathrop has three and a half truckloads a week. Under the law the project is entitled to garbage removal."

He added that houses not on can routes get service about every eight days.

Last summer the housing committee agreed that in future the service charges on the three CHA houses should be 5 per cent of the basic rents; sums paid by tenants for utilities to be first deducted.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities."—From the Farewell Address.

THE FIRST SUPERHIGHWAY.

The plan for a northwest superhighway, prepared by the county's engineers, is fundamentally sound. It satisfies all the principal requirements: the proposed road will prevent accidents, it will expedite traffic, and it will form an integral part of a modern transportation system for the whole city.

At its outward end, the superhighway will connect with the principal roads fanning to the northwest. At its inner end, it will divide: one fork will connect with the Outer drive at Oak street and the other will tap the central business district at its western edge.

These provisions, as was said, are fundamentally sound. Thru its 11 miles the superhighway will be free of cross-traffic and pedestrians. There will be no killings at the intersections because there will be no intersections.

The route begins at the right place and ends at the right place. If there is any quarrel with the plan it will come on matters of detail which can readily be adjusted before March 1, the deadline for submitting plans to the state's highway commission. The completion of the improvement ought not be delayed by unproductive quibbling over questions of design and location.

One such question has been raised by the recommendation of a depressed road, paralleling Clybourn and Elston avenues, in preference to an elevated highway alongside the North Western railway embankment, on Avondale avenue. The choice should be determined by a comparison of costs. The less expensive route is the better and the facts ought not be difficult to ascertain. In this connection it should be said that the study by the county's engineers appears to have been both comprehensive and honest.

The proposal for a pair of automobile tunnels from the main trunk of the superhighway at Sedgwick street and Clybourn avenue to the Lake Shore drive can be discussed without extensive technical research. If elevated highways to serve the same purpose can be built more cheaply, with lower operating and maintenance costs, the motorists no doubt would prefer the elevated roads. For one thing, underground travel may be as expeditious but it is not as pleasant as driving in the open; and for another, any gasoline tax money which might be saved could be used for needed highway improvements elsewhere. It is true of course that the owners of abutting property might prefer to bury the thru traffic, and tho they would pay no part of the cost, their interest is deserving of consideration.

The debate on the question whether to elevate or to tunnel need not and should not be prolonged. It should be possible to obtain approval for a plan by the county board and the city council well before the March 1 deadline.

TOO OLD TO FIGHT.

The appointment of Admiral James O. Richardson to command of the United States fleet again calls attention to the fact that our admirals and generals are too old to fight. Admiral Richardson is 61 years old. There can be no objection to him personally. The fault lies in the system of promotion under which, with extremely rare exceptions, an American officer does not reach the rank of major general or rear admiral until he is treading hard on 60.

The worst part of this system is that it does not break down until put to the test of active service. The retirement age of the services is 64. It cannot be maintained that at that age an officer is suffering a senile decline. In peacetime he functions as ably as the executive of similar age in civilian pursuits.

When a man passes 50 he begins to restrict his activities, if he is wise, to an eight hour day. If his job can be done in that period, as it usually can be in peacetime, neither he nor the job suffers. But there is no eight hour day in time of war. The man past 50 lacks the spring and physical reserve to function at top speed on a 24 hour basis as an efficient commander must function in active service.

In the last war the work at the rear was done by the younger officers of the general staff, and that at the front by the field officers, in the larger part, by those below the rank of colonel. The enterprise of the navy, which was topheavy with age, was practically nil.

The fact that older generals and admirals may function acceptably under the easier routine of peace does not justify giving them such commands. If the younger men are to take over when combat starts, they should be given the command experience.

Older officers should be assigned to those desk duties which, in war as well as in peace, can be accomplished in an eight hour day and which, therefore, they can reasonably be expected to perform under war conditions without loss of efficiency. Promotions to major general or rear admiral should not be given men who have passed 50. That is not young for a fighting man.

FROM MME. PERKINS TO HARRY BRIDGES.

As was expected, Mme. Perkins, the secretary of labor, has canceled the deportation warrant issued in 1938 against Harry Bridges, the alien who as a C. I. O. leader is the dictator of the American merchant marine on the Pacific coast. The secretary acted on the report of James M. Landis, Harvard law school dean, who as special examiner for her department conducted a hearing in San Francisco and found no proof of the charge that Bridges was either a member or an affiliate of the communist party. Miss Perkins said that she had gone over a transcript of the testimony and could find no error in Landis' conclusion.

Mr. Bridges is only one of the revolutionary agitators who have had the protection and encouragement of the New Deal, particularly since the 1936 election in which John Lewis made a $600,000 contribution to Mr. Roosevelt's campaign fund. Bridges, however, is different from most of them, not in ideas and practices but in being an unnaturalized foreigner. He has had residence of many years' standing, but never has become a citizen, possibly because the form of government in this country is not to his liking. He has been able to blockade the west coast at will, stop commerce with Hawaii, the Philippines, and the far east, and tie up more American ships than the European war has done. In doing so he is promoting social and political ideas which he says are not communistic. Altho Mr. Landis said these activities were of a very energetic radicalism he agreed with the alien's statement that he was not a Red.

To the harassed shipping interests of the Pacific coast it might be of minor importance that Mr. Bridges hasn't a card in the American communist party. He is an alien who has acted against the law and order of the country and has been protected by the American government, just as the communists in the various C. I. O. organizations have been given governmental support in their attack upon motors, steel, and other industries which the Stalin vanguard penetrated under the Lewis banner. Bridges is free to remain as an invader.

THE THIRD TERM AND THE SILENCE.

The faithful did not really expect Mr. Roosevelt to say anything about the third term at the Jackson day dinner. The Washington guests did not pay $100 for their dinner tickets thinking they would learn whether the chief did or did not choose to run. Some of the faithful are now saying they do not want to know. Mr. Roosevelt must not tell them or the world. The secret is a New Deal asset.

So long as the third term is hidden behind a cloud no one can go to town with any peace of mind. He has to stop every half mile and call up to find out how things are at home. There is a general state of nerves which would keep Mr. Roosevelt in a good humor even if there were not excellent political reasons for making a still hunt of the third term.

If Mr. Roosevelt went out for it with bands and banners he would at once develop all the opposition among voters of both parties who object to such a breaking of sound precedent. Good political tactics require that this crown, if it is to be offered, be set on the recipient's head so abruptly and firmly that he can't get it off in time to reject it.

THE ITALIAN SHOW.

Including last Sunday, more than 200,000 persons had gone to the Art institute to see the loan collection of Italian masterpieces. When the exhibit closes, after a run of 55 days, it will have been visited by an average in the neighborhood of 4,000 a day. It might be added that the collection was one of a few indubitably successful features of the San Francisco fair.

There is no room to doubt that the people of this country are intensely eager to see the great masterpieces in Europe's collections and will pay generously for the privilege. It ought to be possible, after the war is over, to bring to this country a series of exhibits like the present one. The Europeans need have no fear that showing their pictures here would detract from tourist trade in the future; on the contrary, rather, the samples they would send would stimulate foreign travel.

England has had a number of foreign shows of the sort suggested, including a notable presentation of Dutch painting. Every reason which prompted the Dutch government to take that step should apply with equal force to sending a similar collection here. And so, too, for the other countries of Europe. A government which wishes to earn good will in America can accomplish far more with such an exhibition as the Italians sent here than with a thousand more or less eloquent after-dinner speakers.

If there were any fears about the treatment of a foreign exhibit here they were dissipated by a visit to the Art institute. No crowds were ever more eager, enthusiastic, or respectful than the 200,000 who have thronged the institute in recent weeks, and certainly no pictures were ever hung more tastefully or effectively than were the Italian masterpieces.

Editorial of the Day

THIS "MORE ABUNDANT LIFE."

[Danville (Ill.) Commercial-News.]

Prudent, thrifty citizens in some Illinois communities who deposit money in savings banks are slated to take another sock on the chin.

Already the inability of banks to earn an adequate return on their investments, because of the New Deal's cheap money policy, has forced them to reduce interest rates on savings accounts. This has caused a loss of untold millions to some 45 million depositors.

But the end is not in sight; even greater losses are to come. The Chicago Clearing House association, thru a news dispatch, reports another contemplated reduction in savings bank interest rates which will cost depositors in Chicago alone a total of about $1,489,120. The news item's implications are so clear as to need no comment.

Danville's banks are in that group of Illinois banks which are paying less interest than the 1¼ per cent proposed by the Chicago association at the turn of the year. Banks in this city are paying 1 per cent on savings accounts.

This is the way the New Deal keeps its promise to give the American people a "more abundant life!"

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

LINCOLN EXPERTS, ATTENTION!

Raymond Massey's curtain speech at the Chicago première of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" surprised us with its emotional recognition of his environment: He was acting Lincoln, for the first time, in Old Abe's home land before his own people. We had been taking this matter objectively, but it was apparent that Mr. Massey was deeply stirred, and his few nervous words were a memorable footnote to an impressive performance.

This city abounds in Lincoln experts with collections of letters, original documents, and old pictures to show Mr. Massey; but before they talk his head off we wish that they would take him out for a walk or a drive and point out a few places with Lincoln associations. Close to his theater is the site of the nomination for the presidency; and the Hotel Sherman, on a nearby corner, is successor to an inn where, no doubt, the candidate slept many a night.

Senator Trumbull's old homestead still stands in the Oakland district, and is worth inspection altho it is not a museum. It is fairly certain that Lincoln visited the place, before his election, and there is a legend that he shot ducks from the front porch. The Trumbull family built two houses there, still standing and occupied, and it is our opinion that the Historical society's plaque is on the wrong one. . . . Then there is the region of Douglas associations, much richer in survivals.

A week-end motor pilgrimage to New Salem may also be recommended to Mr. Massey, if that fine reconstruction is open to winter visitors. This journey could easily be extended to Springfield, for the tomb and the Lincoln residence. . . . Mr. Massey has no need to seek inspiration in this manner, but we believe that he's r'aring to go on such a trip—as we did last summer.

* * *

Now for a story about Lincoln's marriage to Mary Todd. The ungainly bridegroom said, in the legalistic verbiage of the American prayer book then in use: "With this ring I thee endow with all my goods, chattels, lands, and tenements." Old Judge Browne of the Illinois Supreme court, a stranger to this ritual, broke out audibly with:

"God Almighty, Lincoln, the statute fixes all that!"

ELEVATED THOUGHTS.

I'm dancing, exotic in shimmering gown,
Acclaimed by the press as the toast of the town.
My selfless appeal brings a storm of applause,
The charm of my smile the most frigid heart thaws.
I'm racked by romantically poignant emotion;
A Lochinvar's promising lifelong devotion.
My delicate tenderness moves men to tears—
And so goes my beautiful life thru the years,
Till—"Halsted street station!" Then somebody shoves me;
I'm cold, wet, and tired, and nobody loves me.

A Good Omen for the '40s.

Two hundred years ago, in the '40s, there came into the world a group of men who played a large part in the making of the United States of America. Among them were:

Thomas Jefferson, born in 1743.
John Jay, born in 1745.
Anthony Wayne, born in 1745.
Josiah Quincy, born in 1744.
Timothy Pickering, born in 1745.
C. C. Pinckney, born in 1746.

The Leap Year Judge in Chicago.

Judge Samuel B. Gookins of the Indiana Supreme court, who ruled in 1855 that the 28th and 29th of February were to be reckoned legally [Jan. 5] as one day, later came to Chicago. He practiced law here for a number of years as a member of the firms of Gookins, Thomas & Roberts and Gookins & Roberts.

READ ME THIS RIDDLE.

(These verses might describe a surrealist painting by Dali, but their author says she is writing about a snail in a terrarium.)

Like the fiery Chinese dragons
Red efts from the caves arise;
Three old toads like stone age monsters
Sit and blink their jeweled eyes.

Then the princess of this riddle
Delicately wends her way
In and out among these creatures
Guarded by them night and day.

Four the points of her tiara,
Dainty is her pointed shoe.
What is in the box she carries
Softly treading thru the dew?

Kentucky Theory of "Pure Quill."

My Gramma was a Fitzgerald. She grew up in the back mountains of Kaintucky where corn likker has been made for ages, both as a commodity and necessity. Her explanation of "pure quill" [Jan. 4] is the most lucid I have heard.

To assure the production of a likker of the required strength, as soon as the first jug full was distilled, a tail feather from a wild turkey was immersed in the container. This was allowed to stand until the second jug was filled by the same process. If by this time the fringe has been eaten off the feather, leaving the quill bare, it was safe to call and sell the product as "pure quill." Anything below this standard was known as "middlins" and was reserved for the women's and children's "drinkin likker."

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

DON'T LET NERVES UNNERVE YOU.

A RECENT study by a well known Philadelphia physician directs our attention forcibly to the important rôle that emotions play in illness. Taking 200 private patients consecutively he found only 60 who were not affected by what we term "nervousness." Of the total, 70 manifested no physical defects whatsoever. Another equally large group suffered some organic weakness but, in each instance, poor health was markedly accentuated by worries, fears, and unhappiness.

Like the wise man that he is—instead of dismissing the so-called neurotics without the slightest attempt to aid them—each was treated in accordance with the nature of his trouble. Strangely enough, the most common complaint was fatigue. With some this sign was erroneously interpreted as indicating pulmonary tuberculosis; while others were convinced that a long period of chronic invalidism awaited them.

Each individual was examined with the greatest care. As we would expect, there was just as much inefficiency in those who presented symptoms because of conflicts in business, social, or home life as was found among those with real physical difficulties. The conclusion, therefore, appeared warranted that those with psychological ailments were about as incapable and even more unhappy than, for example, peptic ulcer sufferers.

The medical man who prides himself on his diagnostic acumen—and who perhaps has achieved a substantial success—will display, as a rule, too little patience to make the best kind of a physician for these victims. Nevertheless, they need help and the one whose therapeutic régime includes encouragement and an effort to redirect or remold thinking, must be located. The one who can identify a heart condition, or spots on the lungs, naturally feels that he has a job to do. He then proceeds to solve the problem with earnestness and skill. Perhaps in our intense drive toward the early discovery of organic disease, we have forgotten to observe those beginning indications of emotional instability which can grow so rapidly and become so harmful.

After all, every human being is responsive to commendation—or the reverse. A long period of anxiety cannot fail to influence the flow of the digestive secretions; in fact, every structure within the body may be involved. After a time these patients may exhibit enough symptoms to warrant medical attention. At this stage, further investigation may be able to trace the origin of some actual malady to "nerves."

But in tracking the "varmint" to its lair more than the routine type of checkup may be required. If no fault can be found with the behavior of the heart—as an illustration—certain disturbances, such as palpitation, an occasional siege of diarrhea, or a sleepless night now and then will be explained on a jittery basis. Perhaps the afflicted person can be convinced that nausea, or a feeling of tightness within the chest may be accounted for by some upset of the nervous system. It may then be possible to stimulate a dominant interest in life with the result that constant worrying about this or that ache or discomfort may be dismissed as of but little moment.

Most of these victims are city folk, yet all too few have a regular family doctor to whom they can go for a personal, confidential chat from time to time. I have in mind a country practitioner whose presence in his community, I am sure, is more valuable than anything that he does—despite the fact that he is unusually skillful. His people know that he is well trained. They know too that he has their well being at heart. As an adviser to young and old alike, he is indispensable. In consequence, he encounters a neurosis but rarely. In other words, he catches the portents well in advance of signs of real trouble. Injury is thus forestalled. At least in his vicinity "nerves" just don't start.

TREATMENT OF GOUT.

J. J. M. writes:

1. What causes gout?
2. Is it harmful for these patients to drink milk and fruit juices?
3. What is the treatment?

REPLY.

1. This disease is of metabolic origin. Certain foods form uric acid more rapidly than the body can throw it off. Edibles such as sweetbreads, kidneys, and fish roe are prohibited.
2. Not at all.
3. Increase your elimination and avoid uric acid forming foods. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a list of such articles.

PROBABLY NOT THE CAUSE.

Mrs. A writes: For two years I have been using saccharin in place of sugar. I suffer from drowsiness and dizziness a great deal of the time and find it hard to remember or concentrate. I am 52 years old. Shall I stop the use of this substance?

REPLY.

The drug you have been using is comparatively harmless. Stopping its use for a time, however, may be helpful. The chances are that your symptoms arise from some definite cause—possibly the circulation. Hence an examination is advised.

WHY THE "HUSH" POLICY?

Victim writes: Why is it that the public contributes gladly to organizations to fight tuberculosis, cancer, and infantile paralysis but not to a fund to fight epilepsy. With us, it is Hush! Hush! rather than Help! Help!

REPLY.

A few foundations and trusts are aiding the fight against epilepsy, but the number is small. It is high time that we gave more attention to the prevention and cure of falling sickness [epilepsy], as a large percentage of these patients can be rehabilitated.

PHLEBITIS.

A. R. writes: What causes phlebitis after an operation? How long does it last?

REPLY.

The word phlebitis means inflammation of a vein. As a rule, the cause is an infection. Slowing of the blood stream due to lying quietly in bed is a factor. The part involved must be kept quiet—immovable—and several weeks may be required for healing. Swelling is due to clotting of blood within the affected vein.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

STEPS TO CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Jan. 3 [Friend of the People].—I came to the United States 10 years ago. In what name should I apply for citizenship? K. R.

The application should be made in the inquirer's correct name and the use of the steamship ticket in the sister's name explained in the application form.

CLAIM ON ESTATE.

Chicago, Dec. 27 [Legal Friend of the People].—Had a note of several hundred dollars signed by husband and wife. The husband died a few days ago. Is it necessary to have the note recorded before the property comes up for probate? G. L.

If you are satisfied with the chances of collecting from the wife you need not file a claim in the probate of the husband's estate. Otherwise you should file the claim, since, in absence of filing, your claim against his assets will be barred within one year from the commencement of the probate proceedings.

PERSONAL INJURY.

Chicago, Jan. 4 [Legal Friend of the People].—On Nov. 14 I fell on an uneven, broken sidewalk on Independence boulevard and hurt my arm at shoulder. Went to doctor and after a thoro examination said no bones were broken, but muscles of arm badly affected. I am employed and find it pretty hard to do work required of me, but there is no alternative. Can anything be done in a case like this and, if so, who would be the proper person to take matter up with? I am entirely on my own with no money nor any one who can help me with same. C. F.

In general, the property owner is not liable for defects in street pavement or the public sidewalk. The city would not be liable without proof of notice of the dangerous condition. It does not seem likely that you can recover.

FILING OF WILL.

Chicago, Jan. 4 [Legal Friend of the People].—I would like to know how much time is allotted after death for the recording of a will in the state of Michigan. B. I.

How Our States Got Their Names

3. ARKANSAS.

It is thought that the name Arkansas is derived from the French pronunciation of the Indian word Ugakhpa or Quapaw. The Quapaw Indians, tradition says, left their usual dwelling place and went down the Mississippi river, thus becoming known as the Ugakhpa or "those going with the current." There are many other theories, including one that Arkansas is formed from the French words arc en sang, meaning bloody bow. Arkansas became a state on June 15, 1836.

The Arkansas state seal. At top is Goddess of Liberty. Shield below bears steamboat, beehive, plow, and sheaf of wheat. Eagle holds scroll inscribed Regnat Populus [the people rule]. At left is figure of angel inscribed "Mercy," and at right is sword inscribed "Justice."

Arkansas is sometimes called the Bowie, Bear, Toothpick, Hot Water, or Wonder state. The names are attributed to the prevalence of bears, bowie knives, and hot water springs in the state. Arkansas bowie knives, which could be closed, were jestingly called Arkansas toothpicks. The nickname, the Wonder state, was adopted by the state senate in 1923 as a matter of state pride. The state motto is "Regnat Populus" [The people rule]. The state song is "Arkansas," the state flower the apple blossom, and the bird the mockingbird.

HE TAKES HIS PEN IN HAND.

Berwyn, Ill., Jan. 5.—Your Mr. Cabeen states that our noble government is going to honor a lot of illustrious Americans with commemorative stamps measuring 85-100 by 95-100 inch, which, according to my ruler, is even smaller than the ordinary run of mine stamps we now use with all the handsome features of all past noble Presidents. Considering the mountains of paper the New Dealers has used up in the last seven years for useless questionnaires that no one will ever read, it looks like a big mess of hokum to honor illustrious Americans on postage stamps that are less than an inch square; and I have a suspicion that they will be a punk lot of postage stamps.

It only costs a couple of pennies a thousand to print the stamps and when they feel so full of sweetness and light and have such a yen to honor these illustrious Americans, they might at least make them big enough so people can see the illustrious American after some postal clerk smacks the illustrious American in the kisser with one of those obsolete beetle-like killers; after which you can't tell whether the illustrious American is William Cullen Riley or Aloysius McGonigal Whistler. But all they do it for is to make velvet for the postoffice department and it's more of a racket than an effort to honor anybody. What do they care about 'em so long as the stamp collectors kick in with 5 million dollars' worth of gravy for which the postoffice department has to give no service?

You might think, as long as they are going to all that trouble to make new plates, they'd doll up something fancy in at least two colors, on a larger piece of paper; a real, classy print job. But they'll dish up them same old tripe in the same old colors and ring in a 10 cent stamp to add insult to injury. Even our South American neighbors, and they have more patches on their pants than we, can do better than that. When they commemorate O'Higgins or Bolivar, by gosh you know it's O'Higgins or Bolivar and not the facsimile of a cow tick with a human face that may look like anything or everything.

Incidentally, I see our dear government, at long last has squawked to the British and asked them to leave our mail alone. The trouble with them is, they don't know how to squawk or they squawk in the wrong words. I've been doing my own squawking. I send a lot of mail to Bohemia and we're not at war with England or Bohemia. I had stuff taken out of mail to me by the censor in Prague and he had the goodness to back stamp it with the postal district stamp; so I sent him a letter in a language he doesn't have to translate and I told him plenty. Maybe he liked the way I dished it out to him and since then they leave my stuff alone and my correspondents tell me they get my letters and the censor doesn't shove his snoot into them. I also write quaint cracks on the back of the envelopes for the benefit of the censor and maybe he gets a laugh out of them. However, the British have shoved their schnozzles into some of them and some guy is going to get a big load of sneeze powder some day and I mean sneeze powder! They usually coop those censors up in a little room and when one of those sneeze things goes off when they shove their snoots into a letter, they'll sneeze for a couple of hours.

VARIED FEDERALISMS.

Albion, Mich., Jan. 2.—I welcome your editorial of Dec. 31, "The Next Peace In Europe," and particularly the suggestion that the federal system enjoyed by Switzerland be made the basis of the next peace.

Of course "federal," "federalism" and "federation" are loose terms. The United States under the old articles of confederation was a "federation" created by treaty or entangling alliance between the American colonies acting in their governmental capacities, and it was followed by the confusion and frustration that so often follows an entangling alliance. Our present United States too, is a "federal" government created, not by treaty between the American states as governments, but by our constitution, which is a compact between all American citizens. Because it is a government of these people, for the people and by the people, it has been successful.

There are many widely varying concepts between "federations" created by treaty between governments and "federations" created by compact between citizens of two or more national governments. I refer to dual citizenship, sanctions, supreme law of the land, sovereignty, etc., and may we not look forward to other editorials where these important distinctions are elucidated for the public? CARL A. ROSS.

SCAPEGOAT.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—During the campaign of 1932 Mr. Roosevelt and the Democrats placed the blame for the army of unemployed squarely upon the shoulders of Mr. Hoover and the Republican party.

But as the campaign of 1940 approaches, the President and his New Dealers find themselves faced with almost the same old number of unemployed. So Mr. Roosevelt in his message to congress on the state of the Union says:

"We have not yet found a way to employ the surplus of our labor which the efficiency of our industrial processes has created."

If old man efficiency is the real culprit, and not Mr. Hoover, then Mr. Roosevelt and his New Dealers owe an abject apology to Republicans everywhere for all the slander, invective and vituperation which the New Deal has heaped upon them. S. S. D.

INTEREST REDUCED.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—The writer stood at the window of one of our large loop banks recently and was handed a slip, stating that after Jan. 1, 1940, the interest on savings deposits would be reduced from 1½% to 1¼%.

In yesterday's newspaper was an article stating that our largest Chicago bank had made the largest profit of any bank in the country, and further, that other loop banks had made record profits.

In the face of these facts, can these banks explain why the depositors must be penalized?

DISSATISFIED DEPOSITOR.

PROJECTS.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—So now, for want of things to do, Roosevelt's pet WPA employés count the trees in Chicago.

May I suggest as a taxpayer and voter that the WPA count:

1. The number of uncalled for ashpiles in our alleys.
2. The number of holes in our main streets.
3. The number of rats and mice in our old buildings.
4. The number of unswept curbs and streets.

CITY'S CENTURY OF PROGRESS IN HEALING HAILED

Dr. Pusey Opens Medical Exhibit at Museum.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

One hundred years of medicine in Chicago was reviewed last night by Dr. William Allen Pusey in the annual lecture of the Institute of Medicine of Chicago.

The lecture, which was followed by a reception, was made the occasion for a preview of the medical exhibits at the Museum of Science and Industry, where the lecture was given. The late Rufus C. Dawes, president of the museum and one of Dr. Pusey's closest friends, made all the arrangements for the exhibit tour. Mr. Dawes died on Monday. He was to have stood in the reception line with Dr. and Mrs. Pusey. The special opening of this exhibit was one of the last tasks of Mr. Dawes' life. The formal opening will not be held for another month.

Exhibits Cover Wide Range.

The medical exhibit, opening off the central pavilion of the museum, was especially lighted last evening and guides escorted visitors around. Lighting is an important part of these exhibits, as several are in diorama form and many call for transparencies. The exhibits deal with cancer, industrial diseases, vitamins, hormones, surgery, X-ray, and the use of anaesthetics. Cross sections of the human body and embryos are shown.

The medical service of a community is an index of its state of civilization, Dr. Pusey said. Medicine in Chicago, he added, has ranked high from the start.

"What does this mean for us who live in Chicago in terms of disease, suffering, death and grief?" he continued. "It means that if the death rate had remained at the 20 per 1,000 figure of 1880, which represents approximately the mean death rate for many years, there would have been over 60,000 deaths in 1938, instead of the actual 30,000."

Marquette Found Doctor Here.

He traced the history of medicine in this area to the days of Father Marquette in 1674. The priest explorer found two huts at the site of the Damen avenue crossing of the south branch of the Chicago river, he said. One belonged to a trader and the other to a physician.

After that there is no more medical history until the establishment of Fort Dearborn and the arrival of army surgeons. Dr. Alexander Wolcott and Dr. Elijah Harmon, two of these surgeons, became permanent residents. Wolcott married John Kinzie's daughter and Harmon acquired the Kinzie house and put in a library of 100 medical books. Harmon and Dr. S. G. J. De Camp fought the cholera epidemic of 1832.

Names Noted Leaders.

Since 1835, Dr. Pusey said, there has been an unbroken succession of leaders in Chicago medicine, prototypes of many able physicians. He named leaders of Chicago medicine and their periods as follows:

Daniel Brainard	1835-1866
John Evans	1845-1858
N. S. Davis	1849-1904
John H. Rauch	1857-1894
Christian Fenger	1878-1902
Frank Billings	1881-1932
Ludwig Hektoen	1887

Dr. Brainard, Dr. Pusey recalled, died a victim of a cholera epidemic he fought in 1866. Everything in Rush Medical college, he said, dates to Brainard, just as everything in Evanston and Northwestern dates to Dr. Evans. Davis street in Evanston was named by Dr. Evans for his friend, Dr. N. S. Davis.

"The history of the County hospital fills one with regrets," he said. "It is one of the greatest reservoirs of disease in the world. It has been a valuable institution for the care of the sick, but not nearly so valuable as it could have been. As a place for postgraduate instruction it ought to be another Vienna hospital.

Assail Political Fetters.

"With the improvement that has occurred in the medical service of the County hospital in the last 30 years it is not too much to hope that the hospital may, at a not too distant time, become free from the fetters of political and medical politics, and become, as it should be, one of the greatest teaching institutions in the world."

He spoke particularly of the work of Dr. Howard Ricketts, who died in Mexico City of typhus fever contacted in his experiments in fighting that disease; the work of Dr. Maud Slye in cancer, and that of Drs. Gladys and George Dick in scarlet fever.

REV. F. J. THOMAS DIES; METHODIST CLERIC IN 2 WARS

The Rev. Francis J. Thomas, 61 years old, widely known Illinois Methodist clergyman, died yesterday in the Wesley hospital. He was pastor of the Plainfield Methodist church.

The Rev. Mr. Thomas was born in Cornwall, England. He served in the American army as an enlisted man in the Spanish-American and world wars and had written extensively on patriotism and Americanism. He was a chaplain in the army reserve corps with the rank of major and was formerly state commander of the United Spanish-American War Veterans and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The Rev. Mr. Thomas served for five years as treasurer of the Rock River conference of the Methodist church. He held pastorates at the Calvary and Lamon Avenue Methodist churches here and churches in Marshalltown, Ia.; Racine, Wis.; Elgin, Joliet, and Morris, Ill.

Surviving are his widow, Ida; two daughters, Mrs. Frances Allen and Mrs. Mabel Norris, and a son, Wesley. Funeral services will be conducted Friday at 1:30 p. m. in the Thoburn Methodist Episcopal church.

"Testament of Friendship," a Fine Biography, by Vera Brittain.

BOOKS

Tender Phantasy: 'Portrait of Jennie, by Robert Nathan.

Indians of the Americas Get New Appraisal

"Indian Arts in North America," by George C. Vaillant. [Harpers, $5.]
"Indians of the Americas," by Edwin R. Embree. [Houghton Mifflin, $2.75.]
"Under Your Feet," by Blanche Busey King. [Dodd Mead, $2.50.]

BY WILL DAVIDSON.

These books demonstrate that the arts which we today condescendingly call primitive found a development on this continent that compares most favorably with that of the arts of any other part of the world.

Dr. George C. Vaillant has prepared a book that is at once a valuable addition to anthropological literature and a fascinating study for the uninitiated reader. Briefly, the author surveys the entire field of Indian art; he illustrates it copiously with excellent photographic plates of typical art forms, and generously, for the studious, he points the way to further reading by means of an amazingly complete bibliography.

Edwin R. Embree is less exactingly scientific in his "Indians of the Americas" and more narrative. His approach to Indian culture is that of a student of race. He sees the Aztecs and Incas and Mayas and Pueblos as he believes they saw themselves. Illustrated with competent drawings by Howard Grieg, this is an excellent average man's introduction to Indian lore.

"The Story of the American Mound Builders" is the subtitle Mrs. Blanche Busey King gives to her book, "Under Your Feet." It proves to be a little ambitious, as Mrs. King probably is a much better archeologist than she is a story teller. But lack of literary finish does not keep this from being interesting. Drawing on her experiences, the author gives the average reader an understandable lesson in how to dig up the relics of our own past and how to evaluate the significance those relics carry.

Another Testament

Vera Brittain, who has written an intimate biography of Winifred Holtby in "A Testament of Friendship," reviewed today.

Vera Brittain Writes Tribute to Friendship; Robert Nathan Novel Is a Tender Phantasy

"Testament of Friendship," by Vera Brittain. [Macmillan, $2.50.] Published yesterday.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

The author of the supremely beautiful and tragic "Testament of Youth," an autobiography which is so vividly the story of a whole generation that it is not remembered as the life story of a single member of it, here pays tribute to the most important friendship of her life with a biography of Winifred Holtby. I use the preposition "with," instead of "in," because altho there is constant evidence in the pages of "Testament of Friendship" of Vera Brittain's love for Winifred Holtby and of her appreciation of the rare quality of her friend and their friendship, "Testament of Friendship" is in no sense the story of Vera Brittain or even of Vera Brittain's admiration.

It is a biography of a writer, not primarily a pæan of friendship, altho Winifred Holtby's genius for friendship fills its pages. Indeed, if she had spent herself less lavishly on her friends and her family she might not have died, as she did, at 37, just as she was beginning to enjoy her place as a writer.

That too early death haunts the pages of this tenderly told biography. Despite everything that Vera Brittain says about the gayety and charm and vividness of Winifred Holtby, about her "golden quality," the reader feels the brooding tragedy of her death even from her childhood. The last two years of her life, when she knew of her doom and refused to admit it even to herself, apparently, are a record of rare heroism.

Winifred Holtby the friend, the human being, is alive in these pages. But so is Winifred Holtby, the writer. Winifred Holtby is best known to American readers for "South Riding," the novel which she finished just before her death, altho any one who read it will remember her perfectly delicious tale of British empire building in South Africa, "Mandoa, Mandoa!" Her work as a journalist, admired supremely in England [especially as a contributor to Time and Tide] is little known in this country, and her novels before "Mandoa, Mandoa!" practically unknown.

In her prolog Vera Brittain quotes Winifred Holtby as saying in answer to three London publishers' invitations, during the last year of her life to write her autobiography: "I never feel I've really had a life of my own. My existence seems to me like a clear stream which has simply reflected other people's stories and problems." But she did have a life of her own, and Vera Brittain interprets its facts and the personality which they helped to mold.

Slapstick Adventure Tale

"Let the People Sing," by J. B. Priestley. [Harpers, $2.50.] Published last Thursday.

Winifred Holtby was a Yorkshire woman, as are her friends Phyllis Bentley and Storm Jameson, novelists well known to American readers. But the best known Yorkshire pen today is that of J. B. Priestley, who made a phenomenal success with "The Good Companions" [1929] and has consolidated his popularity with best sellers in other novels and in essays and dramas. He has experimented with both form and content as he has with ideas.

"Let the People Sing" is not one of Mr. Priestley's experiments, however. It is a good old fashioned slapstick, satirical, and farcical tale of adventure utterly unreal and for that very reason a complete "escape" tale.

In it an old music hall comedian, an exiled Czech professor, a divinely beautiful maiden, and an auctioneer throw their lots together in a little English town and hilarious adventure ensues. With a faint echo of "The Good Companions," Mr. Priestley piles incredibility upon incredibility, decorates the plot with characters as amusing and as stylized and caricatured as clowns, puts into their mouths fantastically funny talk, and trims the whole thing with some of his most pungent observations.

In a day when there is so little to laugh about, when the color of life seems not rose but blackout, books like "Let the People Sing" do their important bit by jangling their jesters' bells in readers' hearts.

Novel of Tender Phantasy

"Portrait of Jennie," by Robert Nathan. [Knopf, $2.] Published Monday.

One of Mr. Priestley's most interesting experiments in recent drama is with the Dunn theory of time—an extremely abstruse theory impossible to put into a few words, but whose major thesis is that time exists as a whole, and to those capable of sensing them, the past and the future are co-existent with the present. Dramatic statements of the theory have been made by Mr. Priestley. In "Portrait of Jennie" Robert Nathan expounds it fictionally, altho he does it with such delicacy and such fictional art that the reader sees in this tender little tale only a phantasy of a lovely ghost.

Jennie is a little girl playing by herself in the dusk in Central park when the narrator of the story, a poor young artist, sees her for the first time. Jennie grows into a woman, comes now and then out of limbo to solace or to inspire. The young, unknown artist is no longer unknown. He ages less than does Jennie. Slowly he understands Jennie's strange aura of unreality and finally, knowing her for what she is, a sweet, gentle memory of a child who lived, lonely, and died alone years before.

There is a tender ethereal quality about Robert Nathan's latest novel which his large group of admirers will find a new manifestation of his gift for phantasy. Like all of Mr. Nathan's work, it is written with infinite care for beauty of style and delicacy of phrase. Unlike some of his most popular novels, it has few laughs, even quiet ones. Here rather are quiet tears, hushed ones, for the sweet sadness of love and beauty lost.

Memories of Chicago.

"Recollections of a Grandfather," by Victor Elting. [Kroch, $5.]

"On the morning of July 2, 1892, I reached Chicago to begin my work," writes Victor Elting after reviewing the first 20 years of his life spent in the east. From that sentence until almost the end of these interesting recollections Mr. Elting records his life in Chicago, where for almost 50 years, until he returned to the east, he was one of Chicago's leading citizens. And as the pages turn, Chicago grows before the reader's eyes from a cobblestone paved frontier "big town" to one of the world's great cities.

"There was no elevated loop then to mark the area," Mr. Elting says. The Masonic temple was hailed as "the biggest building in the entire country," but unheated horse cars provided the city's rapid transit, except for the main arteries where dashing cable cars were operated by those heroic grip men who, so other legends have it, often froze to death at their grips in the bitter Chicago winters.

"Horses hitched to smart turnouts, four in hands to tallyhos, and hansom cabs give place to chugging devil-wagons and the streets finally settle down to the relatively undramatic automobile. Even the smells of the city change in these pages.

During the period of growing up, Mr. Elting says, good Chicagoans felt a personal urge to make their city a better as well as a bigger place. But something happened, and Chicago went on getting bigger and its citizens and their good works less important. Mr. Elting regrets that. He says that "a review of Chicago of today leads to the conclusion that its primary claim to greatness must be based upon its size, its wealth, and its success in business and finance, rather than upon its achievements in spiritual and cultural things—fine as some of these have been."

We should have more such personal records of life in Chicago—they might revive in her citizens the fine spirit of individual responsibility which made Chicago great.

Good Companions

J. B. Priestley, author of "The Good Companions," and Mrs. Priestley in their home in London just after he had finished his new novel, "Let the People Sing," reviewed today by Fanny Butcher.

Young Couples' Problems Told in New Novels

"But You Are Young," by Josephine Lawrence. [Little-Brown, $2.50.] Published last Saturday.
"The Cradle Builder," by Walter Schoenstedt. [Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50.] Published Monday.
"Love in the Sun," by Leo Walmsley. [Doubleday-Doran, $2.50.] Published last Friday.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Three new novels, two of them American and one English, are concerned with the struggles of young people in this troubled world. In Josephine Lawrence's book, "But You Are Young," Kelsie Wright and Page Tolman find themselves stymied by their families. Kelsie's pay envelope keeps her household, consisting of unemployed father and brother, hard working mother, grandmother, little brother, Dory, and young sister, Loria, from the relief rolls. And Page is the sole support of his mother and sister.

Miss Lawrence writes with great sincerity and thoroness about her characters, but her story is dull. It would have been helped by a few light touches of humor, and a few more kindly souls.

In "The Cradle Builder," by Walter Schoenstedt, the struggle is one of adjustment. Ellen Carter, who has left Rutland, Vt., the home of her ancestors, to seek her fortunes in New York, falls in love with and marries a young German exile, Peter Volkers, who has left his country because he cannot tolerate conditions under a totalitarian régime. Ellen is quiet, calm, hard-working, and serious. Peter is volatile, egoistic, bound up in himself, his past and his reactions to a new environment.

Both become conscious of their varying backgrounds and outlook and because of their unending struggle for mere existence find it hard to make the necessary adjustments to each other. In the end they are bound together by a fresh tie, that of parenthood.

Like Miss Lawrence's novel, "The Cradle Builder" would have been more readable had it departed from its extreme seriousness and indulged for just a few scattered pages in the perspective on life that includes the ability to laugh at oneself and to see humor even in near tragedy.

If you are refreshed by the sight of a bunch of heather among a lot of fancy orchids in a florist's window, if you enjoy the simple delight of good bread and fresh butter, if your heart looks up when you see white clouds scudding across a blue sky above a choppy ocean Leo Walmsley's novel, "Love in the Sun," is your book. For it contains the earthy, eternal pleasures of all these things.

It is an unpretentious story of two unpretentious people who have little money [indeed, they know what it is to be hungry] but a tremendous zest for living. The simplest things they do take on warmth and excitement: the making over of a ramshackle army hut, filthy and in bad repair, into a clean, cozy little home; the first planting of their garden; the first time they catch an eight pound fish and other adventures; the typing of "the book," in which their whole future is bound up.

Mr. Walmsley writes with such vividness of detail that the story might well be autobiographical. His pictures of the young husband [it is he who tells the story] and of Dain, the bride, are all given indirectly but with amazing warmth of appeal. You are caught up in the incidents of their daily lives, in their fears and hopes and their ambitions until you find, with reluctance, that the last page has been reached.

"Love in the Sun" is that rare tale, a novel that bears re-reading. It is timeless, as are the qualities of simplicity, courage, generosity, love and humor with which it is imbued.

Authors and Their Work

The Dodd-Mead $1,000 award in its fourth Red Badge Detective Story contest has been given to David Keith for his novel, "A Matter of Iodine." Mr. Keith has written a number of books in the field of literary criticism. His mystery story is founded in part on his own experience in France two years ago.

Martin Hare, whose novel, "Polonaise" will be published next Tuesday by Macmillan, has made her home in Warsaw, Poland, for some years, where her husband was a Polish engineer. They were there during the five days of "terrible bombardment" and the train in which they escaped was attacked by German bombers. Miss Hare was injured by splinters during the attack, but was able to reach Kaunas in Lithuania.

In answer to the ever-recurring question: Who is Ethel Vance of "Escape" fame? Editor Weeks of the Atlantic monthly replies: "Take Nora Waln, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Dorothy Thompson, Phyllis Bottome and add vermouth."

C. S. Forester is on his way to Hollywood to write a scenario about Capt. Hornblower's exploits. Readers of "Captain Horatio Hornblower" find a similarity between the story of the frigate Lydia and its conquering of the great Spanish ship, the Natividad, and the recent affair of the Ajax, Achilles, and Exeter vs. the Graf Spee.

Du Bose Heyward, whose latest novel is "Star Spangled Virgin" [Farrar, $2] and whose latest play is "Mamba's Daughters" [Farrar, $2], has been named resident playwright of the Carolina Art association. The association has received a Rockefeller Foundation grant for the inauguration of playwriting activities at the Dock Street theater in Charleston.

The Girl in the Shadows

By Roy Vickers

[Copyright: 1940: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

SYNOPSIS.

On the eve of her marriage, Cynthia Brentiford, fashion artist, is sentenced to 18 months in prison under the name of Clara Brown. A casual date with Rory Clark has made her, unknowingly, an accomplice—in robbery and murder. Unaware of the disaster, her fiancé, Michael Alloway, is on his way from Malta for the wedding. At Honebyker, Cynthia's childhood playmate, Bessie Stockley, is a prison wardress. She promises to meet Michael and break the terrible news to him.

INSTALMENT III.

PRISON LEAVE.

Cynthia's and Bessie's conversations were in brief, snatched whispers.

"It'll be an awful shock for him," muttered Bessie. "Has he taken a house or anything like that?"

"No. We were to be married by special license on the twenty-fourth. He has only a fortnight's leave and we were to spend it as a honeymoon in London and then I was to go back to Malta with him for a year. He's building the big new aerodrome camp there—he's the civil engineer in charge."

"Oo—er!" sighed Bessie, who was dreading the ordeal of breaking the news more than anything she had ever dreaded before. Apart from her personal affection, there was in Bessie a strong loyalty. A legacy in Sir John's will had enabled Bessie to train at the technical school which made qualification as a civil servant in the prison service possible.

She wiped away tears in her bed that night.

"There's her whole life ruined."

She found herself thinking hard of that marriage by special license, of that fortnight's honeymoon, and then the return to Malta. Her imagination wove a startling solution. And Bessie was not primarily an imaginative young woman—before everything else, she was a woman of action.

A fortnight's honeymoon! She herself was to have a fortnight's holiday. Those two facts welded themselves together in a white hot flash of romantic daring. It burst from her at last in the hoarse whisper with which she was obliged to communicate everything to Cynthia.

"You and I are like enough if people don't look too close. And nobody knows anybody else here. And what with all the convicts being chopped and changed 'round every five minutes, no one'll recognize me in No. 63's uniform."

Before Cynthia could fully grasp the suggestion she was gone. But in the course of the next few days she constantly referred to the idea.

"It's your whole life, Miss Cynthia. You've only got to keep your head for about five minutes and it's done. You can get married to Mr. Alloway and he'll never know."

"But afterwards?" faltered Cynthia, thrilled yet shaken at the very thought of the mad venture.

"You can give him an excuse for not going back to Malta with him. Pretend you've got appendicitis or something. And then see how the cards fall."

"But you, Bessie—if it's all found out, what about you?"

"I'll take my medicine."

And then: "O, Miss Cynthia, darling, let me do this for you!"

And lastly:

"Tomorrow night—ten to six. Have everything loose and ready to drop off you."

At ten to six on the Friday evening Bessie slipped into Cynthia's cubicle and immediately tore off her uniform which Cynthia, who had stripped first, began to put on.

"Remember you come on duty at the 3 o'clock relief 14 days on from today. Report at a quarter to three and then if I've been shifted, wander about the corridors and ask for me, saying you've got to see me for the lady governor."

Dressing with all the speed she could command from her trembling fingers, Cynthia could still marvel at her friend's confidence in her.

"Aren't you afraid that I'll let you down, Bessie?"

"Not in a thousand years. Now, don't forget—turn to the left. You know where our changing room is. Walk straight in there. There's no need to speak to anybody. My locker is No. 14."

"But the relief? They'll be expecting you, won't they?"

"Say you've relieved me. We're always being relieved by strange faces. Be a bit sulky about it. And when you go out by the outer door, say 'Good night, George' to the porter. Pull yourself together, for heaven's sake, Miss Cynthia! You'll be all right."

"O, Bessie, I can't!"

"You must." And Bessie, herself in convict's dress, pushed her into the corridor.

The intense determination in that push helped to carry Cynthia down the corridor and almost into the arms of the relieving wardress.

"I thought Stockley was on this shift," remarked the latter, producing a pencil and time sheet.

"Never know where you are these days," agreed Cynthia in a grumbling undertone, signing something indecipherable in the first empty space and the other countersigned it.

"You certainly don't. S'long!"

Still clutching the book—Bessie had forgotten to warn her of this point of routine—Cynthia strode on to the changing room. No. 14 locker held a dark cloth dress and coat, rather too heavy for the warm summer afternoon outside, a simple hat, gloves, shoes, and a bag. By a merciful chance the room was empty and Cynthia changed again at speed.

"Stockley! Hurry, can't you!" urged a voice from outside. Cynthia dragged the hat well down over her face and dashed out, buttoning her coat as she ran. Her first glimpse of the other colleagues sent her back again for her time sheet.

"She doesn't want her holiday—she'd rather stay here," chaffed another voice. Cynthia managed a grin.

"Come on, do!"

In a side hallway a dozen wardresses were waiting to be passed out.

"Good night, George," ventured Cynthia.

"Your sheet, miss, please. You girls'd forget your heads if I didn't remind you about 'em."

There was a general laugh—and she was safely in the street outside.

Most of the wardresses lived in the locality. But half a dozen or so were making for the tram halt. Cynthia followed. There was a nerve-wracking wait for the tram. She took a twopenny ticket but got out three minutes later at sight of a tube station.

Twenty minutes later she was in central London.

In Bessie's bag was the key to Cynthia's flat. As Cynthia entered it and shut the door behind her the sense of sleep walking suddenly fell from her and she faced reality. It was the flat itself which gave her back her sense of proportion. She became her old self—it was as if the last three catastrophic weeks had been blotted out.

There were a number of letters which Bessie had decided not to bring to her. She began to open and read them. Scrappy little notes from her girl friends. Three or four business letters, one of them indignant at her failure to reply. Her normal life built itself up 'round her again. It was as the Bessie had pushed her back into the real world. And, whether her nerve failed or not, in this world she would have to stay—for 14 days. After that—if she were to tell Michael the truth he would believe her; and, believing in her, he would insist on marrying her.

This Isn't Exactly a Mystery, but a Good Murder Novel

"Same Way Home," by Rupert Croft-Cooke. [Macmillan, $2.50.]

This is not exactly a murder mystery, but just a good death in a good setting—and its consequences. It is the absorbing story of what happened in a quiet, well-to-do English family when a murder took place in their living room.

The characters in it are excellent. There is Geoffrey, the only son, a sweet tempered, sensitive youth, who thinks he has committed the murder. There is his twin sister, a religious zealot, who is sure he did it, and thinks he should pay the penalty. There is his father, a gruff, irascible colonel [what is an English novel without a colonel?], who is determined his son did not do it. There is a sister, Olive, who finds it material for her interest in psychology.

All in all, it is well done and interesting. O, yes, the murder was that of Geoffrey's sweetheart, but no one cared about her.

MAYOR TO URGE $1,500,000 CITY BUDGET SLASH

Will Ask Improvements Board Cut Today.

A reduction of $1,500,000 in the proposed $58,078,392 city operating budget will be recommended to the city council finance committee today by its staff members, with the approval of Mayor Kelly. The suggestion entails the virtual abolition of the board of local improvements. Work of the board would be handled by the department of public works and the department of streets and electricity, according to the proposal.

The announcement that the reduction is to be requested was made late last night by Mayor Kelly after a 14 hour conference of staff members of the finance committee, city department heads, and leading aldermen of the finance committee. Finance committee experts have been surveying department requests for 1940 appropriations since Dec. 21, when the tentative budget was submitted to the council, with the proposed reduction in mind.

Seek Alley Cleaning Hike.

Mayor Kelly said reductions aggregating $2,000,000 would be suggested but that an additional $450,000 for alley cleaning would be requested above the amount now set up in the budget for that purpose. This would bring the total saving to approximately $1,500,000.

Under the proposal approved by Mayor Kelly, the board of local improvements would be continued, but merely as a liquidating organization. Its sole work would be the settlement of $24,000,000 in accounts involving special assessment notes. Board members would be $1 a year men instead of $4,000 to $6,000 a year executives. The present extensive staff would be reduced to a limited force.

The board, Mayor Kelly explained, was organized to supervise the construction of public improvements by private contractors under the special assessment plan. The assessments were made against property owners benefited by the improvements.

Special Assessments Day Gone.

"Special assessments are a thing of the past; public improvements nowadays are carried on directly by the city," Mayor Kelly said. "Some employés would be dropped and others, particularly engineers, would be transferred to the two departments which would carry on the work."

The immediate saving by changing the board's status would be $200,000, according to the recommendation. Mayor Kelly said the move would result in further savings in the future.

Proposed reductions in the tentative budget also include changes and cuts in other departments. These will be made public at the committee meeting today.

The proposal to refrain from filling 297 vacancies in the police and fire departments has been dropped, Mayor Kelly said. The majority of these vacancies will be filled, he added.

Mayor Kelly explained that budget reductions are necessary because it was originally anticipated the city would realize $2,000,000 during 1940 on $3,136,914 in court judgments against Cook county for Municipal court costs. The county, however, only appropriated $640,000 for judgment payments this year.

SUBWAY NICKEL THIEF TELLS HOW HE FIXED METERS

New York, Jan. 9 [Special].—How he and another man charged with looting the city-owned subway system managed to steal from 300 to 500 nickels a day from one turnstile was described today in the first of a series of trials growing out of wholesale thefts which District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey charges cost the city $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 in revenues.

The witness today was Isidore Kadisow, a former station agent, one of the 28 men who have confessed their part in the nickel stealing conspiracy. He told how a secret ambition to become a singer moved him to join the gang at the invitation of Edward J. Rigney, 57 year old former maintenance man, who is on trial on charges of stealing $25,000. Rigney is one of eight of 36 indicted who deny the charges.

Kadisow explained how the subway thieves turned back meter readings, pocketing the difference between actual fares taken in and the small number shown after tampering with the meters.

MODEL ARRESTED FOR DEFRAUDING HOTEL OF $165

Miss Sheila Errolsmythe, former Los Angeles and Hollywood clothes model, was in the county jail yesterday charged with defrauding an innkeeper. She registered at the Drake hotel Dec. 30 and ran up a bill of $165, which included champagne for an orchestra on New Year's Eve.

Miss Errolsmythe says she is 25 years old, but her mother, Mrs. M. E. Brooker, said last night she is 19 and given to romancing. Mrs. Brooker is a saleswoman in a clothing store. Miss Errolsmythe told police here she is a member of a wealthy family on the west coast.

The girl left her home in Los Angeles a few days after Christmas, announcing she was going to New York to work as a model. She will be arraigned before Judge Francis Borrelli in Women's court tomorrow.

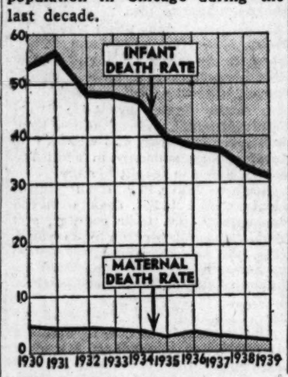
Graph compares the general death and birth rates per 1,000 population in Chicago during the last decade.



Trend of the infant death rate and the maternal death rate per 1,000 live births in Chicago during the same period.

CITY DEATH RATE DECREASES FOR MOST DISEASES

Cancer, Heart Ailments Take Higher Toll.

The toll of epidemic diseases continues to decrease in Chicago, death rate figures of the board of health for 1939 disclosed yesterday. The figures, with part of December estimated, show that while the general death rate was 10 deaths per 1,000 persons —a slight increase over the all time low of 9.7 in 1938—the rates for most diseases decreased.

There were increases, however, in the death rates for cancer, heart disease, influenza, and infantile paralysis.

"Health officers are gaining headway in checking diseases of an epidemic nature," said Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, "but cancer and heart disease are up to the individual. They could be checked if caught early enough. Too many people are not aware that they are suffering from those diseases."

201 Influenza Deaths.

The only serious epidemic during the year was influenza, which resulted in 201 deaths compared with 88 in 1938. There were six deaths from infantile paralysis, compared with one in 1938.

The major disease death rates for 1939, 1938, and 1937, based on each 100,000 of population, follow:

Disease.	1939.	1938.	1937.
Diphtheria	1.6	1.9	2.3
Infantile paralysis	0.2	0.03	1.0
Scarlet fever	0.8	1.4	1.7
Tuberculosis	51.5	52.6	54.9
Pneumonia	46.7	50.3	61.2
Typhoid fever	0.2	0.3	0.3
Whooping cough	1.0	1.8	1.1
Measles	0.03	1.1	0.3
Influenza	5.6	2.4	7.2
Cancer	139.6	134.8	132.5
Heart disease	341.5	315.5	320.2
Nephritis	83.1	84.6	88.0

Infant Death Rate Down.

The infant and maternity mortality rates continued to decrease last year. Dr. Bundesen attributed the reduction to continued rigid enforcement of rules in hospital maternity wards and the increase in distribution of free mother's milk from stations organized at the request of Mayor Kelly. He also said the city campaign against syphilis has been effective.

Infant and maternal death rates, for each 1,000 live births:

	1939.	1938.	1937.
Infant	31.4	33.7	37.8
Maternal	2.5	2.7	3.3

The birth rate per 1,000 decreased from 14.3 in 1938 to 13.5 in 1939. There were 48,800 births in the city.

DARKEST AFRICA GETS READY FOR TOURIST TRADE

Offers 2d Longest Land Journey in World.

BY FREDERIC BABCOCK.

When and if the European war ever comes to a close, and Americans again flock to the old world for their sightseeing, they will find opened up to them the world's second longest direct journey by land.

This is the 5,000 mile trip from Capetown to Cairo. Its length is exceeded only by that of the dreary route across Siberia.

To date there has been little individual travel thru the heart of Africa. The comparatively few tourists who have taken the trip have been members of conducted groups. Now the interior of the continent is being developed for commercial travel, with the result that the tourist will be able to go from the Mediterranean to the cape "on his own," unattended, and in comfort.

Bridge Rail-River Gap.

Word from Khartoum, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, says this is being accomplished by bridging the gap between Juba, the head of navigation on the White Nile, and Bukama, the northern terminus of the railroad from Elizabethville and Capetown.

Nearly all this vast area lies in the eastern part of the Belgian Congo. Forty thousand miles of mountain roads have been built there under the direction of Belgian engineers. These new roads, with the railways and the steamer routes on lakes and rivers, make a complete system of transportation. The system connects with others to the north and south and opens to tourists regions swarming with bird life and wild game.

The roads are being supplemented by hotels at overnight stops, by recreation houses in the national parks and other game preserves, and by auto and bus services.

Pygmyland a National Park.

Eastern Belgian Congo is a region of lofty peaks, active volcanoes, lakes, glaciers, alpine growths, and immense forests. It contains the Parc Nacional Albert, with its gorilla sanctuary, and the mysterious Ituri forest, where the late Martin Johnson filmed the pygmies.

Travelers arriving there from the north will sail up the White Nile, thru vast ranges of hippopotami and wild elephants, and past villages of strangely decorated giant tribesmen. They will see such marvels as Margherita peak, glacier clad and piercing the sky 16,810 feet above sea level.

Angry Jackson Hole Folks Commandeer Snow Plows

Jackson, Wyo., Jan. 9 (AP).—More than 100 men seized two state highway department rotary snow plows tonight and started to clear away three feet of snow blocking Teton pass highway. Led by Charles Kratzer, editor of the Jackson Hole Courier, the men acted after a massmeeting protesting the highway department's failure to keep the pass open this winter. The pass highway runs 26 miles from Jackson to Victor, Idaho, the nearest marketing outlet. The highway commission said it lacked funds to keep the pass clear.

What is to be seen in the Mormon Temple square in Salt Lake City, Utah? F. C. M.

The 10 acre square, surrounded by an adobe wall 15 feet high and 3 feet thick, takes in such landmarks as the Latter Day Saints' temple, the tabernacle, with its great pipe organ; the Pioneer museum, the Old Log Cabin, first house built in Utah, and the Seagull monument, commemorating the arrival of huge flocks of these birds at a time when the first Mormon crops were threatened by locusts.

The other day there was some mention of the Japanese empire's forthcoming observance of its 2,600th anniversary. Please tell us something about it. B. J. D.

The celebration will be held Feb. 11. On that date, 2,600 years ago, "the first human emperor," Jinmu Tenno, acceded to the throne. Temple services, special rites at the imperial palace in Tokio, and fêtes thruout the country will mark the anniversary. Paradoxically, the people will express their deepest sentiments in an atmosphere of tinseled and flower bedecked gayety. In Japanese the day is known as kigen-setsu.

Just what is Mexico's Monte de Piedad [Mount of Pity]? Where is it? D. K.

It is the national pawnshop, a government regulated institution that is a favorite haunt of collectors and of tourists interested in buying jewels, musical instruments, and furniture. As a result of changes in family fortunes thruout Mexico's turbulent history, some remarkable treasures have found their way to the shop and never have been redeemed. While many Americans buy mantillas there, the chief attraction, perhaps, is the array of pawned jewels. Tapestries, carvings, china, glass, carpets, pianos, inlaid furniture, copies of the classics, and elaborate fans are other attractions. The shop is situated on the Zocalo, Mexico City's main plaza.

FOUND DEAD IN GARAGE AT HOME FROM MONOXIDE

Albert C. Goodnow, 49 years old, formerly engaged in the sand business, was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning yesterday in the garage behind his home at 600 Longwood drive, Glencoe. Members of the family found the body after becoming alarmed when he did not appear for dinner.

Policemen Arthur Pantle and Alex Chacharon of Glencoe, who investigated, said Goodnow was in the front seat of his sedan, with the windows of the sedan and the doors of the garage closed. Goodnow had been in poor health for some time. Surviving are his widow, Suzanne, and two daughters, Suzanne and Joan.

Casuals Seeking Warmth Set Vacant Garage Afire

Homeless men seeking shelter from the cold last night set fire to the floor of a vacant public garage at 8043 Halsted street while trying to warm themselves. They fled before firemen arrived. Damage to the building, owned by Charles McIlvaine, 1546 West 87th street, was estimated at $300.

CHICAGO ANGLERS VIE IN MIAMI'S FISHING TOURNEY

Prizes Totaling $10,000 to Be Awarded.

BY BOB BECKER.

The $10,000 Metropolitan Miami Fishing tournament, which annually attracts hundreds of Chicago sportsmen, opened Sunday.

Prizes in this unusual competition are awarded to those who hook the largest fish of various species. Already the anglers are boating big sailfish, marlin, Allison tuna, and other varieties. The tournament lasts 99 days, and officials predict that nearly 200,000 persons will take part.

J. W. Gegner of Chicago is the defending champion in the Allison tuna class. The big one he caught in 1938 weighed 164½ pounds and thereby set a record. The largest tuna recorded last season was a 150 pounder caught by I. M. Simon of Brooklyn, N. Y., but Simon's record has been beaten this season by A. I. Brown of Washington, D. C. Brown was fishing off Miami Beach the day after Christmas and landed an Allison weighing 159¾ pounds.

104 Pound Sailfish.

Some of the keenest competition in the Miami event comes in the sailfish division. Sportsmen will try to beat the 1939 record established by Ruth Edmands of Newton Center, Mass. She landed a 104½ pounder.

Two large marlins already have been taken this season. Al Pack of Detroit and Miami Beach landed a 208 pound blue marlin, and Hoy Simons of Washington Court House, O., brought in a 127 pound white one.

This year's tournament also includes competition for light tackle enthusiasts who prefer fly rods and bait casting rods to giant saltwater rods and reels. Large mouth bass are included in both the plug and fly divisions, and tarpon caught on light tackle also may be entered.

Tarpon Takes Light Lure.

Many anglers never have experimented with the sport of casting plugs for tarpon, but one of the outstanding achievements of last season was the taking of a 102 pounder on a light bait casting outfit. This trick was turned by Miss Frankie Laidlaw of Miami, who was seeking ladyfish with a little red and white plug [similar to the kind northern bass fishermen use] and was surprised to have the big tarpon take her lure.

Glenn B. Walker, 1903 Pershing road, is back in Chicago with a record that qualifies him as a salt water expert. He and his nephew, William Walker of Evanston, caught 6 sailfish in 5 hours in the waters off Acapulco, Mexico. The smallest was 9 feet long; the largest measured 9 feet 11½ inches.

DOMESTIC WHO WED MILLIONAIRE BOSS DIES AT 75

Center Harbor, N. H., Jan. 9 (AP).—Mrs. Mary Clarkin Bates FitzRoy, who came to America as an Irish domestic 50 years ago and 10 years later inherited $8,000,000 from her socially prominent husband, died today at her summer home. She was 75 years old. Her marriage in 1895 to John D. Bates, who had employed her as a cook, caused a stir among Bates' friends in Boston society. He was 61 at the time, twice the age of his bride. He died five years later, leaving her his fortune. In 1905 Mrs. Bates married Capt. Henry F. FitzRoy of the British navy. They were divorced in 1924.

MONKEY POPULATION BOOMS IN VERO BEACH JUNGLE GARDEN HOME

Vero Beach, Fla., Jan. 9 [Special].—That the hundreds of members of the monkey family are finding the jungle gardens near here a good place in which to establish a home is indicated by the many births within the last year.

Spider monkeys, rhesus monkeys, and macaques are among those that have made substantial additions to their tribes.

In a number of instances the baby monkeys, orphaned soon after birth, have been adopted by elders of their own species, but it remained for 3 year old Josephine Chimpanzee to establish a precedent. When a pair of rhesus babies were deserted by their mother, Josephine readily took to the job of rearing them. Now the two are well on their way to healthy monkeyhood.

CHARGE CZARISM IN MANAGEMENT OF N. Y. HOSPITAL

New York, Jan. 9 [Special].—Angry charges of czarism and rib breaking violence were made today in a battle over management of the Sydenham hospital which has resulted in resignations of 25 members of the medical staff. Dr. David I. Kaliski, former head of the New York Medical society, made the charges. During the conflict Gustavus A. Rogers, new president of the hospital on Harlem's lower fringe, has been labeled "A. Hitler."

Rogers retorted by blaming the feud on a group of "medical bosses or czars." One of the physicians who are opposing him, Rogers added, recently attacked a smaller colleague, fracturing two of his ribs.

Trouble at the hospital leading up to the mass resignations started after Dec. 4, when Rogers, an attorney, became head of the institution and 11 new directors were elected. The new board threatened to take over practically all medical direction of the hospital, Dr. Kaliski declared.

TRAVEL EXPERTS EXPECT SEASON TO TOP NORMAL

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 9 [Special].—Three-fourths of the travel experts of America look for a season above normal in the next two or three months. The remaining fourth expect a normal season.

Results of a nation-wide air mail poll were announced today by Don Thomas, managing director of the All-Year Club of Southern California.

Among those interviewed were officials of hotels, travel agencies, and winter resort areas, and travel editors of the leading newspapers. The vote ran:

Above normal season, 73.6 per cent; normal season, 26.4 per cent; below normal season, none.

A note of caution, Mr. Thomas said, threaded a majority of the predictions. While most of the forecasters expected a heavy volume in the travel field, they were doubtful about the probability of that volume breaking all records.

MEXICO TO MAKE ARMS MUSEUM OF FAMED FORT

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 9 [Special].—Following the granting of 40,000 pesos to recondition Molino del Rey, in this city's Chapultepec park, the Mexican government has decided to remake the fort into a museum of arms. The park was the scene of a battle between Mexican and United States forces in 1847.

Other historical sites that will lend themselves to the same purpose are to be chosen thruout the republic and turned into armories. Most of the weapons are relics of the wars against France and the United States, the centuries of Spanish occupation, and the early day revolutions.

Raymond Massey in Illinois.

There has to be a gag about everything. Carl Sandburg went backstage to see Raymond Massey Monday night. And Massey told Sandburg about Lincoln.

Brings to mind the quip current when Abe Lincoln in Illinois opened in New York—that Massey had so immersed himself in the Lincoln rôle he already had written three letters to Mrs. Bixby.

Quips aside, Mr. Massey's portrayal of Lincoln is one of the most moving theater experiences of our life, and the presentation of the Lincoln-Douglas debate was a high point in a noble play. Mr. Massey obviously was moved at presenting the play on its home soil, so to speak, as voice and manner attested when he made his short curtain speech.

He probably was not far wrong in his feeling that the audience was a particularly Lincoln-aware one. Besides Oliver Barrett, Lloyd Lewis, Otto Eisenschiml, Bessie Pierce, and other Lincoln authorities, there were men and women present steeped in Lincoln literature and poetry. After Ann Rutledge's death we heard the man back of us slowly whispering to his companion the lines of Edgar Lee Masters' incomparable poem that are chiseled on her gravestone near New Salem.

. . . I am Ann Rutledge who sleeps beneath these weeds.
Beloved in life of Abraham Lincoln,
Wedded to him, not through union
But through separation.
Bloom forever, O republic, from the dust of my bosom.

The lines that kept recurring to us were Joseph Auslander's, often quoted:

Abraham wore a stovepipe hat
That brushed the stars down when he talked. . . .

Add Italian Exhibit Tales.

As long as the Italian exhibit at the Art institute is being held over one more day—today—perhaps we can print one more story.

As Lord Lothian and Commander Centure, the royal commissioner of the exhibition, got under the rail to get a close look at the Fra Angelico painting, a woman asked if she couldn't get under the rail, too. The guard said it was Lord Lothian, the British ambassador, going under the rail.

"I suppose there are politics even in hell," answered the woman resignedly.

Square Dancers to Start Season on Friday Night

BY JUDITH CASS.

THERE has been so much doing all fall and winter that a large group of young people who enjoy country dancing have not had time to organize their usual series of parties. At last, however, announcements have been received that "the first meeting of the third season of the Square Dancers is to be held on Friday at the Lake Shore Athletic club."

The Gilbert Osgoods and the Stewart Boals, who comprise the committee for the dances, have sent out more invitations than ever before. Every one who ever has attended one of the parties was invited to join again. The ballroom at the club is roomy; O. Q. Hamilton, who has called the dances in past seasons, has been engaged again, and liquid refreshments will be available.

Miss Mary Hale, the Alexander C. Bells [Tita Johnson], the Gregory Durhams, the Howard Fishers, and the Kellogg Fairbanks will be among the newcomers. Benjamin Ayer Fairbank enjoys the parties as much for the wonderful candid camera material they provide as for the exercise.

Square Dancing Is Lots of Exercise.

And there is plenty of exercise to be had in a couple of hours of square dancing with a piano and a fiddle beating out lively tunes. One's mind must be as nimble as one's feet, too, for quick response to the calls is necessary to make a number go smoothly.

Mrs. Benjamin Fairbank's sister, Miss Barbara Hobart; the junior Jeffrey R. Shorts, Roger Dustin Shaw, the Harlan T. Pierponts, the Benjamin Crawfords, and the junior Frank F. Fowles are among the square dancing regulars.

Afternoon Breakfast to Follow Architects' Ball.

"This is no myth, but a reminder to god and goddess to assume their most earthly forms and to assemble on Saturday the 13th at the ungodly hour of 1:30 p. m. Not nectar and ambrosia but a breakfast calculated to keep one's feet on the ground," read cards received by the architects and their wives invited earlier by telephone to a party the junior Byron S. Harveys are giving at their home, 70 Cedar street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey had a similar party the day after the assembly, and it was such a success that they decided to repeat it as an aftermath to the Architects' ball.

A harpist will provide music for the Harveys and their guests, not as soothing as harp music usually is, however, for the harpist is a swing artist. Walter Frazier, one of the guests invited to the breakfast, remembers the parties that used to be given after the Twelfth Night balls, so he is looking forward with nostalgic pleasure to the Harveys' affair.

Many Dinner Parties Will Precede Ball.

Dozens of dinner parties have been planned for Friday night to precede the ball, which is to be given at the Trianon ballroom on the south side. Ralph Hines, the George Senseneys and the Philip Mahers are having a large party at the Racquet club. The John Roots and the Neil Cowhans are entertaining jointly in the Love Through the Ages room of the Tavern. Mr. Frazier and the Walter S.

From the Resort Showings

The Yard Goods Give Colorful View of Spring

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Saunter thru the yard goods departments for a color preview of spring! Bolts and bolts of new linens, cottons, and other thin materials as well as all kinds of new patterned printed silks are on display to tempt the shopper.

Many of the loveliest colors should be selected now, for it's seldom that the same colors return in the exact shade featured now. Striped shirtlings for crispy smart daytime dresses are particularly easy on the eyelines . . . some unusual color combines such as deep red on a raspberry pink background, cool greens, soft old blues, and a few copper browns with burnt orange are ideal for the shirtwaist type dress.

Chambray finds are especially colorful in those clean looking duotone effects, willow ware blue, tobacco brown, and crushed strawberry pink. Striped chambray to match offers the material to use for contrasting jackets and tops.

Coarse weave linens for simple daytime outfits are in flattering colors . . . chartreuse, raspberry, faded pink, old gold, lemon yellow, copper, and natural tones in creamy beige shades and oyster white. Thinner linens with a delicate pattern of squares made with shadow lines [achieved with pulled threads] come in an exceptionally colorful assortment—flesh, beige, white, mint green, gold, yellow, and copper.

If you crave a padded jacket, one of those demure printed cotton affairs spattered with tiny designs of small flowers and leaves, you can make your own. This quilted stuff now comes by the yard.

★ THRU THE LOOKING GLASS ★

There are few things as valuable to the possessor of an oily skin, prone to blackheads and that grimy look, as the complexion brush. This is as true for the mature person as for the adolescent.

It's often true that the skin has to be "conditioned" to the regular use of a fairly stiff brush. The first time a brush is used it might strike the user as extremely rough treatment. But if you stick with it and use it infrequently at first [as well as very gently] you'll usually find that the skin not only accepts the friction and cleansing more gracefully, but thrives on it.

If the skin is extremely sensitive use a softening cream before and after the complexion-brush cleansing. Don't brush too hard, or too long, and be extremely careful about the quality of the soap used with it. Coarse skin can be brushed vigorously and the soap can be almost harsh, but thin skin [and some thin skin is oily] needs gentle treatment, at least at the outset.

The stimulating, vigorous cleansing with a brush will keep blackheads under control. Some skins "manufacture" too much oil, and oil gathers dirt, which accounts for the fact that the blackhead is usually an oily-skin disfigurement. Not only must this grime be routed, but the skin itself must be normalized. The use of a complexion brush is extremely helpful for both purposes.

Blackheads on the back respond to the same kind of treatment. Daily scrubbing with a stiff bath brush will usually clear up the blackheads and tone the skin to the point where the oil flow is not too great.

Bill Robinson Climaxes Red 'Hot Mikado'

"HOT MIKADO."

Opera in two acts by W. S. Gilbert and Sir Arthur Sullivan, with modern adaptations and orchestral arrangements by Charles L. Cooke. Settings and costumes by Nat Karson. Dances by Truly McGee. Staged by Hassard Short. Presented by Michael Todd in the Auditorium theater, beginning Sunday evening, Jan. 7, 1940.

THE CAST.

Nanki-Poo	Maurice Cooper
Pish-Tush	James A. Lillard
Pooh-Bah	Maurice Ellis
Ko-Ko	Freddie Robinson
Yum-Yum	Alice Harris
Pitti-Sing	Rosetta Le Noire
Peep-Bo	Pearle Harrison
Katisha	Rose Brown
The Mikado	Bill Robinson

and many others.

BY CECIL SMITH.

The first act and a half of Michael Todd's "Hot Mikado" serves as brilliant, noisy prelude to the entrance of Bill Robinson, taking time off from his duties as mayor of Harlem to serve as Mikado over the subjects of Titipu. Preceded by lackeys bearing shields decorated with flamboyant photographic portraits of himself, Bill enters clad in an extraordinary costume marked by the inevitable Derby hat, gold pants of glittering sheen, and enormous fur trimmed epaulets.

From the moment of his arrival upon the scene he accomplishes as neat and complete a job of holding the audience in the hollow of his hand as we have seen in many a day—John Barrymore not excepted. Bill Robinson is a great entertainer, and, in his medium, a great artist. Last night he made me think of Walter Huston holding an audience breathless and spellbound last year as he whispered his "September Song" in "Knickerbocker Holiday."

For Bill Robinson shares with Mr. Huston and a choice few other rare stage artists the priceless gift of economy. When he eases off into one of those insinuating tap dances there is not a single waste movement; nothing unnecessary interferes with our complete attention to the split second perfection of his tapped rhythm. Such subtle syncopations as he creates, with cross rhythm between the sound of his feet and the apparently conflicting movement of his body!

Mr. Robinson fabricates his unique characterization of the Mikado according to his own pattern, making no pretense of knowing what Gilbert and Sullivan were driving at. Yet it all jells, for he is a performer with complete integrity, with complete love for his audience, and with an intuitive gift of style.

Even without the climax Mr. Robinson provides, "Hot Mikado" would be a good, and often an exciting, show. Everything is done in a mood of whole hearted exaggeration. Without losing his unusual sense of color harmony, Nat Karson has clothed the cast in marvellously grotesque and eye-opening fashion.

Most of the music is swung to a much better written score than the Federal theater had. Whenever the music reaches the boiling point a group of acrobatic jitterbugs are likely to appear and turn things into a pretty seething session. Among the principals Rose Brown as a big coon-shouting Katisha and Freddie Robinson as a pint size Ko-Ko are standouts.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

Take the Stand, Jimmy Stewart

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 9.—On May 20, 1908, in the small town of Indiana, Pa., the Republican population of the strongly Republican county seat was swelled by the arrival of a small, red faced bundle of boy who is today widely known as Jimmy Stewart.

Jimmy Stewart.

Inasmuch as 1 day old Jimmy was a trifle young to remember exactly what was page 1 news on that particular Wednesday, I'll refresh his memory. . . . Not far away from his birthplace, the Pennsylvania Democrats, in convention, were lining up behind William Jennings Bryan for the presidential convention. . . . At Washington, D. C., Secretary of War Taft was reporting to President Teddy Roosevelt that the excavation work on the Panama canal would be completed in about four years.

At San Francisco, Promoter Jimmy Coffroth announced the signing of Joe Gans and Battling Nelson for a 45 round fight on July 4.

Jimmy, now 6 feet 3, remembers other things, however. . . . For instance, the pannings that the N. Y. drama critics handed him in "Journey by Night," a Shubert "turkey" that lasted four performances. . . . He played the part of a Viennese prince and one critic wrote: "Mr. Stewart, cast as a Viennese nobleman, wanders thru the play like a befuddled tourist on the banks of the Danube." . . . Another suggested: "Mr. Stewart is as Viennese as Gen. Hugh Johnson or that other noted gentleman from Vienna, Al Smith." That was in January, 1935.

A few days later, in response to a wire from Metro Talent Scout Billy Grady, Stewart was training to Hollywood for his first movie rôle in "Murder Man."

He tells me that he doesn't know why he became an actor, or when the yen for the stage first expressed itself. . . . He thinks it dates back to 1918. . . . His father, a captain in ordnance, was sailing for France with his division, and Jimmy's mother took the 8 year old son to New York to see his father off. . . . Then later, from France, his dad sent him some German trench helmets, so Jimmy started staging war plays in the little crude theater in the cellar.

At Mercersburg academy, Drama Teacher Cass got him to play a part in "The Wolves," a play about the French revolution, in which Jimmy wore an Orson Welles beard. . . . At Princeton, from where he was graduated in 1932, he appeared in three Triangle shows. . . . But he's certain that if his father hadn't sent him the helmets, he would never have become an actor.

When the Princeton Triangle show played Baltimore, Princeton Grad Josh Logan saw him and told him he ought to join up with Logan's Barnyard players that coming summer at West Falmouth, Mass. . . . Came vacation and Stewart went to West Falmouth. . . . Logan gave him a job playing the accordion in the tea room that adjoined the box office.

"I settled that tea business for keeps," says Stewart, grinning. "Even people who had lived on tea for years refused to come back" . . . So Logan gave him a job as a scene designer, in which Stewart utilized the architectural knowledge he'd learned at old Nassau.

He might have been building stage sets up to this very day had it not been for the fact that Producer Arthur Beckhardt brought "Goodbye Again" to West Falmouth for a summer tryout. . . . One part was left over, that of the chauffeur: Stewart got it, an eight line part. . . . When the show moved to Broadway, Stewart went along. . . . His first Broadway play had a year's run. . . . Most success stories are different. . . . "Yellow Jack" followed, then a part in Judith Anderson's "Divided by Three." . . . Luckily Grady saw him in that.

Stewart's lanky frame is sparsely cushioned with 157 pounds. . . . He can't put on weight because he has a nervous stomach.

The greatest play he ever saw was the Lunt and Fontanne performance

Brewsters have invited guests to dine with them at the Racquet club, and the Alfred P. Shaws are entertaining at home. Among other dinner hosts will be the Harney Bassetts, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, and the Gordon Kelleys.

Mrs. Nathaniel Owings and Mrs. Gilbert P. Hall entertained some of the architects and their feminine assistants, who are working tooth and nail to make a success of the ball, at luncheon yesterday in the new Skyway room of the Stevens hotel. Every one was so busy admiring the view from the windows, which stretch across one whole side of the room, that they almost forgot the purpose of the meeting to discuss costume plans.

Mrs. Nathalie Parker to Wed Charles Reckitt.

Beau Capturing Must Be Done in a Subtle Way

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"Dear Miss Blake: Whenever I see a boy I know he compliments me. He has never asked me out, but each time I see him he acts as tho he has something on his mind which he is afraid to mention to me. I've wondered if he is afraid to ask me for a 'date,' because he thinks I might refuse? As far as I know, I have given him no reason to think I would refuse. I want him to ask me for a 'date.' Can you tell me how I can make him do so? ANXIOUS."

What a handicap we women have, when it comes to getting an idea over to a man without letting him "catch on" to the fact that we are responsible for their doing things we want them to do! It makes it so much easier for us to use our womanly wiles when we have a strong inkling that the object of our affection is just a bit interested in us. That's why I think you will not have a difficult time getting your heart interest to issue you an invitation.

Do not, under any circumstances, "chase after" him. Such a method is odious. In the end, it seldom gets a girl anywhere with a man. By chasing him we mean the things many girls do, such as calling boys on the telephones, writing them notes, getting in their way at every opportunity, and even going as far as to ask them for dates! The clever way to inveigle your friend into issuing you an invitation is to ask him if he plays bridge, for you'd like to have him to your home some evening for a bridge game, or to a small gathering of your friends. Or, if you belong to some club, which is giving a dance, or a "get-together," ask him if he would like to go with you.

of "Idiot's Delight." . . . Greatest movie he ever saw, "Gone with the Wind." . . . His favorite rôles, those in "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" and "Destry Rides Again." . . . The single scene which he most relished, that scene in "Destry Rides Again" when apparently he shoots the knobs off the roof of the saloon.

His greatest pride, younger Sisters Mary and Virginia . . . Mary studied art at Carnegie Tech, and has just illustrated her first book. . . . Virginia, a Vassar girl, works in a Fifth avenue bookshop in New York. . . . His mother and dad are still living, and his dad still owns the hardware store in Indiana, Pa. . . . The bulk of his business is with mines and coal miners.

The first picture in which he felt actually that he'd done a decent job was Universal's "Next Time We Love" with Margaret Sullavan, another West Falmouth grad. . . . He was enthusisatic about screen work from his first day's shooting on "Murder Man"; is even more enthusiastic now. . . . From now on he will be guided by Frank Capra's insistence: "Never let up in a rôle for a second—and make it real." . . . He has made about twenty-five pictures since 1935. . . . He believes that he's been very lucky, particularly in getting the rôle of "Mr. Smith." . . . It had been written for Gary Cooper, but he couldn't take it. . . . "That is 18 carat luck," drawls Jimmy. . . . It wasn't luck, however, that Stewart played the rôle better that the older Cooper could have played it.

Eye Glasses No Barrier to Beauty if Well Chosen

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Glasses can lend distinctive interest to your eyes if they are selected with regard to their becomingness as well as to their usefulness. The erroneous idea a great many people who must wear glasses have, that glasses spoil one's appearance, is greatly due to the fact that too little is known by the average person about what shape and color of frames, style of coiffure, dress neckline is most becoming. When every one of these features is made the most of there is no nicer picture than a woman who is wearing glasses.

We do not say that, after we have explained a few beauty tricks we have up our sleeve, every woman who is NOT wearing glasses will want to do so. We will, however, say that she may be tempted to feel slightly envious of a woman wearing glasses with such smartness that she outshines her unbespectacled sister.

The first thing to conside when choosing the frames is the color. Clear crystal frames are most flattering for the blue eyed blonde who uses a light makeup; for the blonde who uses deeper makeup, light brown frames; for the brunette, light to darkest brown shell frames; green gold metal frames for the redhead. Metal frames should harmonize with the complexion.

The second thing to consider is the shape of the lenses. Not too large oval lenses become the long, thin face. If you prefer octagon lenses, have the corners rounded. Wear lenses broader on top and tapering to a narrower base to make the face look thinner. With small features wear fine frames and either fine rims or rimless glasses. Larger features may take larger frames and more prorims. White gold, platinum, gray, or crystal shell frames tone in beautifully with the skin of a gray haired person. A soft coiffure and soft dress neckline offset the staidness of glasses.

Today I'm going to try to hit the high spots in tomorrow's menu so that homemakers may be saved the trouble of hunting up certain of the recipes which are called for.

Whole wheat waffles may be made by any favorite waffle recipe. A cup of whole wheat flour is substituted for the white flour. Or follow this formula:

Whole Wheat Waffles.
[Six or more.]
1 cup sifted white flour
1 cup whole wheat flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
3 eggs, separated
1¼ cups milk
¼ cup shortening, melted

Mix and sift dry ingredients, except whole wheat flour. Combine well beaten egg yolks and milk and add to flour mixture. Beat until smooth. Add shortening and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites last.

The chili sauce dressing is made by adding several tablespoons of chili sauce to half a cup of French dressing. Spinach and lettuce should be chopped rather coarsely for the salad.

Date and Cheese Bread.
[One loaf.]
¾ cup boiling water
½ pound dates, cut fine
1¾ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soda
1 beaten egg
1 cup grated American cheese
½ cup chopped nuts

Pour boiling water over dates and let stand five minutes. Sift flour with sugar, salt, and soda. Add date mixture, egg, grated cheese, and nuts. Mix thoroly. Bake in greased loaf pan in moderate oven, 350 degrees, about 50 minutes.

Fruit and nut breads taste better and cut more easily on the second day. This one is no exception.

There must be thousands of recipes for meat loaves. Several hundred of them, no doubt, are good ones. This recipe is one of the several hundred.

Meat Loaf.
[Serves six to eight.]
1 pound ground round steak
½ pound ground pork
1 slightly beaten egg
½ cup cracker crumbs
1 small onion, chopped
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon horseradish
1 tablespoon catsup
1 tablespoon chopped green pepper
1 cup scalded milk

Combine egg with meats. Add other ingredients, mix well, and press into a greased loaf pan. Bake at moderate heat, 350 degrees, for an hour.

Cottage Pudding.
[Eight inch square pan.]
1¾ cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
½ teaspoon lemon extract
⅔ cup milk

Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Cream shortening and add sugar gradually, beating until light. Add egg and flavoring and mix well. Add flour alternately with milk, beating after each addition. Turn into greased square cake pan and bake at 350 degrees for half an hour or slightly longer. Cut cake in squares and serve with sauce.

Quilt Design in Afghan

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

The old fashioned quilt patterns furnish an excellent source of inspiration for crocheted afghan designs, and are as colorful as the beautiful quilt motifs. The "Old Fashioned Flower Garden" design for an afghan is as popular as the quilt block from which it was adapted. It is not difficult to crochet and the same variety of colors may be used for the throw as are used in the quilt. It requires no time to create one of these six sided medallions and all are set together with an eye to contrast and harmony.

For instructions in crocheting the old fashioned flower garden afghan, No. X-164, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

The superiority of experts over average players is traceable in a considerable degree to their shrewd appreciation of the little word "pass!" The word goes thru a curious cycle among players of different rank, from beginner to master. The beginner mutters "pass" on every conceivable occasion, because he is "scared stiff." The weak player virtually discards the word, since his one aim is to bid whenever it is his turn. The average player manages to restrain himself from flagrant overbidding and employs the word grudgingly. The expert, in turn, makes it one of the most powerful weapons in bridge.

A "pass" at the psychological moment returned handsome dividends on today's hand:

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	1 no trump	Pass [1]
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	5 diam's [2]
Pass [3]	Pass	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

[1] East tries a far-fetched trap pass against the no trump bid, hoping that no trump will be the final contract. A very remote possibility, considering his own freak distribution.

[2] East's trap has turned into a boomerang. Having lost the chance to bid at a low level he now makes a "stab" to save game.

[3] Too many players would bid five spades at this point. The pass is a model of proper bidding tactics and technique. South knows that North will realize he is not passing in fear; his previous strong bidding speaks for itself. Therefore, this must be a forcing pass, to allow North to choose between a double and a five spade bid.

It is interesting to notice that on good defense South could not have made five spades. With a diamond opening and a diamond return, South would have had to lose a trump trick, in addition to the club ace and the first diamond trick.

The five diamond contract met a horrible fate. East was unable to win a single trick in the dummy and had to be content with one club and five trump tricks.

The 900 point penalty was fitting reward for South's shrewd pass.

When you have children you've got to make up your mind that they're going to act like children, not little old men and women. You've got to make up your mind that there's going to be normal wear and tear on your possessions. And you've got to make up your mind that they're going to break thinks quite without intention, and often because they live in spaces too cramped for growing children.

I've seen a child at a dinner table look startled and afraid when he spilled a glass of milk, tho his father might with impunity spot a lovely cloth while carving.

Are you just as considerate when the children have an accident at the table, or break something, as you are when a grownup member of the family does it? You should be, only more so.

Why? Well, for at least two reasons. One is that children can't be expected to tbe always cautious, always on guard.

Then, they aren't so deft or accustomed as grown people, so they can't help having more mishaps than an adult does.

Some grown people feel that it is their prerogative to jump on a child whenever he spills something on the tablecloth or breaks a dish, when they wouldn't dream of doing so with an adult. They seem to have some sort of idea that a child should be corrected for everything he does—for his own good, perhaps. Or perhaps because they like the chance to wield the scepter of power. In any case it's all most uncalled for and most unfair.

Children have as much right to a percentage of human error as grownups have—more, in fact, because they're younger and have less experience to steer by.

Three Piece Pajama Outfit

WOMAN'S AND MISS' PAJAMAS.

This three piece pajama ensemble is just what every woman wants for lounging. Without the coat, this outfit is for sleeping, too. Practical souls will make it of gayly printed cottons, while others, who want to reserve the costume for lounging only, may make it of silk, challis, or washable woolen.

Dormitory dwellers particularly will appreciate the comfort and smartness of this pajama outfit with its long and flowing coat that is feminine in spite of being well tailored.

Style No. 3163 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 7⅛ yards of 39 inch material for trousers, jacket top, and coat; 1¼ yards of contrasting for collar, revers, cuffs, pocket flaps, and belt.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. HUSBAND ADMIRING NOW

"I'm through with strong soaps for dishes," says she

It used to be an endless chain of cutting remarks—hurt feelings! He'd make her a left-handed compliment like this: "Your hands used to be so smooth, dear!" And she'd come back with: "Well, if I didn't have dishes to wash 3 times a day they'd still be smooth!" . . . Then her mother said: "Try Ivory Soap."

She stopped washing dishes with strong soap and changed to gentle Ivory. In 2 weeks her hands were smoother! If strong soaps are making your hands look "dishwashy"—change to Ivory for dishes and see your hands improve! Keep using Ivory. It's so gentle that many doctors advise it for babies—yet it costs less than 1¢ a day for all your dishwashing. Get "Large-Size" Ivory today.

Famed Exhibit of Italian Art to Close Tonight

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The Italian masterpieces may be seen for one more day at the Art institute—today. This evening when the last visitor has drawn a long breath of admiration at the beauty of Botticelli's "Birth of Venus" or the lovely serenity of Raphael's "Madonna of the Chair," the doors will be closed upon Chicago's chance to see these great foreign paintings.

Many thousands have gone to the Art institute since the exhibition opened; there is still time for hundreds more to see them. But do not delay. This evening will see the paintings, like so many Cinderellas, slipping out of sight at the stroke of nine.

The Italian exhibit is going on to the Museum of Modern Art in New York for a time, but even New York is not Chicago. The thrill of finding priceless and ageless art on one's own doorstep will not come again in a generation. If you have not seen the exhibit, go now!

There are several small exhibits in galleries about town. At the Chicago Woman's Aid, 185 North Wabash avenue, is a one-man show of paintings by Andrene Kauffman; it runs to imagination and color.

DeHghtful miniatures by Ada Nemode Casterton are on view at the Tudor gallery, Chicago Woman's club, to Jan. 31. Mrs. Casterton is one of the celebrated miniature painters of America and has been honored from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Her work is sensitive and very lovely.

Those who enjoy abstract art and mathematics will revel in the exhibit of "Transparencies, Mobiles, Photograms, Constructions" by Moholy-Nagy at the Katharine Kuh gallery, 540 North Michigan avenue. The work is very different and attractive in a curiously odd way. Moholy-Nagy is director of the school of design and has an international reputation in modern art.

Workers in State Street Give $113,559 to Charity

Executives and employés of State street stores have contributed $113,559 to the mercantile division of the 1939 Community Fund drive. This is an increase of 12 per cent over their 1938 contributions. The fund total now is $3,540,900, or $70,100 less than the goal set. The drive's 40,000 volunteer solicitors will continue their efforts this week.

Szigeti Helps Symphonietta to Big Evening

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The renowned Hungarian violinist, Joseph Szigeti, last night made his only Chicago appearance of the season. He served as soloist with the Saidenberg symphonietta, Daniel Saidenberg conducting, in a Goodman theater concert.

The Szigeti vigor and the long lined Szigeti phrasing were delectably in evidence in the Tartini D-minor concerto. A little later, in the adagio of the Mozart B-flat divertimento, the violinist played with a piercing sweetness of tone and with a calm nobility of delivery which future fiddlers are going to have to work very hard to excel.

Even before Mr. Szigeti showed his face the concert was bringing forth good things. Mr. Saidenberg's 18 strings, balanced, mellow, and working with wonderful unanimity, opened the program with a beautiful concerto grosso of Bassani.

Vitya Vronsky and Victor Babin, Russian duo-pianists, played the Mozart E-flat concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in Orchestra hall yesterday. Frederick Stock conducted. The pianists strengthened the good impression which they have made here on previous occasions. Their playing was delicate and finely calculated, yet it never became fussy or merely dainty.

Bettina Bjorksten, resident soprano, sang oratorio and opera excerpts and lyric songs from several lands in the course of her Kimball hall recital of last evening. Judging by the last three notes of her final scheduled song and by the two encores which luckily she added, Miss Bjorksten has a large voice of good quality which she uses with taste and knowledge.

MONTREAL, Jan. 9 (AP).—The Chicago Blackhawks shook off Montreal's bid for fourth place in the National Hockey league tonight, defeating the Canadiens, 2 to 0, and increasing their margin to three points over their pursuers.

A crowd of 4,500 saw Rookie Paul Goodman achieve his second shutout in six games since replacing Mike Karakas as the Chicago goalie Dec. 27. Since then the Hawks have won three and lost three. His other shutout, first of the season for the Hawks, was against the Detroit Red Wings.

Gottselig Gets Assists.

Both goals came in the second period. Bill Thoms scored the first at 10:45 while Gus Mancuso of Montreal was serving a minor penalty for interference. Thoms' shot from 30 feet was deflected off the skate of Johnny Gottselig in front of the Montreal net. Gottselig got his stick on the rubber and fired it back to Thoms to climax the play.

Gottselig also was awarded an assist on the second goal, as was Thoms, when Doug Bentley scored at 17:36.

Altho Goodman got the shutout, the sensational net minding efforts of the game were turned in by Claude Bourque of Montreal. He made two remarkable saves off Gottselig, robbing him on a breakaway in the first period and another in the third even tho the Hawks were short handed at the time. Joe Cooper serving a penalty for tripping Toe Blake.

Unperturbed by Penalties.

Cooper also was penalized for holding Blake midway in the first period, but Montreal didn't get a shot during Joe's absence. Earl Seibert, escaping penalties in two previous rough encounters, was banished late in the same period for hooking Louie Trudel, but during his absence Goodman had only one easy shot to handle.

Three minutes after the second period started Blake charged Seibert into the boards and drew a two minute penalty. No sooner was he in the penalty box than Bourque was forced to come thru with a fine save off Desilets. On the same power play Demarco missed the open net from 10 feet.

Early in the third period Goodman almost pulled the puck into the net after Mantha, from a scramble near the back boards, attempted to score on a short shot. In attempting to clear, the Chicago goalie got the puck tangled in his feet.

RAFFENSBERGER RETURNS SIGNED CUB CONTRACT

Ken Raffensberger, southpaw recently acquired by the Cubs from Rochester thru the St. Louis Cardinal chain store system, yesterday joined the rapidly expanding list of those under contract. His signed document arrived from York, Pa.

Leonard Merullo, shortstop who was absent last season because of a lame arm, also was formall enrolled. He accepted terms more than a week ago, but mailed in his own copy instead of the original contract. The error has been corrected.

Two Cub rookies recently optioned to the Tulsa club will have the pleasure of being included in the training trip to Catalina Island, after which they'll be shipped to their new employer. The reprieves were granted Ray Campbell and Outfielder Bernard Olsen. They worked at Moline last season.

Open 46 Day Hialeah Park Meet Today

Miami, Fla., Jan. 9 (AP).—The Florida thorobred racing scene shifted tonight to swank Hialeah Park, where officials confidently predicted more than last year's $21,786,000 would be wagered during a 46 day meeting.

The prediction was based on a banner tourist season and the fact that Tropical Park closed its early 17 day meet today with an almost $1,000,000 increase, representing about 25 per cent, in pari-mutuel play.

$50,000 Race March 2.

Beautifully landscaped Hialeah, with its tropical foliage and pink flamingoes, will climax its season March 2 with a renewal of the $50,000 added Widener Challenge cup in which Challedon is expected to meet some of the nation's better handicap horses.

Interest tonight, however, centered on tomorrow's $5,000 added Inaugural handicap, first of 11 stake races with purse money totaling more than $100,000.

The Woolford farm's Joe Schenck was assigned the top impost of 122 pounds among 18 entries in the six furlong sprint for 3 year olds and up. Joe Schenck was coupled with Robert L., another Woolford horse, which drew 119 pounds.

Rivals for Woolford Entry.

Calumet farm's Easy Mon, carrying 120 pounds, was well regarded with several other candidates, including Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's French veteran, Ambrose Light; Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Great Union; Circle M ranch's Speed to Spare; Gustave Ring's Lady Maryland, and F. J. Buchanan's Charlieinfeld.

Don Meade, the nation's leading rider last year, was assigned the mount on Speed to Spare, weighted at 119 pounds. Jockey Wayne Wright was to ride Ambrose Light, winner of many European stakes during a seven year career. Ambrose Light was given a 120 pound impost.

Lady Maryland, with F. A. Smith up, was considered the country's leading mare in 1939. The 6 year old will carry 115 pounds. Charlieinfeld, to be ridden by C. Rollins, got in at 108 pounds.

Barbs Fall on Baseball Folk at Writers' Fete

Needling the magnates, the managers and the players was the theme last night in the Morrison Hotel Terrace Casino where the Chicago chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America held its second annual Diamond Dinner.

The main course in the entertainment line was a five man broadcasting satire in which "News Flashes" struggled for microphone space between commercial announcements. The "News Flashes" consisted principally of wise cracks aimed at the baseball folks in attendance among the 300 turnout.

The climax of the show was the lifting of a crumpled tarpaulin which had been on the stage all evening, much to the curiosity of the diners. When the tarpaulin was pulled aside there was revealed a prone figure wearing a Cincinnati Reds' uniform. It wasn't necessary to explain that it represented Ernie [Snozzle] Lombardi, the Reds' catcher, who as the last world series was concluded was sleeping peacefully on his own home plate.

The writers voted to select the outstanding rookie of the season and make him the guest of honor at future banquets of the Chicago chapter.

TORONTO DEFEATS AMERICANS, 3-2; TIES FOR LEAD

Moves Up with Boston and Rangers.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—The Toronto Maple Leafs scored three goals in a riotous second period tonight to defeat the last place New York Americans, 3 to 2, and go into a three way tie with the Boston Bruins and New York Rangers for first place in the National Hockey league.

After Harvey Jackson scored for the Americans in the second minute of play the Leafs withstood two misconduct penalties and got the tying goal while Murph Chamberlain served time for pushing around Referee Ted Graham. The winning goal was made late in the period by Bob Davidson on an excellent play by Bill Taylor.

The second period excitement began when Graham ruled a Toronto player was in the crease and refused to allow a goal by Pete Langelle. The Leafs argued so bitterly that Red Horner, their captain, was given a misconduct. Right after that Langelle got a goal that was good. Murray Armstrong's counter gave the Americans their last lead a few minutes later, then Gus Marker tied the game and Davidson won it shortly afterward. Lineup:

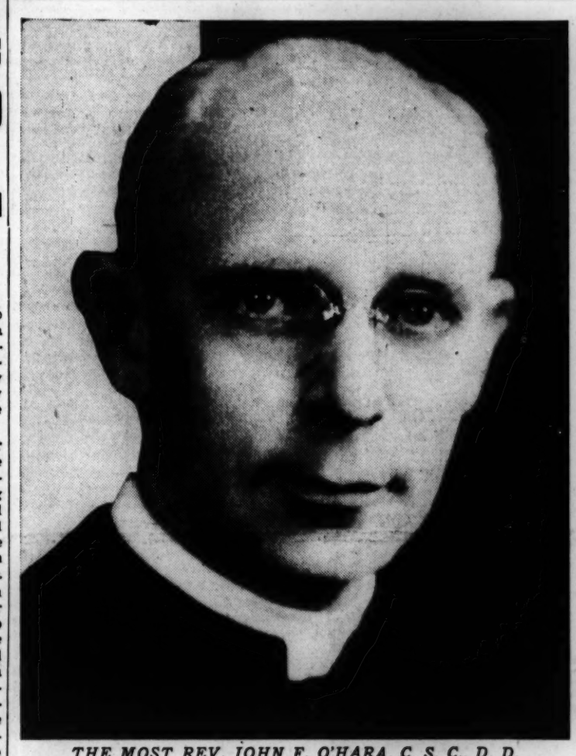
Defends College Football



THE MOST REV. JOHN F. O'HARA, C. S. C., D. D.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

THE interviews with presidents of important midwestern universities which have been appearing daily in this department of THE TRIBUNE provide convincing evidence that none of these educators shares the views of the University of Chicago regarding intercollegiate football. . . . As far as we know, this is the first time the directing heads of our major institutions have expressed themselves so forcefully in support of the game. . . . It is interesting to observe that the vaporings of magazine writers who at a certain price have been "exposing" college football have made no impression upon educational executives. . . . The attacks of a small group of college men, who for 20 years have been "deëmphasizing" football, apparently have shared a similar fate. . . . They include C. W. Savage, Dr. Win Fauver of Rochester university, Dr. Edwin Fauver of Wesleyan university, and Dr. John Nichols, all of Oberlin, alma mater of Dr. Robert Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago. . . . Their arguments are invariably these:

1. If a college or university has a winning team it is because the institution has cheated by hiring the players.
2. The institutions that have high scholastic standing are those that have mediocre or poor teams.
3. The universities built big stadia and went in debt for the same. This means they must have winning teams to pay off stadium indebtedness. To have winning teams it is necessary to cheat.
4. Mediocrity is better than superiority in athletics, but superiority is better than mediocrity or inferiority in the classroom.
5. Bigness is badness. Therefore, football, which draws big crowds, is bad and track and tennis, which do not attract many spectators, are fine sports.

All of these charges have been answered effectively, not by sports writers or coaches, who might be accused of having selfish motives, but by nationally known educators, including Clarence A. Dykstra of Wisconsin, Herman B. Wells of Indiana, Alexander G. Ruthven of Michigan, the Most Rev. John F. O'Hara of Notre Dame, Edward C. Elliott of Purdue, Eugene A. Gilmore of Iowa, and Franklin B. Snyder of Northwestern.

David Kinley, president emeritus of Illinois, several years ago went on record to the effect that losing football teams did not raise the scholastic standing of the undergraduates at his university. . . . When Dr. Hutchins came to the University of Chicago the Maroons ranked second in the Big Ten conference in football victories. . . . Are friends of the university to conclude that it had a low scholastic standing before he became its chief executive?

HELPS BUILD MORALE, SAYS BISHOP O'HARA

Understands Action at Chicago.

[This is the seventh of a series of interviews on football with presidents of middle western universities.]

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 8.—"Intercollegiate football is distinctly an individual problem for each university. Two months ago I advised Dr. Hutchins [president of the University of Chicago] to drop football."

This candid statement is by The Most Rev. John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., retiring president of the University of Notre Dame, who, on Monday, will be consecrated auxiliary bishop of the army and navy diocese serving over the Catholic chaplains.

Father O'Hara's opinion, however, was predicated on conditions at the University of Chicago where, despite an undergraduate enrollment of 3,420, there are only a few hundred men available for intercollegiate teams. The number of transfer undergraduates enrolled by Chicago has presented a problem publicly recognized since last May when Dean George A. Works and Nelson Metcalfe, director of athletics, sought permission from the Western conference to use these students on intercollegiate teams.

Notre Dame's Viewpoint.

This plea, while received sympathetically, was denied last month by the Big Ten. That may not have been a factor in the subsequent decision of the trustees of the University of Chicago to drop intercollegiate football. There can be no doubt, however, that one basic reason was the paucity of athletic material.

"Notre Dame doesn't believe that intercollegiate football is overemphasized," Father O'Hara continued. "Intercollegiate sports are completely controlled by the university. They are an integral part of the rounded curriculum and more than 90 per cent of all students, who are not competing on varsity teams, participate in intramural sports."

Notre Dame certainly has not offered the fans of the nation "ten cent football" and in view of Notre Dame's tremendous drawing power and participation annually in games which shatter attendance records, it is of paramount interest to have Father O'Hara add:

"If the public wants to witness intercollegiate contests, I don't see why the public shouldn't see them. They are a factor in preserving the sanity of the country. They engender a healthy state of mind, eliminate moods and germs of revolution.

Won't Quit at Notre Dame.

"But if the public ceases to wish to see intercollegiate sports, it will not make the slightest bit of difference in our athletic activities here at Notre Dame."

Notre Dame has taken another step by completely eliminating the problem of transfer students. In 1940 no undergraduate may transfer from any university to continue his studies at Notre Dame. While the graduate group is not large, the number will increase when the university has the facilities to accommodate them on the campus.

While the president of Notre Dame would drop football if he were the president of Chicago, as president of Notre Dame he is the staunchest supporter of sport, believes in fair competition with other schools having the same rules, and is thoroly convinced that in "competing with Big Ten schools we do not feel we're competing against 'crooked' universities."

Cites Competitive Barriers.

Just as the number of transfer students reduces the undergraduate number eligible for intercollegiate sport, so do tuition charges and scholastic selectivity of students constitute barriers for competition with institutions without these requirements. Chicago and Northwestern, in the Big Ten, are under these handicaps. Like these universities, Notre Dame is supported by fees, contributions, endowments.

"One-sixth of our freshman applicants last year were rejected because of poor scholarship," Father O'Hara said in further discussion of these fundamentals.

"Our freshman quota for 1939 was 800, of which number 750 were accommodated on the campus. Notre Dame's enrollment is limited to our campus facilities. Our maximum present enrollment is 2,800 on the campus with approximately 400 graduates and undergraduates from this immediate vicinity who live in town.

"Our freshman enrollment was completed last year Aug. 1. Enrollment of upper classmen closes April 1 for the fall semester.

"Minimum general charge, which includes all fees, except laboratory, is $724. Maximum is $850. Off campus students pay $316." [This is an approximation of tuition fees and corresponds favorably with Northwestern's yearly fee of $300.]

Signed Elmer Layden.

The presidency of Father O'Hara marks an era of unusual accomplishment despite the economic handicap of the depression. It also coincides with the renaissance of football under the direction of Elmer Layden. Father O'Hara, then acting president of

ZEKE, DRIPPING RHINESTONES, IS STILL SQUAWKING

King of Ball Wants—as Usual—More Money.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 9 (AP).—The boys in the bleachers will love this:

Zeke Bonura.

slam-bang happy old Zeke Bonura being described on the society pages as dressed in a "mantle of American beauty velvet and royal blue, embroidered with rhinestones."

That's a fact. Rollicking, 210 pound Zeke was king for a night and wowed his subjects in a "Roman wreath of rhinestones and carried a sceptre topped by a small wreath of rhinestones," to quote the society writer.

Zeke himself, with unaccustomed humility, didn't want to talk much about it today, but let out a familiar roar when he heard the New York Giants wanted him to take a pay cut in 1940.

"I won't take no cut," he asserted bluntly while opening his morning mail after last night's Cinderella adventure in which he not only was a king, but Ben Hur as well, and had four white horses to drive.

"I led the team in hitting and driving in runs," he continued as he checked off foodstuffs in his father's produce warehouse. "What do they want me to do? Stand on my head? The fielding averages aren't in yet, but I think I was first or second among first basemen in the league."

Reported to have received $15,000 last year for playing first base for the Giants, he would not reveal what he was offered this season, explaining "it's a secret."

Before Zeke unburdened himself a report from New York said he had been offered the same salary he received last year, but Bonura said the contract mailed here called for a pay cut.

It takes so little to make some one glad,
To bring them a bit of cheer,
Not just during the holidays,
But throughout the entire year.

It doesn't take much to ease the mind of burdens great or small;
You'll find as time is lengthened
It's just no effort at all!

Try it then, as you arise
And your daily tasks begin,
At the close of eve you'll be secretly pleased
And eager to try it again!

It matters less just how it's done,
Nor what the case may be—
A friendly clasp, a cheerful smile—
No wealth is needed, you see!

Two Ways.

To every man there lies
Two ways to shape a path through life;
The first, with tight shut eyes,
To dream and drift with tide and strife,
And thus he dies.

Whose aim is high, and gives
His all to win with mind and soul,
Forever lives.

CONN WILL MAKE START TONIGHT AS HEAVYWEIGHT

Pittsburgh Fighter Meets Henry Cooper.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—The Billy Conn fistic follies, a distinct artistic and financial success thruout the first year of its run in Madison Square Garden, starts its second year tomorrow night with a new heavyweight backdrop instead of the old light heavyweight scenery.

Billy Conn.

Just a year ago this week the 22 year old Pittsburgh Irishman pulled into town, virtually unknown. He upset Fred Apostoli, a 1 to 4 favorite, repeated that triumph, and went skyrocketing on to the light heavyweight championship.

Money Rolled In.

With his success in the ring went an unexpectedly like success at the box office. The cash customers, surprisingly, took to Billy, altho his offense was somewhat lacking in a knockout wallop, usually a "must" in crowd appeal.

But Billy had his eye on bigger game. He realized early that the real money in the prize ring lies among the heavyweights. He went on a vacation from last November until three weeks ago to put on weight. Then he signed to fight Steve Dudas, a veteran heavyweight trial horse.

Aims at Joe Louis.

But Steve came down with la grippe, so Billy switched to Henry Cooper, a likely looking 190 pound prospect, and tomorrow Billy unveils himself as a heavyweight for 10 rounds or less against Henry from Brooklyn.

HOSTAK TO SHOW FANS HIS PUNCH THIS AFTERNOON

Middleweight Champion Al Hostak will give fans a glimpse of his hitting prowess in a two round sparring session with Johnny Barbara in Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street, this afternoon. Hostak, who will be delivering his first boxing exhibition in Chicago, will meet Tony Zale in a 10 round nontitle bout Jan. 19.

While Hostak did light exercises for the second successive day yesterday, it was learned the champion will be paid $5,000. In the event the gate receipts exceed $15,000, Al will collect 35 per cent in lieu of the guarantee. Zale will be paid 15 per cent of the proceeds.

After Tony went four rounds with two sparmates yesterday he disclosed he would claim the title if victorious over Hostak despite the fact that the agreed weight is 161 pounds, one more than the division limit.

Believes He Can Hurt Al.

"Altho I may not be recognized officially," Zale explained, "fans will look on me as Hostak's successor. I mean to make the most of my opportunity and I am confident I punch hard enough to hurt Hostak."

The challenger has won his last five fights by knockouts.

Zale was a member of the 1934 Chicago Golden Gloves intercity team which was defeated by New York in Madison Square Garden, 9 bouts to 7. Tony, who weighed 155¼ pounds at that time, opposed Manhattan's light heavyweight champion, Melio Bettina, current challenger for the world professional title, because of his terrific punching. The Gary fighter lost a decision in three rounds after flooring Bettina in the first round. Altho he has fought such headliners as Tiger Jack Fox, Billy Conn, and Fred Apostoli in the pro field, Bettina was not sent to the canvas again until his recent battle against Apostoli in the Garden.

Bill Rand, who is sponsoring the impending contest, is not disturbed over the fact that Zale has signed to face Hostak in a rematch in Seattle if he conquers the champion in the Stadium.

Chicago May Get Title Bout.

"Nate Druxman [Seattle promoter] has an option on Zale's services for the return bout only," Rand said. "That is part of the agreement. However, the fighters' managers have promised me the ultimate survivor will make a defense of the title under my auspices if I can obtain Ceferino Garcia as an opponent."

Garcia is recognized as champion by the New York commission, but the National Boxing association gives Hostak title status. The N. B. A. has ordered Hostak to sign to put his championship on the block against Garcia before Jan. 27. Hostak's six month period to risk the title expired last Dec. 27, but he recently was given a one month extension. Al is anxious to meet Garcia.

SPARTA SOCCER TEAM WILL FACE SLOVAKS SUNDAY

The Sparta Falstaffs, national western cup semifinalists, play another warm up game Sunday when they meet the Slovaks of the International league in Sparta stadium.

The Peel cup commission has extended the date for entries for its 1940 competition two weeks to allow leading amateur teams to forward file. Only amateur teams are eligible.

With the International Soccer league's indoor tournament set for Jan. 21, in the 132d armory, Rockwell and West Madison streets, the Illinois soccer commission will run an invitation event the next Sunday, Jan. 28, with the Sparta Falstaffs, Manhattan Brewers, Swedish Americans, Vikings, German Americans, Schwabens, Moline Swedes, and Milwaukee Falks competing. The point system will be used in determining the winner of this tournament.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Chicago Bruins, their handsome home prestige of four straight victories dented by defeat at the hands of Sheboygan Sunday, tonight will attempt to regain face when they meet the Indianapolis Kautskys in the 132d armory, Madison and Rockwell streets.

The loss dropped the Bruins from first place in the western division of the National Basketball league, and altho Sheboygan does not play tonight, a Chicago triumph will still leave them in second place on a percentage basis.

Scoring Is Off.

The Bruin management tonight will join the double header parade now winding over the country's basketball floors. The joint feature this evening will be a battle between Armour Tech and Elmhurst college, beginning at 8 o'clock, with the Bruins and Kautskys going to work at approximately 9 o'clock.

Coach Sam Lifschultz has been paying attention in drills the last two days to a department of the game in which the Bruins almost completely collapsed Sunday. That is free throwing, wherein the Chicago lads made good on only three tries in 15 attempts, while Sheboygan was connecting on 8 out of 12, a proficiency which accounted for its 20 to 19 triumph.

Andres Is Kautsky's Star.

The Bruins hardly can afford to be so timid in scoring tonight, for the Kautskys are one of the highest scoring teams in the league, a fact explained to a great extent by their personnel, which includes stars from Purdue, Indiana, and Butler.

Ernie Andres, former Indiana captain and holder of the Big Ten record for single game scoring, already has established a season record for the league by counting 25 points against Oshkosh.

Ex-Silver Skates Champion's Son Is Chip Off the Old Block

Twenty years ago George Thompson won the Junior Boy's Silver Skates, and was the speed skating sensation of the country as a member of Chicago's schoolboy team. George was even honored by sitting in the office of President Warren G. Harding, where he told the chief executive how he had won the sterling blades.

Sixteen years ago to George Thompson was born a son—Marvin.

"He'll be the skating champion of the world," George would tell his friends. "Why, this little fellow is going to win FIVE pairs of Silver Skates."

So far Marvin has won three pair and Saturday and Sunday on the Garfield park lagoon he will be trying to win the fourth in the 23d annual event sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

He Started Young.

Marvin was destined to be a champion and was fitted up with a pair of skates while still an infant. When he was 10 the curly headed blond won the midget Silver Skates. At 11 he captured the juvenile pair, and last year the junior honors. He is now seeking the intermediate award.

Last Sunday in the state meet on Glen Ellyn lake more than 20,000 spectators screamed: "Look at that boy go!" They were referring to Marvin Thompson, the new intermediate state champion. Old timers said he looked even faster than his father did twenty years ago.

Marvin represents the Northwest Skating club, which won THE TRIBUNE'S Walter Eckersall team trophy last season when five of the eight pairs of Silver Skates were won by that team. He attends Lane Technical High school, and wants to be a master electrician.

Holds Bicycle Record.

Skating is not the only sport at which Marvin is tops. Thruout the summer months he is a champion amateur bicyclist. His nimble legs carried him around the Humboldt park bowl to set a record of 12.2 seconds for the one-eighth mile circuit. He competes for the Belgium-American C. C.

As a junior biker he won the state title in 1937 and '38. His forte in both racing sports is sprints, but he has proved he can go a route, too. In the 50 mile Chicago to Fox Lake race two years ago he finished second against a field of more than 300, most of whom were much older than himself.

Cycling can wait until the straw hat season; it's the next pair of Silver Skates that George Thompson wants his son to win. And Marvin promises his dad he won't let him down, if he can help it.

Football Good for America—Bishop O'Hara

the university, employed Layden in December, 1933.

During the depression years of Father O'Hara's presidency, no professor was discharged and no salary was reduced, altho the enrollment declined 600. By cutting the cost of food and lodging, a greater amount of each student's fees was allotted for operation of the university. In three of the six years, from 1930 to 1936, professors' salaries were increased and since then the normal raises have been made annually.

More than $6,000,000 has been spent on new buildings.

"Notre Dame conforms to the rules of the Western conference for the conduct of intercollegiate sports," Father O'Hara said emphatically. "Altho not widely publicized, Notre Dame's regulations in two respects are more strict than those of the Big Ten. The stricter interpretation of the eight semester eligibility rule is one. The other concerns employment of athletes by the university.

All on Same Basis.

"Of course, athletes receive employment on the same basis as do all students. All students are employed thru the controller's office. Thus, the university, as in Western conference schools, controls employment just as it also controls any aid thru scholarships.

"No Notre Dame student, however, can keep his job if he fails in his studies. The regulation is even more severe. While the passing mark is 70 per cent, upon entering his sophomore year, in order to keep his job, each student must have a scholastic average of 75 per cent. And this average must be at least 77 per cent for juniors and seniors. This is the scholastic average required by the university before granting a degree.

"Intercollegiate athletics at Notre Dame are conducted by a faculty committee of seven, three of whom are laymen. The vice president of the university, the Rev. Hugh O'Donnell, is chairman. Layden, altho he meets with the committee, is not a member. It is not advisable for the director to have a vote on proposals he presents."

Notre Dame Before Rockne.

So much for faculty control. The policy of the committee, in the words of the president, may be summed up as: "Notre Dame was a university for 50 years without football and it was 75 years before Knute Rockne came along."

"Subsidization and recruiting are familiar charges of improper conduct of collegiate athletics. Improper administration of scholarships, that is, giving the athlete an advantage over the nonathlete, might be one form of violation. At Notre Dame this year only one athlete, Paul Lillis, sophomore football tackle, holds a scholarship. Lillis' scholarship is valued at $250 and it is one of four offered in scholastic competition by the Notre Dame Club of New York," continued Father O'Hara.

"There are 35 foundations of scholarships at Notre Dame and some help more than one boy. The Thomas E. Walsh, Daniel E. Hudson, and John W. Cavanaugh Foundation, largest of these, furnishes aid of from $50 to $400 to about 75 boys. Granted solely on scholarship records, these recipients average better than 90 per cent in their studies."

Exploding a Theory.

Father O'Hara then discussed the most familiar belief that because an athlete doesn't enroll in a university near his home, he must have been offered inducements.

"Notre Dame is national in character," the president went on. "Students are enrolled from 48 states and as far as we are concerned the theory is fallacious."

"In 1863, when Notre Dame was 21 years old, students were enrolled from 22 states and five foreign nations. And in that civil war year, 10 per cent of the student body came from the confederate states. New York holds first place over Illinois by one in number of students enrolled in the second semester last year. Indiana and Ohio follow. More students enter from California than from Kentucky. One third of all students live in the east.

"Notre Dame has a prominence in sports pages because of national appeal and uniform success which is more than matched in other less popularly publicized activities. In chemistry and physics, Notre Dame's graduate students and professors have international recognition. The idea of symposiums, introduced a few years ago, has been adopted by the University of Chicago.

"Notre Dame has no school of public administration but does include the philosophy of government. 'The Review of Politics,' started a year ago with a list of famous contributors, is outstanding in this field."

Dempsey Gets a Ducking in Swim Pool Dedication

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 9 [Special].—When Jack Dempsey, the former heavyweight champion, agreed to dedicate a swimming pool here in honor of Tex Rickard, the promotor with whom Dempsey rose to fabulous heights in the ring, he didn't bargain for a swim. But he got it—clothes and all—when he slipped and tumbled into the pool during the dedicatory exercises.

Norge Ski Meet Entries Limited to Invitations

The number of entries for the the National Ski association reveals last night prompted officials to make it an invitational meet. This will be the first time that a hand picked field has been assembled for a club tournament in the United States.

It also was voted to reduce the number of jumpers in the minor classes in order to accommodate a larger group of class A performers.

To qualify as class A competitors, entrants must have won first, second or third place in a national or international tournament. In class B are grouped those skiers who are over 18 years of age. Those under that age limit are placed in class C. When a jumper passes his 32d birthday he may enter the senior class.

Norge club officials will try to limit the number of contestants to 75 in the four classes.

HARPER FIVE BEATS PARKER SENIORS, 29-28

Tilden, Hyde Park, Tuley Juniors Triumph.

Harper's senior basketball team scored a 29 to 28 overtime triumph over Parker yesterday in one of the feature games on a Chicago Public high school league basketball schedule dominated by the junior quintets. The result left both teams with a .500 standing on a victory and a defeat in south section competition.

Hyde Park's seniors scored their second straight south division victory, a 44 to 33 conquest of Bowen, and Steinmetz defeated Taft, 45 to 31, in another senior contest.

Along the junior front, Tilden defeated Farragut, 31 to 22; Hyde Park whipped Bowen, 31 to 22; Tuley had little trouble with Washburne, 46 to 33; Lindblom routed Harrison, 41 to 20; Phillips took a 36 to 31 decision from Gage Park, and Steinmetz ran thru Taft, 54 to 25. Lineups:

BEARS OBTAIN DRAFT RIGHTS ON BOB NOWASKEY

Bob Nowaskey, George Washington university end, taken in the National Football league draft by the Cleveland Rams, was added to the Chicago Bears' selective list yesterday, completing payment to the Bears for Red Conkright, center, who was sent to Cleveland last summer for Half Back Bob Snyder.

Nowaskey is regarded as the outstanding end in the east. Five feet 11 inches and weighing 195 pounds, he is outstanding on defense and as a pass receiver. Formerly a full back, Nowaskey will be used at end by the Bears, provided Coach George Halas can come to terms with the young man.

ENDING RACKETS TERMED WAY TO CUT MILK PRICES.

Expert Advises Program to Raise Consumption.

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 9 [Special].—The most hopeful possibility for lowering the price of milk and increasing its consumption lies in the "elimination of rackets, threats, violence and other forms of coercion which have added to the costs of distribution." Dr. R. W. Bartlett, milk marketing specialist of the University of Illinois college of agriculture, made that assertion here today before the milk marketing sessions of Farm and Home Week.

Wilfred Shaw urges reduction in milk costs

"From the experience of the year and a half since the Chicago investigations were started, it would appear that the best proposal for the elimination of racketeering and coercion in the milk industry comes from the United States department of justice," Dr. Bartlett said.

Propose Permanent Bureaus.

"The department proposes to set up permanent regional antitrust divisions in cities such as New York and Chicago and vigorously prosecute those whose coercive activities interfere with a free flow of trade and keep distribution costs high."

Assuming that racketeering and coercion can be solved and an active program of education carried out, it is not unreasonable to expect a 25 per cent increase in the per capita consumption of milk thruout the country during the next five years, Dr. Bartlett said.

May Cut But Slightly.

He reported that a 10 year study of milk prices in eight major markets has shown that the amount which producer prices could conceivably be whittled down is a small fraction of a cent. This compares, he said, with the possibility of cutting off whole cents from dealers' costs for distributing milk.

Wilfred Shaw of Chicago, secretary of the Illinois Milk Producers' association, asserted:

"The fresh fluid milk industry must find means of getting milk to consumers at lower prices. There are indications in many areas that this can be done without lowering prices paid to producers. Store sales of milk at prices from which are subtracted the high costs of door-to-door delivery may afford one opportunity in this direction."

FIRST IN SHOES.

Which is the bigger, International Shoe or Endicott Johnson Corp.? Please furnish me with a report on the first company.—R. B.

Answer: The International Shoe company is the largest manufacturer of shoes in the United States. Its output ranges from 40 to 50 million pairs of shoes a year. The company retails mainly in the lower or medium priced fields.

The company is a vertical industrial unit, producing almost all the materials and accessories essential to the making of shoes. Mass production methods are applied intensively in 96 different plants, 42 of which are shoe factories, and 9 are tanneries. Most of these plants are situated in St. Louis, Mo.

Because the company produces most of its leather requirements and other materials, it is subject to inventory losses in declining markets. However, when prices of hides, leather and shoes increase, the company realizes earnings from inventory appreciation.

The increase in the prices of hides and leather caused the company last fall to raise its prices on shoes.

Larger profits were disclosed by the company in its annual statement released recently. Net income for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, 1939, rose to $6,588,209, equal to $1.97 a share on 3,350,000 shares of no par common stock. This compared with net income of $4,268,286, or $1.28 a share, in the preceding fiscal year.

The company reported that net sales of $89,325,000 were the largest since 1930 and compared with $80,-$29,000 in the preceding year.

Dividends of $1.75 a share were paid on the common stock in 1939. There is no other stock and no funded debt outstanding.

Comparison of net income, earnings per common share and dividends paid per share in recent fiscal years follows:

	Net income.	Earned per share.	Paid per share.
1934	...$8,967,000	$2.69	$2.00
1935	... 8,542,000	2.56	2.25
1936	... 8,417,000	2.52	2.25
1937	... 6,267,000	1.88	2.00
1938	... 4,268,000	1.48	1.75

Total assets of the company, according to its balance sheet of Nov. 30, 1939, amounted to $84,243,623. Current assets of $64,508,782 were almost thirteen times current liabilities of $5,025,577.

Current assets included $22,318,772 in cash, inventories valued at $25,937,-266, and accounts receivable of $16,-252,743.

AIR LINE ORDERS LARGEST LAND SHIPS IN WORLD

American to Add 15 Douglas Planes.

American Airlines, Inc., yesterday announced the purchase for delivery early in 1941 of 15 Douglas DC-4 transport planes, the largest land planes in the world. The four engine 40 passenger planes were bought at a cost of $5,317,950. They are now in production at the Douglas Aircraft company plant at Santa Monica, Cal., after three years of research and development work.

The flagships will be placed in service as fast as they are delivered, C. R. Smith, president of the air line, announced. The new purchase is in addition to 20 Douglas DC-3 flagships ordered last fall by American. The smaller 21 passenger planes will be delivered at the rate of two a week beginning Feb. 1.

Reach 262 Miles an Hour.

Developing 4,800 horse power, the supertransports will cruise at 229 miles an hour at 15,000 feet, reach 262 miles an hour at top speed, and have a cruising range of more than 2,000 miles. Supercharged cabins will provide the flagships with low level atmosphere while flying at high altitudes.

The planes will have an overall length of 92½ feet, and a wing span of 117½ feet. Daytime accomodations will be provided for 40 passengers, and accomodations for 22 persons will be available on the sleepers.

Separate lounges will be provided for men and women. Each seat will have an individual reading light and an ash tray. All seats will be adjustable. Luxurious appointments will be featured thruout the interior designing, Smith said.

Level While on Ground.

The flagships while on the ground will be in a level position for loading and unloading passengers and cargo. They will be equipped with tricycle landing gear, with a retractable wheel in the nose of the plane.

The Douglas DC-4s are three times as large as the DC-3s now used by the major transport lines. On the orignal plane's design and construction $2,400,000 was spent by air lines and the Douglas company. It was first ordered more than three years ago by American, United Air Lines, Eastern Airlines, Pan-American Airways, and Transcontinental and Western Air.

The new DC-4 differs from the original DC-4 exhibited in Chicago last May in that it is slightly smaller. The original plane was designed to carry 42 passengers. It also had slightly lower cruising and top speeds.

Largest User of Douglas Planes.

American Airlines, with 59 Douglas transports operating at present, is the largest user of the Douglas planes. Of the 59, there are 15 DC-2 machines, which carry 14 passengers. Eleven of the remaining 44 are sleepers and 33 are club planes. These figures do not include the 20 planes to be delivered this year, of which two will be sleepers.

Armour Profit Is $7,012,057 in Fiscal Year

Stockholders of Armour & Co., one of the nation's largest meat packers, were informed yesterday that the company made a $7,012,057 profit in the last fiscal year, and that directors have approved a bond issue which will mark the fourth substantial alteration in the 40 year old company's corporate structure.

The net profit in the fiscal year, which ended last Oct. 28, compared with net loss of $1,505,090 in the preceding fiscal year. Both figures are before payment of dividends on the 7 per cent preferred stock of Armour & Co. of Delaware. Dividends on this subsidiary's preferred shares are guaranteed by the Illinois parent concern.

Plan 40 Million Bond Issue.

George A. Eastwood, president, told shareholders in the annual report that directors have approved the issuance, under favorable market conditions, of $40,000,000 in 15 year first mortgage 4 per cent bonds. Proceeds of the issue will be applied toward redemption of the $53,972,300 outstanding of the Delaware company's guaranteed preferred stock.

If this action is taken, it will result in an estimated saving or $945,000 annually in the consolidated income account, assuming that the remaining 176,087 Delaware company preferred shares not covered by the $40,000,000 will remain outstanding.

Eastwood also said that part of the proceeds would be applied, if necessary, toward redemption of outstanding serial notes.

Bonds Within Two Years.

These notes, of which $12,000,000 are now in the hands of the public, mature serially this year thru 1942. Thus it was assumed in financial quarters that the new bonds will be issued within about two years.

This step toward consolidation of the Illinois and Delaware companies was preceded in December by the turning over to the Delaware subsidiary of all of the parent concern's branch distributing houses.

For several months directors have been considering a plan of capital revision, including a possible $30,000,000 refunding loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The latter possibility has been discarded temporarily, it is understood. In any event, the management has considered the 7 per cent dividend on the Delaware preferred stock too high in relation to dividends paid by other large companies.

Sales Show Little Change.

Eastwood said yesterday that sales in the 1939 fiscal year totaled $715,318,909, down about 1 per cent from 1938. The drop was caused by lower prices. Tonnage sales increased about 1 per cent. The larger volume of business, which enabled the company to cut operating costs, was responsible for the favorable earnings report, he said.

Eastwood added that in the two months since the end of the fiscal year the company's volume of business has continued to improve and profit margins have been "reasonable."

"At the moment our future looks better than it has for a long time past," he declared.

Net income of Armour & Co. of Delaware for the 1939 fiscal year was $7,706,630, against net income in 1938 of $3,059,209. Operations of the parent company alone in 1939 resulted in net loss of $694,573.

COMBINED NET INCOME OF 15 AIR COMPANIES LOWER IN NOVEMBER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—The first 15 domestic air lines to report operating results for November had a combined net income of $169,470 before taxes, compared with $576,837 in October, reports filed with the civil aeronautics authority showed today.

For the same lines gross operating revenues amounted to $4,089,111 in November, against $4,609,603 in the preceding month, and combined net operating revenues totaled $166,226, against $618,253 in October.

These covered all domestic lines except Chicago and Southern, and Eastern, which had not yet filed their monthly reports with the authority. Following are the operating figures for individual lines in November:

GIANNINI FLAYS MORGENTHAU FOR 'HARASSING' BANK

San Francisco, Cal. Jan. 9 (AP).—L. M. Giannini, president of the Bank of America, accused Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau today of using "vicious" methods to "condemn the bank in the eyes of the public."

At the annual meeting of the bank's stockholders, Giannini reviewed the Securities and Exchange commission's investagation of Transamerica corporation, which owns 40 per cent of the banks stock, and said the bank had received "threatening letters" from government officials in regard to classification of assets. He accused Morgenthau of discussing the bank's private affairs with persons outside government supervisory offices, and of "fostering" the SEC proceedings against Transamerica.

"Were it not for the privileges surrounding his office," he declared, "Secretary Morgenthau would not dare act as he has."

"You may want to consider conversion into a state bank," Giannini told stockholders as they prepared to elect directors. "Such a bank would not be under federal control." Dr. A. H. Giannini, uncle of the bank president, retired as a director and F. A. Ferroggiaro, Oakland, was named in his place. Other board members were reëlected.

ADJOURN FISK MEETING AFTER NEW OPPOSITION

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 9 (AP).—A meeting of Fisk Rubber corporation stockholders to vote on dissolution of the firm was adjourned today until Jan. 19. Fisk Attorney Aaron Finger gave no reason for the action.

Today's meeting was a holdover of a special session Dec. 30 when holders of 63 per cent of the stock voted to sell the firm to the United States Rubber company for approximately $11,227,330. A two-thirds vote of both preferred and common stock is required to dissolve.

Finger said a suit filed in Boston today by Anthony P. Massare, Arlington, Mass., to halt the sale did not figure in the adjournment decision. Massare sought a Superior court order voiding an agreement between the two corporations and appointment of a master to appraise Fisk assets.

Massare, who said he owned 100 shares of Fisk common, contended that United States Rubber's offer failed to take into consideration Fisk's good will, patents, and trademarks.

Farr Named President of Chicago Rys.

Guy A. Richardson has resigned as president of the Chicago Railways comvany and been replaced by Newton C. Farr, it was announced yesterday. The action was taken in a closed meeting last month, at which time the company's former board of directors was replaced by a new board.

The new directors were elected by the depositaries who hold the company's capital stock in a voting trust administered by the Chicago Title and Trust company, of which Farr is a director.

No Effect On Operations.

The changes will have no effect on the operations of the Chicago Railways company or the Surface Lines, of which the company is a unit. Chicago Railways company is under court jurisdiction. Richardson will continue as its receiver and as president of the Surface Lines.

Richardson said yesterday that change resulted from a difference of opinion between the depositaries for the stock and the former board of directors.

Differ On Reorganization.

He said the depositaries believed the company should be reorganized under bankruptcy proceedings rather than thru the present equity receivership.

Chester R. Davis, one of the depositaries, said the new board was elected to safeguard against a possible conflict of interests on the part of some of the former directors. While representing the stockholders, some of the former directors were also members of the company's bondholders' committees, he said.

HART-SCHAFFNER 1939 OPERATIONS ARE PROFITABLE

Hart, Schaffner & Marx, large Chicago manufacturer of men's clothing, yesterday estimated its net income for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30 at $375,000 to $400,000. This compares with a net loss of $305,136 in the preceding fiscal year.

Meyer Kestnbaum, vice president and treasurer, said that both dollar and unit sales increased over 1938. He added that advance sales to retailers for the spring season are also showing an increase.

Kestnbaum said that clothing manufacturers in general expect business to continue good for the next few months. At least retailers' inventories are moderate and are not likely to advance as they did in 1937, when excess stocks led to a decline in sales the following year, he said.

Final figures on the results of Hart, Shaffner & Marx operations will be made public at the annual meeting Jan. 22.

LACK OF WATER CURBS MINES AS DEMAND GROWS

Marion, Ill., Jan. 9 (AP).—The continued cold has stimulated demand for coal from small mines in Williamson county, while creating an operating problem due to the lack of water.

Many mines have been compelled to haul water for their boilers because their ponds are dry as a result of the fall drouth.

Marion police yesterday prohibited water hauling over paved city streets because the leakage froze and made the streets hazardous. The state police today prohibited use of state highways for hauling water in open barrels or leaky tanks.

STOCKS SUFFER HARDEST BUMP IN FIVE WEEKS

Early Losses Pared by Late Rally.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—Stock market leaders today stumbled into the sharpest decline in more than five weeks, altho extreme losses of as much as 2 points or so were reduced at the close.

Discouraged holders, brokers said, lightened commitments mainly because the market for the last several sessions had exhibited little inclination to climb out of a narrow rut. In other words, it was reasoned that if prices wouldn't go up, the odds were on the side of a down turn.

Current business news and December corporate earnings were bright spots in the generally cloudy picture. At the same time doubts seemed to be growing in speculative quarters that industry could avoid a sizable recession in the next few months.

Selling Flurry at Noon.

The list did fairly well at the start, then ran into a brisk but brief selling wave around noon which put most issues in low territory for the day. Sufficient support arrived near the close to stem the slide, but losers were far in the majority at the final gong.

The slowdown after midday cut the volume to 671,350 shares, compared with 631,860 yesterday.

Board rooms could find scant inspiration in Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech and few political clews, of value marketwise, were discovered in last night's Jackson day dinner orations.

Prominent backsliders included United States Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Sears-Roebuck, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Allied Chemical, du Pont, Loft, Johns-Manville, Texas corporation, United States Gypsum, Chesapeake and Ohio, and American-Hawaiian Steamship.

Studebaker Active and Steady.

Studebaker was active and unchanged as the company reported the best December sales for any month since August, 1928. Cluett-Peabody, International Mercantile Marine, Woolworth, and New York Shipbuilding managed to emerge with modest improvement.

Rails held to a slim groove thruout.

The smallest short interest on the New York Stock exchange since May, 1931, was reported today for the Dec. 29, 1939, settlement date. The short interest was 381,689 shares, compared with 479,344 shares on Nov. 30, both totals excluding short positions carried by odd-lot dealers. As of Dec. 29 the total short interest in odd-lot dealers' accounts was 61,469 shares, compared with 56,154 shares on Nov. 30.

The short interest in some of the leading issues as of Dec. 29 and Nov. 31, respectively, were Armour & Co., Illinois, 10,100 shares and 22,258 shares; Baldwin Locomotive Works, 24,110 and 24,640; Bethlehem Steel, 11,440 and 13,692; Chesapeake and Ohio, 4,681 and 23,774; Chrysler, 12,265 and 16,805; General Motors, 17,258 and 21,299; Republic Steel, 10,441 and 14,856; United States Steel, 22,352 and 29,691.

BUTTER PRICES CLIMB DESPITE FEDERAL SALES

Cash butter and contracts for future delivery on the Chicago Mercantile exchange advanced briskly yesterday as commercial reserve holdings of butter moved into trade channels at a fast pace. Sale of 540,000 pounds of Dairy Products Marketing association surplus butter to the trade apparently failed to lessen the strong demand for cash butter.

On Monday the DPMA sold nearly a quarter of a million pounds of its surplus holdings to private interests, marking the first such sale in more than a year.

In the last two days the federally financed association has disposed of 780,000 pounds of butter which it took off the market last summer, cutting its holdings to an estimated 9,375,000 pounds.

Cash market values were ¼ to ½ cent a pound higher in Chicago, placing 92 score at 30¾ cents, its best price since early in February, 1938. Futures climbed 0.30 to 0.45 cent a pound.

Egg futures closed unchanged to 0.35 cent a dozen higher. Active buying by the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation in the cash market helped spur buying, brokers said.

Aldrich Asks Gold Market, Level Budget

A plea for reëstablishment of a free gold market and for a balancing of the federal budget was made yesterday by Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank of New York, in his annual report to stockholders.

Winthrop W. Aldrich.

He termed the gold supply, soaring past the 17½ billion dollar mark, a menace to the economic future of the nation, and said that "every day we permit to go by without bringing our federal budget into balance adds to the danger and difficulty of the problems involved."

Urges Circulation of Gold.

In addition to restoration of a free movement of gold into and out of the country Aldrich urged a resumption of gold coinage and circulation of such coins.

"We should remove as promptly as possible the present prohibitions and restrictions on private possession of gold," he said. "We should resume specie payments, coining gold again and putting gold coins back into circulation. Gold certificates should be reinstated for the convenience of those who do not wish to use or hold large amounts of gold coin. New imports of gold should be paid for in gold coin or negotiable gold certificates."

Idle Bank Reserves Increase.

The influx of gold into America has intensified the problem of finding use for billions of dollars of idle bank reserves, and the accumulation of gold and idle reserves creates a pressure to find an outlet in the form of loans, Aldrich said. This pressure, he added, constitutes a threat that bank credit will expand until a violent expansionary process results.

The Chase bank's net earnings for 1939, as previously reported, were $13,315,000, or $1.80 a share, against $14,486,000, or $1.96 a share, in 1938. Aldrich said the average rate of interest on loans and investments as a whole was lower last year than ever before in the bank's history. The bank's resources were listed at $3,085,819,058.

Willkie Elected Bank Director.

Wendell L. Willkie, head of Commonwealth and Southern corporation, was elected a director of First National Bank of New York at the annual meeting yesterday.

Stockholders of the National City bank of New York were told by James H. Perkins, chairman, that "war is a violent interruption of normal business processes producing incalculable hazards and appalling waste, and no temporary profit can offset its ultimate cost."

He said the bank's profits last year, exclusive of bond profits, were $10,663,645, or $1.72 a share, against $7,690,860, or $1.24 a share, in the preceding year. Bond profits were $6,978,525, compared with $2,856,890 in 1938. In both years these profits were transferred to reserves.

Orders for Steel Castings Nearly Double 1938 Total

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9 [Special].—Commercial steel castings manufacturers booked orders totaling 618,060 short tons during the first 11 months of 1939, or almost double the total for the entire year 1938, the department of commerce reported today. Production amounted to 511,230 short tons, compared with 306,607 tons for the 11 months of 1938.

BUILDERS' BANK OFFER REPORTED WINNING FAVOR

Craig Appointed New Vice President.

A proposal that stockholders of the National Builders Bank of Chicago sell part of their holdings to a group which would move the institution to the Field building was reported to have met a favorable reception at the shareholders' annual meeting yesterday.

No official action by the stockholders or directors was possible at the meeting, officials said, because each stockholder must decide individually whether to accept the offer.

All Directors Reëlected.

All directors were reëlected, but the vacancy on the 10 member board caused by the death last year of W. G. McLaury, who also was the bank's president, was not filled. William Schlake is now president.

The directors reappointed the officers, and also elected Edward M. Craig, a board member, to a newly created vice presidency.

Marshall Field in Group.

A group represented by John R. Nicholson, an attorney, and John Nuveen Jr., a bond dealer, announced on Monday that it had offered to buy 60 per cent of National Builders' common stock at $75 a share. Marshall Field III. is a member of the group.

The bank is now housed at Wacker drive and La Salle street. It has 8,000 shares of $50 par value common stock, and the purchase offer would involve $360,000 if fully accepted.

WHEAT, SLUMPS ON ROOSEVELT'S HOPE FOR PEACE

War talk and peace rumors resulted in extremely erratic price changes in the wheat market yesterday.

An advance of about ¾ cent over Monday's close occurred early on buying induced by a warlike construction placed on Premier Chamberlain's speech in England. Prices declined about 2½ cents from the top in the later trading on Washington reports quoting President Roosevelt that he hoped efforts for peace would bear fruit in the spring.

Closing trades on wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade were at losses of 1½ to 1⅞ cents, with the new crop months leading the decline.

Other grains weakened in sympathy with wheat and on selling by professional traders. Corn futures closed ⅜ to ¾ cent lower. May oats sold at 40⅝ cents early, a new high since July, 1937, but reacted later. Closing trades were ⅛ to ⅛ cent lower.

Closing prices on the May delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade:

INSURANCE FIRM TO SHUT CHICAGO BRANCH OFFICE

The western department of the Insurance Company of North America is to be transferred to the main office of the company in Philadelphia, it was learned last night. About 290 employés in Chicago are affected.

W. P. Robertson, manager of the western department, announced the transfer at a meeting of employés yesterday. The company occupies several floors in the McKinlock building, 209 West Jackson boulevard. The move is being made, it was indicated, as an economy measure.

It is understood about 60 of the Chicago employés will be moved to Philadelphia. The others, it was said, will be granted severance compensation.

NEW OFFICIALS NAMED AT MANY BANK MEETINGS

4 Promotions Made by First National.

Most of the banks in Chicago and Cook county—52 out of 88—held annual meetings yesterday, reelected or reshuffled their leadership, took time to appraise the results of 1939 operations, and otherwise prepared to square away for another year.

T. J. Carney named First National director

Four of the large downtown banks—the First National Bank of Chicago, the American National Bank and Trust company, the City National Bank and Trust company, and the Northern Trust company held stockholders' or directors' meetings, or both.

First National Promotes Four.

The First National made a change in its board of directors, announced four promotions, and abolished the office of chairman of the board as a sequel to the recently announced retirement of John P. Oleson. Oleson was reëlected a director.

Harold F. McCormick, who had been on the bank's board longer than any other director, retired from the post he had held for 35 years, and Thomas J. Carney, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., was elected to the vacancy. All of the other 24 directors were retained.

McCormick, chairman of the board of the International Harvester company, requested that the bank elect another director in his place because absence from the city and the condition of his health made it impossible for him to attend meetings regularly.

Thirty Attend Meeting.

About 30 officials and shareholders of the bank attended the meeting, presided over by Edward E. Brown, president. Edwy Logan Reeves, shareholder and attorney who almost without interruption in the last 25 years had presided at annual meetings altho neither a director nor an official, was absent. Retired from law practice, Reeves, now 76, was in Florida.

Brown was not questioned by the shareholders and made no comments on the bank's operations or on national affairs.

First National's promotions were: Roy R. Marquardt, from assistant vice president to vice president, and C. Edgar Johnson, Lewis Miller, and Ray H. Matson, from assistant cashiers to assistant vice presidents. Ten new officers also were named, being promoted from clerical posts. They were Robert J. Crossley, John F. Evans, Bentley G. McCloud Jr., Paul H. Miller, Charles F. Newhall, John N. Ott Jr. and George B. Wendt, named assistant cashiers; Gaylord A. Freeman, elected an attorney of the bank, and Forrest G. Paddock and J. Carl Sommer, named assistant auditors. Other officers were reëlected.

Armour's Board Post Vacant.

American National Bank and Trust company's stockholders reëlected all directors with the exception of Laurance Armour, whose place on the board was left vacant. Armour has also relinquished his post as president of the bank.

Directors elected Lawrence F. Stern as president. Stern, who had been named chairman of the bank's executive committee at last year's meeting, formerly headed an investment banking business of his own.

The board reëlected the other officers, named Wilfred H. Heitmann assistant trust officer and voted a semi-annual dividend of $3, of which $1.50 will be payable on Jan. 15 to stockholders of record Jan. 13 and $1.50 on April 15 to stockholders of record April 13.

Bank's Earnings Increase.

Shareholders were told that the bank's earnings in 1939 were equal to $29.56 a share of common stock, against $23.41 a share in 1938. Profits

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, Jan. 9 (AP).—United States governments and a group of Scandinavian loans closed moderately higher in the bond market today. Domestic corporates had no definite trend.

Offerings predominated in the general run of speculative ratings but low yield issues tended to improve with the federals, which ended 1-32 to 11-32 higher. Finland 6s, which had been active in recent sessions, moved up 5 points at 45: Gains ran to a point or so for Denmark 4½s, 5½s, and 6s and for various issues of Norway.

Chicago Stocks.

Two of the 113 issues traded on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday advanced to new highs. In a volume of 33,000 shares, however, declines outnumbered advances. Issues setting new highs were Central and South West Utilities preferred, which climbed 2¼ points to 74, and Mountain States Power, up 5⅜ to 82½. Volume leaders included Middle West, which closed at 8¾, up ½.

Bank Stocks.

American National shares declined two points in bank stock trading yesterday to close at 210 bid. Chicago Title and Trust and First National were each a point lower, closing at 121 and 228, respectively. Continental Illinois gained half a point to 92½. Other issues were steady.

MORRELL & CO. PROFIT DOUBLED IN FISCAL YEAR

Output of Meat Products Increased Last Year.

Doubled earnings for the 1939 fiscal year, increased production of meat products and development of additional specialty items were reported yesterday by John Morrell & Co., Ottumwa, Ia., meat packer.

T. Henry Foster.

T. Henry Foster, president of the company, issued the annual financial statement for the fiscal year ending with October. It showed net income of $2,149,871, an increase of 112 per cent over the profit of $1,016,227 for the preceding fiscal year.

More Attention to Specialties.

Sales totaled 768,086,551 pounds, compared with 694,064,000 pounds in the preceding year. The number of animals slaughtered increased to 3,200,285 from 2,712,683, and Foster predicted that the figure will be larger for 1940.

More attention will be paid to manufacture of specialty items by all packers this year, Foster asserted. Morrell now makes 58 special products, and the volume of these has risen 310 per cent in the last five years, he said.

"There is a challenge to every packer to develop new ideas, new products, new packages, and to eliminate or reduce consumer cooking and handling difficulties," he said.

Commonwealth Edison Earnings.

The Commonwealth Edison company reported net income of $25,097,741 for the company and its subsidiaries in the 12 months ended Nov. 30. The figure was announced in a special report and no comparison was available.

Illinois Bell Telephone company reported November net income at $1,121,469 against $972,689 in the comparable 1938 month. Net profits in the first 11 months of 1939, according to the report, totaled $12,258,108, compared with $9,849,164 in the corresponding period a year ago.

AUTO INDUSTRY USES MORE STEEL IN WEEK THAN NAVY IN 3 YEARS

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 9 (AP).—Edwin C. Barringer of New York told the 12th annual convention of the Institute of Scrap Iron and Steel today that the automobile industry consumes more steel in one week than does the United States navy in three years.

Barringer, executive secretary of the institute, said half of all steel manufactured comes from scrap and that scrap dealers last year sold 34,800,000 tons to the steel industry.

Only dealers along the coasts export to Japan and the warring powers, and their sales are only a "drop in the bucket" compared to local consumption, Barringer declared.

Nearly 700 scrap dealers were expected to register for the three day convention.

CANADIAN GOLD SHIPMENTS LIFT WEEK'S IMPORTS

Imports of gold into the United States increased last week as Canada again became the major wartime gold shipper. Total imports in the week were $57,668,620, of which $22,769,727 were from Canada. The total in the preceding week was $48,178,791. Gold assets of the United States treasury totaled $17,735,898,882 on Jan. 6, compared with $14,566,904,482 a year ago.

Other large shipments in the week ended Jan. 3 included $7,836,955 from the Netherlands, $5,009,203 from Norway, $8,300,547 from Sweden, $4,948,139 from England, and $6,059,159 from Australia.

NEW OFFICIALS NAMED AT MANY BANK MEETINGS

Several Promotions Made by First National.

totaled $295,687 last year, compared with $234,115 in the preceding year.

Northern Trust company directors approved several promotions. Nathaniel M. Symonds and John C. Smith, assistant secretaries in the trust department, were made second vice presidents. In the banking department Robert H. Garrett, Alfred Brittain Jr., and G. Lyle Fischer, assistant cashiers, were made second vice presidents.

John R. Hoyle was elected an assistant cashier and Ernest L. Hall was chosen an assistant controler. All other officers were reëlected. The directors had been reëlected on Monday.

City National Reëlects 16.

City National Bank and Trust company stockholders reëlected the 16 directors, who later reëlected Philip R. Clarke president and Gen. Charles G. Dawes chairman. Other officers were reëlected and Edward J. Lukanitsch was appointed an assistant cashier.

Clarke told the stockholders 1939 was a satisfactory year. "We are unable to determine, however, whether we can pay a dividend in 1940," he said. "There are too many variants involved. Our depositors have increased in number and our earnings are higher, but we must build up our capital structure."

Officers and directors of the Merchandise National bank were reelected. George B. Everitt, chairman of the board, told stockholders that the bank's 1939 profits were $346,925, equal to $69.38 a share. The 1938 statement showed profit of $296,877, or $59.38 a share.

D. L. Kroehler, president of the Kroehler Manufacturing company, was elected a director of the National Boulevard bank of Chicago, to succeed his father, P. E. Koehler. Other directors were reëlected. James A. Donovan was promoted to vice president and retained as manager of the bond department.

J. DeForest Richards, president of National Boulevard, reported that the bank's deposits at the end of 1939 were $17,726,595, compared with $16,582,092 a year earlier, and that its earnings last year after losses and reverses, totaled $139,735, or $27.95 a share. In 1938 per share earnings amounted to $15.20.
